Unit 7: American Revolution

This introduction includes the necessary background information to teach the American Revolution unit. This unit contains 17 daily lessons, plus four Pausing Point days that may be used for differentiated instruction. You may choose to use all four days at the end of the unit, or you may use one day immediately after Lesson 7 and three days at the end of the unit. If you use one Pausing Point day after Lesson 7, you may administer Activity Page PP.1 to assess students’ understanding of the content at this midpoint, or you may use the day to focus on writing, spelling, grammar, or morphology skills covered in Lessons 1–7. Each entire lesson will require a total of 90 minutes. Lesson 17 is devoted to a unit assessment. It is recommended that you spend no more than 21 days total on this unit.

Lessons and activities in this unit address various aspects of a comprehensive language arts curriculum aligned to the Common Core State Standards-English Language Arts (CCSS-ELA): reading, writing, spelling, grammar, and morphology. A chart indicating which lessons in the American Revolution unit address content from the Core Knowledge Sequence (Core Content Objectives) and the CCSS is located on the CKLA Teacher Resources website at CoreKnowledge.org/CKLA-files and at CKLA.Amplify.com.

Why the American Revolution Unit Is Important

The Big Idea of this unit is that disagreements about principles of government led the colonists in North America to seek independence from Great Britain. The causes, major figures, and consequences of the American Revolution provide a framework for understanding what caused the colonies to break away and become an independent nation, and what significant ideas and values were at the heart of the American Revolution.

Note

To prepare for this unit, read this entire introduction, preview the unit and content assessments, and preview the Teacher Resources section of this Teacher Guide. You may wish to collect assessment Activity Pages 17.1, PP.1, and PP.2 from students before beginning the unit.
Core Content Objectives Addressed in Core Knowledge Language Arts During Previous Grades

Students who have received Core Knowledge Language Arts (CKLA) instruction in Grades K–3 will already have pertinent background knowledge for this unit. These students may have gained relevant background knowledge during the following domains:

Native Americans (Grade K)

Kings and Queens (Grade K)

Colonial Towns and Townspeople (Grade K)

Presidents and American Symbols (Grade K)
- Describe George Washington as a general who fought for American independence
- Explain that George Washington led his army to victory even though his army was smaller than the British army
- Identify Thomas Jefferson as the primary author of the Declaration of Independence
- Describe the purpose of the Declaration of Independence as a statement of America’s liberty

A New Nation (Grade 1)
- Locate the thirteen original colonies
- Describe how the thirteen colonies in America evolved from dependence on Great Britain to independence as a nation
- Explain the significance of July 4
- Describe the Boston Tea Party
- Explain the significance of Paul Revere’s ride
- Identify “one, if by land, and two, if by sea”
- Identify minutemen, redcoats, and “the shot heard ‘round the world”
- Describe the contributions of George Washington as patriot and military commander
- Describe the contributions of Thomas Jefferson as patriot and author of the Declaration of Independence
- Describe the contributions of Benjamin Franklin as patriot
- Explain the significance of the Declaration of Independence
- Identify “We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal . . .” as a part of the Declaration of Independence
Native Americans: Regions and Cultures (Grade 3)

European Exploration of North America (Grade 3)

- Explain why kings and queens in Europe were interested in exploring the Atlantic and the area to the west of Europe

- Locate on a map or globe key places explored and visited by the Spanish, including the Caribbean Sea, the West Indies, the East Indies, Hispaniola, Puerto Rico, Cuba, the Gulf of Mexico, the Mississippi River, the Grand Canyon, the Rio Grande, and St. Augustine, Florida

- Describe the encounters between early explorers and Native Americans

- Locate on a map or a globe the places explored in expeditions for a Northwest Passage, including Cape Breton Island; Newfoundland, Canada; the Hudson River; the Hudson Bay; Québec, Canada; the St. Lawrence River; and the Great Lakes

Colonial America (Grade 3)

- Describe the impact Spanish, French, Dutch, and Portuguese exploration and conquest in the Americas had on the English and their decision to settle parts of North America

- Locate the thirteen colonies of colonial America and identify each by region

- Locate and identify Charleston, Boston, New York, and Philadelphia as important colonial cities, and explain why they flourished

- Describe some of the reasons people came to North America from England and other countries

- Describe the many conflicts among the French, English, and Native Americans

- Describe why the colonists began to feel less and less like Europeans

- Describe some of the events that led to the American Revolution

- Explain the statements “No taxation without representation”; “One, if by land, and two, if by sea”; “the shot heard ‘round the world”; and “Give me liberty or give me death”

- Identify some of the colonial leaders and explain why they became known as the Founding Fathers of the United States

- Identify July 4, 1776, as the date the Founding Fathers approved the Declaration of Independence
Overview

The following is an overview of the unit schedule. The Teacher Guide uses the following color-coding: purple for reading lessons; red for grammar, morphology, and spelling lessons; and green for writing lessons.

Core Connections

During the Core Connections lesson in Lesson 1, students will review information about the Age of Exploration, settlements in the New World, and competing claims to land that led to the French and Indian War. Students will enact a series of vignettes to review prior knowledge and reference a timeline to place the American Revolution in context of these familiar events in history. Students will reference a map of Colonial America that reflects the 13 colonies and a globe or world map of Europe to identify the location of France, England, and North America.

Reading

Reader

The Reader for this unit, The Road to Independence, includes complex text and prepares students in Grade 4 for the increased vocabulary and syntax demands aligned texts will present in later grades. The Road to Independence focuses on important events and people that led to the colonists’ decision to declare independence from the British government. Students will examine the sequence of events leading to the American Revolution and what happened during the war itself. Students will also read two literary selections about the time period.

The Reader also includes two additional selections that may be used for enrichment. Although the Teacher Guide does not include lessons for these enrichment selections, the Activity Book includes activity pages students may complete independently. Please use these selections at your discretion, considering students’ needs and the time available in your school day.

Writing

In the writing lessons, students will review the stages of the writing process and engage in an extended writing project. In this unit, students will enact and record key information from vignettes corresponding to the causes of the American Revolution. These activities will lead to the development of a five-paragraph cause and effect essay.
Grammar

In this unit, students will practice using the verb to be and modal auxiliary verbs, in addition to practicing noun and pronoun subject-verb agreement with both action and to be verbs. Students will also review commas and quotation marks.

Spelling

During this unit’s spelling lessons, students will be introduced to both words related to Reader content and affixed words (suffixes –y, –ly, and prefixes im–, in–). Each set of spelling words will consist of between 10 and 12 words. Although each set of words does not follow just one single spelling pattern, you may detect certain gaps or misunderstandings in students’ knowledge of the code through careful analysis of their spelling errors.

Morphology

In this unit, students will learn the Latin root port, prefixes im– and in–, and suffixes –able and –ible. Oral and written activities present opportunities to apply morphology skills.

Fluency

Helping students achieve automaticity and fluency to improve reading comprehension is an important goal in CKLA Grade 4. The optional Fluency Supplement, consisting of poetry, folklore, fables, and other selections, is provided online at CoreKnowledge.org/CKLA-files and at CKLA.Amplify.com. These selections provide additional opportunities for students to practice reading with fluency and expression (prosody). You may choose and use the selections at your discretion in any order. For more information about using the Fluency Supplement, see the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction.

Assessment

Each unit includes a variety of assessment tools, including formal and informal assessments, formative and summative assessments, and progress-monitoring assessments targeting specific skills. Each unit concludes with a multipart unit assessment that assesses content knowledge (informational units only), reading comprehension, grammar, morphology, and fluency (optional). The grammar and morphology portions of the assessment address grammar and morphology skills taught throughout the unit. Specifically, the grammar portion of the unit assessment for American Revolution addresses the verb to be and modal auxiliary verbs, in addition to noun and pronoun subject-verb agreement with both action and to be verbs; the morphology portion addresses the Latin root port, prefixes im– and in–, and suffixes –able and –ible. Assessment of the content knowledge students acquired by reading The Road to Independence is administered after Lesson 7 and as part of the Pausing Point days.
Teacher Resources

At the back of this Teacher Guide, you will find a section titled “Teacher Resources.” This section contains materials needed for instruction of this unit. Additional teacher resources for the entire year can be found in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide.

Digital Components

In the Advance Preparation section of each lesson, you will be instructed to create various posters, charts, or graphic organizers for use during the lesson. Many of these items, along with other images such as maps or diagrams, are also available as digital components at CoreKnowledge.org/CKLA-files and at CKLA.Amplify.com.

Recommended Resources

You should consider various times throughout the day when you might infuse the curriculum with authentic domain-related literature. If you are able to do so, you may suggest students select books from the Recommended Resources list. In addition, if you recommend that families read aloud with their child each night, you may wish to suggest that they choose titles from this list to reinforce the concepts covered in this unit.

You might also consider creating a classroom lending library, allowing students to borrow domain-related books to read at home with their families. The Recommended Resources list, which also includes online resources, can be found online in the digital components for this unit at CoreKnowledge.org/CKLA-files and at CKLA.Amplify.com.
Lesson 1

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

- Explain that by defeating the French in the French and Indian War, the British established themselves as the dominant power in North America
- Identify changes in British policy toward the colonies, including the increased taxation as a result of the French and Indian War

Primary Focus of Lessons

Core Connections: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the French and Indian War in North America as a precursor to the American Revolution.

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to cite reasons for the colonists' growing discontent and anger toward Britain.

Academic Vocabulary

Academic vocabulary words support reading comprehension and may appear across a variety of materials, in language arts and in content areas. Understanding academic vocabulary may contribute to improved performance on assignments and assessments, as these words appear often in directions. Where applicable, general academic words are used throughout the unit, as they refer to all subjects—reading, writing, grammar, morphology, and spelling. They may appear in directions, assessments, spelling lists, activity pages, and discussion questions, among other places.

These words are underlined in lessons wherever they are included. You may wish to define these words and use them intentionally throughout the unit so students hear them used in multiple ways; it is not necessary to teach the words ahead of time.
Following the word list is a chart of applicable Spanish cognates. Providing Spanish cognates may support Spanish-speaking students in comprehending the words in English.

1. alter, v. to make a change to something
2. essential, adj. necessary, very important
3. incorporate, v. to include
4. recall, v. to remember
5. relate, v. to make a connection between things; to have a relationship
6. series, n. a list or group of things in a particular order

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Core Connections

- You may wish to prepare to display the digital version of the Colonial North America Map found in the digital components for this unit.
- Read through the Core Connections Vignette on Activity Page 1.1, and decide how you will assign roles to students for performing the scenes.
- Prepare and display the following timeline. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

1400 1500 1600 1700 1800

AGE OF EXPLORATION
1492 Christopher Columbus
1607 Jamestown
1608 Québec
1754 French and Indian War Begins

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn why the British government taxed the colonists, and why doing so angered the colonists.

- You may wish to prepare to display the digital version of Timeline I found in the digital components for this unit.
Fluency (optional)

- Choose and make sufficient copies of a text selection from the online Fluency Supplement to distribute and review with students for additional fluency practice. If you choose to do a fluency assessment, you will assess students in Lesson 5. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

CORE CONNECTIONS

45 minutes

Review Prior Knowledge

Introduction

5 minutes

- Tell students they will begin a unit called American Revolution. Explain that a revolution is an attempt by many people, often with violent fighting, to end the rule of one government and start a new one.

- Tell students the Reader title for this unit is The Road to Independence. Tell students independence means freedom from outside control or support. A person who is independent is not controlled or financially supported by someone else; a country that is independent is not controlled or ruled by another country.

- Explain that before reading the first chapter of the Reader, you will discuss what life in America was like before the time and events described in the Reader to help students better understand what they will read about. Tell them they may already be familiar with some of the events and this time in history.

- Remind students who participated in CKLA in previous grades that they have read about Native Americans, European explorers, and colonial America.

- Explain that the events leading to the American Revolution began with another war that took place in North America called the French and Indian War. Remind students who participated in CKLA in Grade 3 that they learned about the French and Indian War during the Colonial America domain.

  Support Early explorers called Native Americans “Indians” because the explorers thought they had landed in Asia, in the country of India.

Locate Important Places on a Map

5 minutes

- Have students turn to page 91 in the Reader. Alternatively, you may direct students’ attention to the Colonial North America Map you prepared in advance. Explain that this is a map of colonial America showing the 13 colonies.

- Next, show students on a globe or world map where Europe and, more specifically, France and Great Britain, are located. You may also want to point out where the United States and Canada are located in North America.

Materials

- Colonial North America Map
- world map
- Activity Page 1.1
- Core Connections Timeline

Note

Throughout this lesson, and other lessons in this Teacher Guide, you will see certain questions or activities labeled either Support or Challenge. These questions and activities are not intended to be used in all situations. The items labeled Support provide additional scaffolding and should be used with classes that would benefit from additional support. The items labeled Challenge should be used with classes that would benefit from additional enrichment opportunities.
Enact Vignettes

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.1 (Core Connections Vignette).
- Tell students they will review the events that led up to the American Revolution by performing a vignette, or series of short scenes from history.
- Tell students four scenes are included within this vignette. Have a student read the names of each scene:
  - Scene I: European Explorers and the “New World”
  - Scene II: Native American Alliances
  - Scene III: Competing for the Same Land
  - Scene IV: A Long, Long War
- Have students read Scene I silently.
- Assign roles (or have students select roles) for Scene I.
- Enact Scene I by having students with assigned roles read and act out their roles.
- Continue in the same manner, having students read each scene first, choose or assign roles, and enact the scene.

Note

You may wish to point out that the royals, explorers, and Native Americans in the vignette are representative of their roles at that time in history. There were many explorers during this time and many royals who urged them to claim land for their respective countries. There were also many Native American tribes. For illustrative purposes, you may select a male or female student to play any role.

Scene I: European Explorers and the “New World”

Characters: Narrators (4), Timeline Tracker, Audience Member, English Royal, English Explorer, French Royal, French Explorer

Narrator 1: The Age of Exploration occurred from around the 1400s to the 1600s. Ships left busy ports of Spain, Portugal, France, Holland, and England to sail around the world. The explorers aboard these ships sought more than adventure. European kings and queens paid them to find gold, spices . . . and land.

Timeline Tracker: [Point out “Age of Exploration” on the Core Connections Timeline on display.]

Audience Member: That’s when Christopher Columbus discovered America, right?

Narrator 2: Well, not exactly. Native people had lived in the Americas for many, many years before Columbus landed. But, you’re right that in 1492 Columbus was one of the first Europeans to claim land in the Americas for the king and queen of Spain. After that, many other Europeans followed, curious about what this “New World” had to offer.

Timeline Tracker: [Point out “Christopher Columbus” on the Core Connections Timeline.]
Narrator 3: In the mid-1500s, both the English and the French began to form colonies in the “New World” and in 1607 the English established their first permanent colony in Jamestown, Virginia.

Narrator 1: After that—as they say—the rest is history!

Timeline Tracker: [Point out “Jamestown” on the Core Connections Timeline.]

Narrator 4: Imagine now that you live during the early 1600s. Listen as first the king (or queen) of England and then the king (or queen) of France each talk to an explorer about traveling to the “New World.” Both countries are anxious to claim more land in North America.

Narrator 1: First, the English.

English Royal: Spain keeps claiming more and more territory across the Atlantic Ocean. We need to get over there and take a share—a LARGE share—for our homeland!

English Explorer: Well, sir (ma’am), it seems Spain has already claimed most of the territory in Central and South America. No worries, though, we will get as much of the remaining land as we can!

[English Royal and English Explorer sit down.]

Narrator 1: Now, the French.

French Royal: We, too, shall sail to this “New World” and get as much land and riches as we can for France.

French Explorer: Yes, your majesty!

Characters: Narrators (4), Timeline Tracker, Native Americans (2), English Explorer, French Explorer

Narrator 1: At about the same time that English colonists settled Jamestown, French colonists arrived in New France and settled Québec.

Timeline Tracker: [Point out “Québec” on the Core Connections Timeline.]

Narrator 2: Many of these French and English explorers encountered Native American tribes already living on the land, just as Christopher Columbus had more than 100 years earlier.
Narrator 3: Listen as two Native Americans encounter European explorers for the first time.

Native American 1: Did they say “New World”?

Native American 2: What “New World”? We have lived here for thousands of years.

Native American 1: Who are these people?

Native American 2: And what do they want?

Narrator 3: Native Americans had long traded goods with one another, tribe to tribe. Now, they agreed to trade with the Europeans.

English Explorer (to Native American 1): We will trade knives, glass, copper, and brass in exchange for meat, fish, animal skins, and furs.

French Explorer (to Native American 2): We will teach you how to hunt with metal weapons if you will teach us to hunt in the wilderness.

Narrator 4: For many years, Europeans traded goods with Native Americans. Over time, some tribes formed alliances with the English and others formed alliances with the French.

Support Prior to Scene III, tell students that non means “no” in French. It is pronounced /noen/. Also tell students unison means all together, at the same time. Have students say non in unison to practice for the scene.

Scene III: Competing for the Same Land

Characters: Narrators (2), Map Guide, British General, French General, French (all students)

Narrator 1: Explorers from many European countries raced to claim areas of North America for themselves. The English established colonies along the east coast of North America—between Spanish settlements to the south, and French settlements to the north.

Map Guide: [Point out the English colonies as well as the areas north and south of the colonies on the Colonial North America Map.]

Narrator 2: By 1733, the British had established 13 colonies in America, the last one being Georgia in 1733. But it was not enough. They pushed westward, across the Appalachian Mountains to an area already occupied by the French—the Ohio River Valley.
British General: We need more land so more of our families can build homes.
This rich river valley is a true land of opportunity.

French General: The French established forts and trading posts here long before the British ever crossed the mountains. Everyone knows this land is called New France.

Narrator 1: This was not a good combination! The British and the French had been enemies for years on the other side of the ocean. Now, they were competing for the same land in North America. Listen as French and British generals justify their claim to the same land.

British General: [clearing throat] Ahem. It is a well-known fact that the land belongs to Great Britain. The members of the British Parliament even wrote to tell the French to leave at once.

Narrator 2: Hmm. This was a bad sign! [to audience] Do you think the French will cooperate with this request?

French (ALL): [pausing as if to consider this request before replying in unison] Non!

Narrator 1: The British prepared to defend the land. And so did the French. It seemed conflict was unavoidable.

Scene IV: A Long, Long War

Characters: Narrators (3), Audience Members (2), Timeline Tracker

Narrator 1: And so it was that fighting began between the British and the French, both wanting to control land west of the Appalachian Mountains, the Ohio River Valley.

Narrator 2: Both sides knew they could not defeat the other without the help of Native Americans who had lived on the land for thousands of years. The French and their Native American allies were already well-established trading partners.

Narrator 3: The British gave gifts and made promises to their Native American allies.

Narrator 1: So both sides received help from different Native American tribes when the fighting began.
Narrator 2: Eventually, Britain officially declared war on France in 1756. But the British and French colonists had already been fighting for two years in the wilderness of North America. The French and Indian War was well underway.

Audience Member 1: Wait! The French and Indian War? Why isn’t it called the French and British War?

Narrator 3: Excellent question. The war is known as the French and Indian War because the British fought against the French and their Native American, or Indian, allies.

Narrator 1: That’s right. The French and Indian War was not a war between the French and the Indians. It was between the French and the British—part of their ongoing struggle for control of land in other parts of the world.

Audience Member 2: So, fighting was going on in other parts of the world at the same time?

Narrator 2: Yes, the French and Indian War was just part of more fighting involving many countries, particularly the French and the British, around the world.

Narrator 3: Fighting continued in the wilderness of North America for a very long time—almost nine years in all.

Narrator 1: Yes, and that was only the beginning. Even though Great Britain became the dominant power in North America after the war, life in the British colonies was never the same.

Narrator 2: But that’s a lesson for another day.

Wrap Up

5 minutes

- Have students recall what event in history they will be learning about in this unit.
  (the American Revolution)

- Have students summarize what they learned in this lesson.

  - Answers may vary, but should include information about the Age of Exploration, and colonies and settlements in the New World; Native Americans living in the New World prior to the arrival of explorers; some explorers and settlers establishing alliances with Native American tribes; conflict between the British and the French over land in the Ohio River Valley; fighting between the British and the French with help from their respective Native American allies, known as the French and Indian War.
Introduce the Reader

- Ensure each student has a copy of the Reader, The Road to Independence.
- Read the title of the Reader with students and explain that this Reader is a nonfiction, informational book about the events in history that led to the American Revolution and the Revolutionary War.
- Explain that the American Revolution refers to the time period before and during the Revolutionary War, whereas the Revolutionary War refers only to the actual time during which fighting occurred.
- Ask students what they think the title of the Reader, The Road to Independence, might mean. Discuss whether they think the title refers to an actual road or is a metaphor.
- Have students turn to the table of contents. Either read several chapter titles from the table of contents aloud or have students read them. Ask students to describe the information they gather by reading the chapter titles in this table of contents.
- Give students a few moments to flip through the Reader and comment on the images they see.
- Ask students to share any comments they have about the Reader.

Introduce the Chapter

- Tell students you will read aloud Chapter 1, “Bills to Pay.” They should follow along in their Readers as you read.
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is conflict.
- Have them find the word on page 2 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate conflict, and then have a student read the definition.

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn why the British government taxed the colonists and why doing so angered the colonists.

- Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

Why did the British government tax the colonists, and why did that make the colonists angry?

Read “Bills to Pay” 20 minutes

Read the chapter aloud as students follow along in their Readers. As you read, stop to read and discuss the corresponding guided reading supports. Guided reading supports in brackets are directional and are not intended to be read aloud. All other phrases and sentences are intended to be read aloud verbatim. Whenever asking a guided reading support question, explicitly encourage students to refer to the text and reread prior to offering an answer.
Inferential What was the turning point in the French and Indian War?
» the Battle of Québec and defeat of Montréal

Support What was the French and Indian War? Who was fighting and why?
» The French were fighting the British for control of land in North America. Some Native American tribes fought with the British and others fought with the French.

Support [Explain that the phrase then went on to take Montréal means the British defeated the French and took over the French city Montréal. Explain that Montréal’s fall refers to Montréal’s defeat and capture by the British.]

Refer students to the map on page 91 and have them point to the St. Lawrence River and the cities of Québec and Montréal.

To better understand the events that led to the American Revolution, we will have to travel back in time to the years between 1754 and 1763, when the British fought against the French in a different war on North American soil.

This war, known as the French and Indian War, was part of a larger struggle in other countries for power and wealth. In this conflict, the British fought the French for control of land in North America.

During the French and Indian War, many Native Americans chose sides. Some fought with the British, while others fought with the French. Battles were won and lost on both sides. However, as is often the case in war, there is a turning point. In this war, it was a battle fought in a part of Canada controlled by the French.

In 1759, British soldiers sailed up the St. Lawrence River and attacked the French city of Québec. The British were victorious in the Battle of Québec and then went on to take Montréal the next year. Montréal’s fall signaled the end of large battles between the French and British in North America. Sporadic fighting continued until 1763, when the Treaty of Paris finally ended the French and Indian War.
French and Indian War
In the treaty, France agreed to give up almost all of the land it had claimed in North America. The French handed over control of this land to Great Britain. However, with new land came new responsibilities and financial burdens.

Territory gained by Britain (Treaty of Paris, 1763)
The British government had borrowed a lot of money to fight this war. A lot of that money had been spent on protecting the colonists from the French and their Native American allies. All of the money had to be paid back, and the British government felt that the colonists should pay their share. In addition, more money was continually needed to protect the colonies as well as the newly acquired land.

To raise the needed funds, the British government imposed new taxes, including several that would have to be paid by the colonists. In 1765, King George III and his government proposed the Stamp Act.

The Stamp Act was a tax on printed materials. Colonists were required to buy stamps when they bought printed items such as newspapers, pamphlets, even playing cards. These were not gummed stamps, but rather impressions imprinted or embossed on paper. Many people were upset about the Stamp Act. They thought it was unfair that the king and his government in London were making decisions about taxes the colonists had to pay, while the colonists had no say in the matter.

The British government had generally allowed the colonies to raise taxes themselves. For example, if the government of Virginia needed money, an assembly of representatives from different parts of Virginia would meet. This assembly was called the House of Burgesses. Members of the House of Burgesses would determine the best way to raise money. They would propose taxes, and they would vote. If many representatives thought the taxes were unfair, they would not vote for them and, therefore, the taxes would not be approved. Because the House of Burgesses included representatives from different parts of Virginia, most everyone felt the process was fair.

Stamps were imprinted or embossed on paper.
A [Read pages 6–8 aloud, stopping at the end of the second paragraph on page 8.]

B Evaluative Why did the colonists feel the Stamp Act was unfair?

» Answers may vary, but should include that without asking the colonists for their input, the king and British Parliament decided to require colonists to pay taxes to repay money spent fighting the French and Indian War; the colonists did not think it was fair that they were not represented in Parliament and were not asked for their opinion about how to pay for the war; the colonists wanted a say in the discussion about how the money was raised; the colonists were concerned that important decisions about taxes were made by a government with no colonial representatives.

C Inferential Did the colonists express their unhappiness with the Stamp Act in peaceful or violent ways? Cite evidence from the text.

» Peaceful; holding protest meetings, writing pamphlets, and sending petitions to London are peaceful ways to protest.

Every colony had an assembly similar to the Virginia House of Burgesses. The assemblies weren’t all called the House of Burgesses, but they did the same thing: a group of representatives met to discuss new laws and taxes.

Although the colonists continued to raise their own taxes even after 1765, they felt that, rather than imposing a new tax on the colonies, the king and his government should have asked these assemblies to find a way to raise the money that was needed. Instead, without even as much as a dialogue, the king and his government created the Stamp Act. They did not send it to the colonial assemblies, but directly to Parliament, part of the British government responsible for passing laws and raising taxes.

The colonists agreed that there were bills that had to be paid, and they wanted to contribute. But they also wanted some say in how the money was raised. They were concerned that important decisions about taxes were being made thousands of miles away, by a parliament that had no colonial representatives. This process didn’t seem fair to them.

Other regions outside of England, such as Scotland, had representatives in Parliament. Their job was to represent—and stand up for—the people of Scotland. But there were no representatives from the 13 colonies in Parliament. Not even one!

When the colonists became upset about the Stamp Act, they expressed their unhappiness in various ways. They held protest meetings. They wrote pamphlets. They sent petitions to London. They tried to explain why they thought the Stamp Act was unfair.
The British Parliament made decisions on laws and taxes, including those that affected the colonies.
A Support A proud British subject is someone who is proud to be from Great Britain, in the same way an American citizen who moves to another country might feel proud to be from America.

B [Read the rest of page 8 and all of page 9 aloud.]

Support A prime minister is the head of a government with a parliament.

Many of the colonists were proud British subjects. But they also felt that they had rights—rights that the king and his government could not take away. Opposition to the Stamp Act spread.

In Virginia, the House of Burgesses passed a motion protesting the Stamp Act. The burgesses agreed that the British Parliament had no right to tax the people of Virginia.

Prime Minister Grenville

In 1765, the prime minister of Great Britain was George Grenville. He was the mastermind behind the Stamp Act. Grenville was faced with the challenge of finding money to support the thousands of British soldiers stationed in the North American colonies. As far as he was concerned, the British soldiers were protecting the colonists, so the colonists should help pay for the soldiers.

At first, the British government was surprised by the colonists’ response to the Stamp Act. As prime minister, Grenville remained unsympathetic to the colonial complaints and protests. However, he did not have widespread support, and other government ministers criticized him. He was replaced as prime minister in 1766.
A Leader Emerges

George Washington fought in the French and Indian War alongside the British. He served as a major and led a group of militia against the French in the Ohio River Valley. As a result of a successful mission against a French scouting party, Washington was promoted to colonel. He became the commander of a group of soldiers from Virginia and North Carolina. Although his next mission was not as successful, Washington had made a name for himself as a valiant leader. In 1755, he became the commander of all the Virginia militiamen. He was elected to the Virginia House of Burgesses in 1758.

Inferential Emerge means to develop or come into being. How did Washington emerge as a leader?

- He gradually took on more responsibility and leadership, moving from a major to a commander during the French and Indian War, and eventually being elected to the Virginia House of Burgesses.

Support The Virginia House of Burgesses was an assembly of representatives from different parts of Virginia who met to propose taxes and vote on the best way to raise money.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson
10 minutes

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Literal Why did the British government tax the colonists, and why did that make the colonists angry?
   - The British government borrowed a lot of money to fight the French and Indian War and to protect the colonists; it needed money to repay debts. It passed the Stamp Act, which worked like a tax because people paid it when they bought specific items. This made the colonists angry because they did not have any representation in Parliament or input into how the taxes were collected.

2. Evaluative Think Pair Share Do you think the Stamp Act was fair? Do you think the colonists should have paid their share?
   - Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3. You may wish to display Timeline I you prepared in advance. Explain that this is a timeline of events related to the American Revolution. Students will add to it over the course of the unit. By the end of the unit students will have a completed timeline showing the sequence of events they learned about related to the American Revolution.

- Use the following questions to guide students in adding events to their timelines as you do so with the displayed timeline:

1. What conflict began in 1754?
   - the French and Indian War (French and Indian War begins)

2. What was a turning point in the French and Indian War?
   - the Battle of Québec (1759)

3. When did the French and Indian War end?
   - 1763 (French and Indian War ends)

4. What tax did Great Britain impose in 1765?
   - the Stamp Act

- Have students take home Activity Page 1.4 to read and complete for homework.
- Have students take home Activity Page 1.5 to use as a reference throughout the unit.
Word Work: Conflict

1. In the chapter you read, “In this conflict, the British fought the French for control of land in North America.”
2. Say the word conflict with me.
3. Conflict means a fight or struggle for power or authority.
4. The conflict between the two countries resulted in war.
5. What is an example of a conflict that you have experienced? Be sure to use the word conflict in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “I had a conflict with _____ when . . .”]
6. What part of speech is the word conflict?
   » noun

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I am going to read several sentences. If the sentence I read is an example of a conflict, say, “That is a conflict.” If the sentence I read is not an example of a conflict, say, “That is not a conflict.”

1. Jordan wanted to use the television to watch a movie but his brother wanted to use it to play a video game. They argued over who got to use the television.
   » That is a conflict.
2. Justine wanted to stay up late, but her mother told her it was time to go to bed. Justine listened to her mother and got ready for bed.
   » That is not a conflict.
3. Francisco and Daniel took turns using the skateboard.
   » That is not a conflict.
4. The British and the French fought each other for land during the French and Indian War.
   » That is a conflict.
5. Colonists disagreed with the Stamp Act issued by the British government.
   » That is a conflict.

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

- Identify changes in British policy toward the colonies, including the increased taxation as a result of the French and Indian War.
- Explain that changes in British policy toward the colonies and increased taxation contributed greatly to the discontent that the colonists felt toward Great Britain.
- Explain that, with each move by the British government and response by the colonists, the colonies came closer to declaring their independence.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the Sons of Liberty and describe their rebellious acts in Boston.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will have reviewed the correct use of commas in dates, places, and items in a series.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the meaning of words with the root port and use these words correctly in sentences.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain the concept of cause and effect.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

  Read to learn what the British Parliament did in response to the colonists’ opposition to the Stamp Act, and how the colonists reacted.

Grammar
- Prepare the following Commas Poster for display. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

  Commas

  Example

  | For dates: Place commas between the day of the month and the year. | The Boston Tea Party happened on December 16, 1773. |
  | For addresses: Place a comma between the name of a city and a state or country. | The Treaty of Paris was signed in Paris, France. |
  | For items in a series: Use commas to separate three or more words/phrases in a series. | Colonists were required to pay a tax when they bought newspapers, pamphlets, and playing cards. |

- Write the following sentences on the board/chart paper.

  The French and Indian War ended on February 10 1763.
  Paul Revere lived in Boston Massachusetts.
  The Sons of Liberty marched protested and spoke against the Stamp Act.

Writing
- Prepare the following Cause and Effect Poster for display for the duration of the unit. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

  Cause

  An event or circumstance that makes something happen
  The reason something happens
  Answers the question why?

  Effect

  Something that happens as a result of, or because of, a cause
  Tells what happened

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

Who were the Sons of Liberty, and what form of protest did they lead in Boston Harbor?

Read “Trouble Is Brewing” 25 minutes

Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
A [Have a student read the chapter title aloud.]

[Have students discuss possible meanings of the chapter title. Explain that the term brewing is used to describe a method of preparing coffee or tea. Tell them the term may also be used metaphorically to mean preparations are underway (i.e., something is developing).]

B [Have students read pages 10 and 11 silently.]

C Inferential The Sons of Liberty led the cry, “No taxation without representation!” What does the phrase no taxation without representation mean?

» The colonists had no representatives to stand up for them in the British Parliament, where the decision to tax the colonists was made. They felt this was unfair and wanted a voice in making decisions that affected them.

Support Who were the Sons of Liberty?

» The Sons of Liberty was a group of protestors who made speeches against taxes and the British government.

Chapter 2

Trouble Is Brewing

B Some of the most passionate protests against the Stamp Act took place in Boston, Massachusetts. There, angry crowds took their frustration out on tax collectors.

A new group of protestors formed in Boston in response to the Stamp Act. The group met under a tree that they called the Liberty Tree. They made public speeches against taxes and the British government. They cried, “No taxation without representation!” This group became known as the Sons of Liberty.

Eventually, after much protest, the British government decided to repeal the Stamp Act in 1766. Parliament eliminated the tax on paper products, but in 1767 it replaced it with other taxes—including taxes on imported goods, such as tea. These taxes were officially called the Townshend Acts.
Tea was a popular drink in the colonies, just as it was in Great Britain. However, many people decided they would not buy British tea if they had to pay an unfair tax. And they thought the new tax on tea was every bit as unfair as the old tax on paper. After all, the new tax had been approved by the same British Parliament in London, and there were still no representatives from the 13 colonies there.

Suddenly, deciding to take a sip of tea meant something more than just having a drink. If you bought British tea, you were paying a tax, and, indirectly, you were agreeing that Parliament had the right to tax the colonies. On the other hand, if you refused to buy British tea, you were making a statement of a different kind: you were saying that you did not approve of—and would not accept—taxation without representation.

Colonists who were angry about the new tax agreed not to buy British tea. But they didn't stop there. They also visited inns and other places that sold tea and asked the owners to stop selling it. Many establishments agreed to boycott British tea.

D Evaluative Why didn't the British government’s repeal of the Stamp Act change the way colonists felt?

The British government repealed the Stamp Act but imposed a new tax in its place. The new tax had been approved without colonial representation in Parliament, just as with the Stamp Act. Again, the colonists had to pay a tax they thought was unfair.
Debates and protests about the British government’s role in colonial affairs continued, especially in Boston.

In 1768, in response to the protests about the new taxes, the British government sent soldiers to Boston to keep an eye on the Sons of Liberty. Because the British soldiers wore red uniforms, the colonists sometimes referred to them as “redcoats” or “lobster backs.”

In March 1770, several Bostonians got into a tussle with a redcoat. The Bostonians surrounded the soldier and called him names. They threw snowballs at him, and some members of the crowd even threatened him with sticks and clubs.

More British soldiers arrived on the scene. They ordered the Bostonians to go home, but the angry protestors refused. The situation became more serious when even more people poured into the streets. Soon a crowd of 300 angry Bostonians was pressing in on the outnumbered British soldiers.
Some of the Bostonians shouted at the soldiers, daring them to fire their guns. One of the Bostonians threw something at the soldiers. It may have been a snowball. It may have been a rock. Whatever it was, it hit one of the soldiers and knocked him down. Perhaps thinking his life was in danger, the soldier fired his musket. One of the Bostonians fought back, attacking the soldier with a club. After that, the other British soldiers responded. They fired into the crowd. When it was over, five people were dead.

The Sons of Liberty were outraged. They began making speeches about the incident, which became known as the Boston Massacre. They insisted that the Bostonians had been protesting peacefully and the British had no reason to fire on them. One of the Sons of Liberty, a man named Paul Revere, created an engraving that showed British soldiers firing into a crowd of peaceful protestors. It was not an entirely accurate picture of what had happened, but many colonists thought it was.

B  Evaluative  Do you think the British soldiers had good reason to fire on the Bostonians? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

» Answers may vary, but may include: yes, because the British were outnumbered and they were provoked by the angry crowd’s actions (shouting, taunting, throwing objects, and hitting one of the soldiers); or no, because the Bostonians were unarmed and unable to defend themselves.

Support Describe the incident that became known as the Boston Massacre.

» Answers may vary, but should include the fact that British soldiers opened fire on a crowd of protestors in the streets of Boston.

Support Explain that the word massacre is a synonym for murder and is often used when innocent, unarmed people are killed.
A Evaluative Why do you think the incident in Boston Harbor became known as the Boston Tea Party?

» Answers may vary, but may include the fact that it is a metaphorical term. Tea is drunk at a tea party. No tea was drunk, yet there was certainly enough tea in the ocean for “the world’s largest tea party.”

Support Why did the Sons of Liberty dump chests of tea into the harbor?

» They had spent a lot of time and effort convincing the people of Boston not to buy or sell British tea, and they were not going to let the captains unload all that tea. When the captains did nothing, the Sons of Liberty decided to get rid of the tea so they dumped it into Boston Harbor.

The World’s Largest Tea Party

In December 1773, there was another incident in Boston. Three ships loaded with tea were docked in Boston Harbor. The captains had orders to unload the tea so it could be sold in Boston.

The Sons of Liberty refused to let this happen. They had spent a lot of time convincing the people of Boston not to buy or sell British tea. There was no way they were going to let the captains unload all that tea. The Sons of Liberty demanded the captains raise anchor and sail away.

The captains weren’t sure what to do, so they did not do anything. The ships sat in the harbor until the Sons of Liberty finally decided to get rid of the tea once and for all. Dressed as Native Americans, they and other members of the patriot movement boarded the ships and threw the tea into Boston Harbor. They dumped approximately 340 chests of tea—worth hundreds of thousands of dollars in today’s money—into the Atlantic Ocean. Later, this act of protest came to be known as the Boston Tea Party.
A [Have students read the first paragraph on page 16 silently.]

B Literal Who was Phillis Wheatley?
   » She was an enslaved African who lived in Massachusetts and wrote a poem when the Stamp Act was repealed.

C [Read Phillis Wheatley’s poem aloud.]
   [Note: Due to archaic language and symbolic references, the poem by Phillis Wheatley is quite challenging. You may choose to ask students to read and discuss only the explanatory paragraph about Phillis Wheatley. You may also choose to read the poem aloud to expose students without analyzing the meaning of the poem.]

D Challenge Do you think Wheatley’s poem is favorable or unfavorable toward the king? Find evidence in the text to support your answer.
   » Answers may vary, but should include the poem is favorable, praising the king. Evidence may be given from phrases in the poem itself (crown . . . may flourish long; all with love and readiness obey; our father and our lord; George, beloved by all nations) or from the opening lines on the page where the author mentions the colonists’ numerous expressions of gratitude for the king’s repeal of the Stamp Act—articles, letters, and songs.

Support [You may want to point out that Phillis Wheatley incorporates a reference to the repeal of the Stamp Act in her poem. Have students look where the asterisk (*) appears in the poem and discuss the meaning of the two previous lines.]
Crispus Attucks was among the people killed during the Boston Massacre. Attucks was part African and part Native American. He had been enslaved, but at the time of the Boston Massacre he was a sailor. During the crossfire, Attucks was shot in the chest and died immediately. Three others, and eventually a fourth, also died as a result of the incident in Boston. On the day of the funerals, many shops closed. Thousands of people filed through the streets of Boston following the victims’ coffins. Attucks and the others became heroes.

The Sons of Liberty was largely made up of small business owners. Several were merchants and tradesmen. The group got its name from an Irishman named Isaac Barre. Barre was a soldier and a politician. He spoke out in the British Parliament against some of the decisions being made regarding the colonies. Like George Washington, Isaac Barre fought in the French and Indian War. He was involved in the defeat of the French at the Battle of Québec. He was strongly opposed to the taxes that were being imposed on the colonists. In one of his speeches, Barre referred to the colonists as Sons of Liberty. The name inspired some of the protestors in the colonies, and the group has been known as the Sons of Liberty ever since.

[Have a different student read each text box on page 17 aloud.]

F  Inferential Why is Crispus Attucks remembered today?

» He was one of the people who died during the Boston Massacre.

G  Inferential Why did Isaac Barre refer to the colonists as the Sons of Liberty?

» Answers may vary, but could include that he was strongly opposed to the taxes the British imposed on the colonists; he supported the colonists in their decision to fight for freedom; he thought they would fight for freedom in the same manner they would fight for a family member.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Literal Who were the Sons of Liberty, and what form of protest did they lead in Boston Harbor?
   - The Sons of Liberty was a group of protestors who formed in Boston in response to the Stamp Act. They gave speeches against taxes and the British government. When Parliament replaced the Stamp Act with a tax on tea, the Sons of Liberty led a protest by dumping chests of tea into Boston Harbor.

2. Inferential The title of this chapter is “Trouble Is Brewing,” which means trouble is developing. What was that trouble?
   - The Boston Tea Party (protestors dumping tea into Boston Harbor)

- Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 as you display Timeline I. Use the following questions to guide students in adding events to their timelines as you do so with the displayed timeline:

1. In what year did the British government repeal the Stamp Act?
   - 1766

2. What incident took place between the colonists and the redcoats on the streets of Boston in March 1770, resulting in the death of Crispus Attucks?
   - the Boston Massacre

3. What is the name of the protest in which the Sons of Liberty helped dump tea into the Boston Harbor in December 1773?
   - the Boston Tea Party

Word Work: Boycott

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “Many establishments agreed to boycott British tea.”

2. Say the word boycott with me.

3. Boycott means to protest something by refusing to buy, use, or participate.

4. Some people marched outside the supermarket to boycott the high price of lettuce.

5. What is something you might boycott as a form of protest? Be sure to use the word boycott in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “I might boycott ______ because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word boycott?
   - verb
[Use a Discussion activity for follow-up.] Talk with a partner about why the colonists thought boycotting British tea would be an effective way to protest. Be sure to use the word boycott in complete sentences as you discuss this with your partner.

---

GRAMMAR

Review Commas

- Remind students they learned several different ways to use commas in a previous unit.

- Refer to the Commas Poster you prepared in advance. Point out the following:
  - Commas are used to separate the day of the month and the year. Have students identify the commas in the example: The Boston Tea Party happened on December 16, 1773.
  - Commas are used to separate the name of a city from a state or country. Have students identify the comma in the example: The Treaty of Paris was signed in Paris, France.
  - Commas are used to separate three or more words and phrases in a series. Have students identify the commas in the example: Colonists were required to pay a tax when they bought newspapers, pamphlets, and playing cards.

- Refer to the sentences you prepared in advance. Have students help you insert commas where they belong. Be sure to have students explain their placement of commas.

  - The French and Indian War ended on February 10, 1763.
  - Paul Revere lived in Boston, Massachusetts.
  - The Sons of Liberty marched, protested, and spoke against the Stamp Act.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 2.2. Review all the directions and have students complete the activity page for homework.

MORPHOLOGY

15 minutes

Introduce Root port

- Refer to the Roots Poster on display in the classroom and read the definition of root.
- Tell students they will study the root port. Explain that the origin of port is Latin and it means “to carry.”
- Write port and its meaning on the Roots Poster.
- Explain that prefixes can be added to the beginning of port and suffixes can be added to the end. Adding prefixes and suffixes can change the part of speech of the word.
- Write transport on the board/chart paper. Underline port.
- Briefly discuss the meaning of the word and then use it in a sentence. (Transport means to carry something from one place to another. The school bus will transport students on their field trip.)
- Have students provide sentences using the word transport. (Answers may vary.)
- Continue in this manner with the remaining port words, using the following chart as a guide.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 2.3. Complete the first sentence as a class, and have students complete the rest of the activity page for homework.
Introduce Cause and Effect

• Tell students they will be writing a cause and effect essay for this unit. Today you will introduce the concept of cause and effect as students begin the planning stage of the writing process. Briefly reference the Writing Process Graphic on display in the classroom.

• Refer to the Cause and Effect Poster you prepared in advance. Ask one student to read the definition of cause and another student to read the definition of effect.

• Share the following example of a simple cause and effect statement:
  – Joshua put on his heavy winter coat because it was cold outside.

• Have students identify the cause, or reason, which made Joshua put on his heavy winter coat. Tell them to test their idea of what the cause is by asking if it answers the question why? (Why did Joshua put on his heavy winter coat?)
  – Cause: it was cold outside

• Have students identify the effect, or the thing that happened, because of it being cold outside. Tell them to test their idea of what the effect is by asking if it tells what happened. (What happened because it was cold outside?)
  – Effect: Joshua put on his heavy winter coat

• Point out that the cause or effect may occur at the beginning or the end of the sentence. For example, the following sentence means the same as the first sentence, but is ordered differently:
  – It was cold outside, so Joshua put on his heavy winter coat.

• Refer to the Cause and Effect Chart you prepared in advance.

• Have a student read the first item under “Cause.”

• Ask students what effect staying in the sun too long without sunscreen might have on someone. (Answers may vary, but could include getting burned by the sun.)

• Write “I got burned by the sun” in the first row of the chart under “Effect.”

• Have students formulate different sentences explaining this cause and effect. For example:
  – Because I stayed out in the sun too long without sunscreen, I got burned by the sun.
  – I got burned by the sun because I stayed out in the sun too long without sunscreen.

• Next, refer to the second row in the “Effect” column and have a student read the item.

Materials

• Cause and Effect Poster
• Cause and Effect Chart
• Activity Page 2.4
• Tell students the balloon popped because of an event or circumstances. Ask students to suggest why the balloon popped.
  – Answers may vary, but should include reasonable suggestions such as being punctured by an object or bursting due to pressure of some sort (heat).
• Write “Someone poked the balloon with a pin” under “Cause” on the second row of the chart.
• Have students formulate different sentences explaining this cause and effect. For example:
  – The balloon popped because someone poked it with a pin.
  – Because someone poked it with a pin, the balloon popped.
• Have students turn to Activity Page 2.4. Review the chart, noting that it includes the two examples completed as a class.
• Have students complete the next row of the chart, filling in one effect for “the alarm clock did not ring.”
• Briefly discuss student answers.
• Have students complete the rest of Activity Page 2.4 for homework.

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

- Identify changes in British policy toward the colonies, including the increased taxation as a result of the French and Indian War
- Explain that changes in British policy toward the colonies and increased taxation contributed greatly to the discontent that the colonists felt toward Great Britain
- Explain that, with each move by the British government and response by the colonists, the colonies came closer to declaring their independence

Partner: Chapter 2 “Trouble Is Brewing” 40 minutes

Review the Chapter 5 minutes

- Tell students they will reread Chapter 2, “Trouble Is Brewing.”

- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

- Remind students they read about growing tensions between British subjects living in Boston, Massachusetts, and the British government in London, England. Cite the Boston Massacre and the Boston Tea Party as examples of discontent.

- You may wish to review the following vocabulary words before you reread the chapter:
1. liberty, n. freedom (10)
2. repeal, v. to undo or withdraw a law (repealed) (10)
3. eliminate, v. to get rid of something (eliminated) (10)
4. indirectly, adv. not having a clear and direct connection (11)
5. boycott, v. to protest something by refusing to buy, use, or participate (11)
6. musket, n. a long, heavy gun that is loaded at the muzzle (13)
7. engraving, n. a design or lettering made by cutting into the surface of wood, stone, or metal (13)
8. accurate, adj. without mistakes; having the right facts (13)
9. patriot, n. a person who supports and defends his or her country (patriots, patriotism) (14)

• Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if they forget its meaning.
• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

> Read to better understand the roles various people played as the colonists’ discontent with Great Britain grew.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand The Big Question before reading the chapter.

> Who were the Sons of Liberty, and what form of protest did they lead in Boston Harbor?

Read “Trouble Is Brewing”

Pair students to read and discuss the chapter. We encourage you to differentiate assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Have students make a note of vocabulary, phrases, or concepts they do not understand, noting the page number, so they may seek clarification. As students read, circulate among the class, monitoring students’ focus and progress.

At this point in the school year, some or all of your students are likely ready for the challenge of reading the entire chapter independently to themselves, especially since this lesson is a reread of the chapter read as a whole group yesterday. We encourage you to differentiate assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 3.1 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

- Review the correct answers to Activity Page 3.1 with the whole class. You may wish to select different students to read each question and share their response, including the page number where the answer was located.

1. There, angry crowds took their frustration out on tax collectors.
   » Answers may vary, but should include that people got mad at the tax collectors because they thought the taxes were unfair, and the tax collectors were the ones who had to enforce payment of them. (page 10)

2. And they thought the new tax on tea was every bit as unfair as the old tax on paper.
   » Answers may vary, but should include that they believed the tax on tea was just as unfair as the taxes on paper had been. (page 11)

3. In 1768, in response to the protests about the new taxes, the British government sent soldiers to Boston to keep an eye on the Sons of Liberty.
   » Answers may vary, but should include that the British government sent soldiers to Boston to spy on the Sons of Liberty. (page 12)

4. The situation became more serious when even more people poured into the streets.
   » Answers may vary, but should include that the situation got worse because more angry people came out into the streets. (page 12)

5. Soon a crowd of 300 angry Bostonians was pressing in on the outnumbered British soldiers.
   » Answers may vary, but should include that a group of angry Bostonians surrounded the British soldiers. (page 12)

- Tell students they will take home Activity Page 3.2 to read for homework.

Note

Question 1 relates to The Big Question of the chapter
Word Work: Accurate

1. In the chapter you read, “It was not an entirely accurate picture of what had happened, but many colonists thought it was.”
2. Say the word accurate with me.
3. Accurate means without mistakes, or having the right facts.
4. Sam gave accurate answers to all 10 of his math problems.
5. What are some other examples where it is important to provide accurate information? Be sure to use the word accurate in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “My cousin’s accurate directions helped me find her house without any trouble.”]
6. What part of speech is the word accurate?
   - adjective

[Use a Synonyms and Antonyms activity for follow-up.] What does accurate mean? What are some synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of accurate? [Prompt students to provide words like exact, precise, and right.] What are some antonyms, or words that have the opposite meaning, of accurate? [Prompt students to provide words like incorrect, wrong, invalid, and faulty.] As students discuss synonyms and antonyms, guide them to use the word accurate in a complete sentence: “An antonym of accurate is inaccurate."

WRITING

Identify Causes and Effects

Review Cause and Effect 5 minutes

- Remind students they learned about cause and effect in the previous lesson. Reference the Cause and Effect Poster on display in the classroom.

- Tell students today they will use the content from Chapter 1 of the Reader to identify the causes and effects surrounding Britain’s imposition of the Stamp Act.

Sequence Events 15 minutes

- Have students turn to Activity Page 3.3. Tell them they will sequence events from Chapter 1 to draft a cause and effect paragraph. Have students reference Chapter 1 if they need help sequencing the events.

- Give students a few minutes to sequence the events. Then, using the Answer Key provided in Teacher Resources, review answers to Activity Page 3.3 to ensure all students have the correct chronology.

Materials

- Activity Page 3.3
- Answer Key for Activity Page 3.3

- Transition Words Poster
Identify Causes and Effects

20 minutes

- Have a student read the instructions for the next section of the activity page, Identify Causes and Effects. Review the completed example (#1) to ensure that all students understand the instructions.

- Give students time to complete the remaining examples on their own. Then, using the Answer Key, briefly review the answers.

- Direct students’ attention to the Transition Words Poster you prepared in advance. Point out that this chart also appears on their activity page. Have a student read the last set of directions on the activity page aloud, including the chart.

- Have a student go back and read statement #1 and identify the transition word. (because)

- Ask students to circle the word because and tell them this word provides a clue to identifying why something happened, or the cause.

  > Because the British and the French wanted to gain control of land in North America, they fought each other in the French and Indian War.

- Have students identify and circle cause and effect transition words in the remaining sentences.

- Circulate and check in with students, providing guidance and support as needed.

Wrap Up

5 minutes

- Tell students they will use completed Activity Page 3.3 to draft a cause and effect paragraph for homework. They will use their own words to explain how the French and Indian War eventually led to the Stamp Act and colonial protests. Encourage students to use cause and effect transition words in their drafts.

- Have students complete Activity Page 3.4 for homework, using Activity Page 3.3 as a guide.

Lesson 4

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

- Explain that the new laws called the Intolerable Acts contributed to the discontent the colonists felt toward Great Britain
- Explain that the colonists sent representatives from twelve of the thirteen colonies to Philadelphia to meet at the First Continental Congress
- Explain that the Revolutionary War began in Concord and Lexington in April 1775

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain the British government’s response to the Boston Tea Party and the colonists’ reaction.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will have reviewed the correct use of commas and quotation marks.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use words with the root port correctly.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to draft an introductory paragraph for a cause and effect essay.

Review

- Ask students the following questions to review Chapter 2, “Trouble Is Brewing.”
  - Who were the group of protesters, formed in response to the Stamp Act, who shared in the belief that the British were treating colonists unfairly?
    » the Sons of Liberty
  - Why weren’t the Sons of Liberty satisfied when the British government repealed the Stamp Act?
    » because the British imposed new taxes, including a tax on British tea
  - What famous protest did the Sons of Liberty lead in reaction to the new tax on tea?
    » the Boston Tea Party

Introduce the Chapter

- Tell students they will read Chapter 3, “The Fight Begins.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Have a student read the title aloud.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is intolerable.
- Have them find the word on page 21 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate intolerable, and then have a student read the definition.
- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun—n.; verb—v.; adjective—adj.; adverb—adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
- Have students reference Activity Page 4.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  - The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. intolerable, adj. too painful or hard to be accepted (21)
2. grievance, n. a complaint resulting from being treated unfairly; a reason for complaining about a situation (grievances) (22)
3. import, v. to bring in a product from another country to be sold (importing) (22)
4. export, v. to send out a product to another country to be sold (exporting) (22)
5. stockpile, v. to collect materials to use in the future (weapons, food, etc.) (stockpiling) (22)
6. belfry, n. a bell tower at the top of a church (24)
7. rebel, n. a person who fights against a government (rebels) (26)
8. volley, n. the firing of a large number of weapons at the same time (26)
9. musket ball, n. ammunition shot from muskets (musket balls) (28)
10. revolutionary, adj. leading to, or relating to, a complete change (28)
• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn how the British Parliament angered the colonists further, and what the colonists did in response.

Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

What was the Revolutionary War, and what were the causes that led to it?

Read “The Fight Begins”

Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
When news of the Boston Tea Party reached Great Britain in 1774, many people were shocked. Many members of the British government were furious. They made a decision to punish the people of Boston.

Over the next few months, Parliament approved a series of new laws. The Boston Port Act declared that Boston Harbor would remain closed until the colonists paid for the tea that had been destroyed. No ships were allowed to enter or leave without British permission.
The Massachusetts Government Act declared that the people of the colony were now under stricter control in terms of meetings and electing their own officials. From that point on, the British king and his ministers would make all decisions about which colonists would serve in important positions in Massachusetts.

The Administration of Justice Act made new rules for trials. Bostonians accused of a crime would no longer be tried in Boston by fellow Bostonians. Instead, they would be sent either to another colony, such as Canada, or even to London. They would also be tried in a special Admiralty court by a judge handpicked by the king.

The Quartering Act declared that the colonists had to provide quarters, or temporary places to live, for the British soldiers stationed in the colonies. The colonists also had to provide supplies such as food, bedding, candles, and firewood. This was significant because the British government was getting ready to send more soldiers to Boston.

How did British Parliament punish the colonists for the Boston Tea Party?

» British Parliament implemented a series of new laws—the Boston Port Act (closing of Boston Harbor until colonists paid for destroyed tea); the Massachusetts Government Act (meetings and the election of officials were under British control); the Administration of Justice Act (trials would now be held outside Boston and judges chosen by the king); and the Quartering Act (colonists had to house and provide supplies to British soldiers).

[Note: It is not necessary or expected that students remember the specific names of each act. What is important is that they get an overall sense that Britain decided to punish the Massachusetts colonists, and that they be able to give at least one example of what Britain did.]

How do you predict the colonists in Massachusetts responded to these new laws? Support your answer with information you have read in earlier chapters.

» Answers may vary, but should be supported by evidence from the text.
A The people of Massachusetts were very angry about these new laws. How could they make a living if goods could not be shipped in or out of Boston? How would they get a fair trial if they were sent to faraway courts? And how could they trust the government if all of the top officials were selected by the king? The Bostonians called these new laws the Intolerable Acts. They would not stand for them!

B Support [Reread the sentence How could they make a living if goods could not be shipped in or out of Boston?] Make a living means to earn money in order to live. Goods are products that people make or sell to earn money.

C Inferential Why did the people of Massachusetts call the new laws the Intolerable Acts?

» They called them the Intolerable Acts because they could not tolerate them; they did not want to stand for, or accept, them.

Support If students do not recall what the core vocabulary word intolerable means, explain the root word in intolerable is tolerate, which means “to stand for, or accept.” The prefix in– means “not.” Intolerable means “not able to stand for, or accept.” Another way to phrase the definition of intolerable is “too painful or hard to be accepted.”

D Literal How did the other colonies respond when they heard about the new laws Britain imposed on Massachusetts?

» They were angry and thought the same could happen to them. Twelve of the 13 colonies decided to send representatives to a meeting in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, known as the First Continental Congress. The First Continental Congress met in September 1774. Of the 13 colonies, only Georgia did not attend.
A [Read pages 22 and 23 aloud.]

B Support Let’s unpack what Patrick Henry was saying. [Read or ask a student to read each line of the speech, then pause to discuss the meaning of his words.]

Our brethren are already in the field!
» Our brothers, or fellow colonists, are already having to endure unfair treatment by the British.

Why stand we here idle?
» Why aren’t we doing anything? We must do something!

Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery?
» Is it worth living under unfair rule just to have a quiet, peaceful life?

C Support What three things did people in Massachusetts start to do to prepare to fight for their liberty? Support your answer with evidence from the text.
» organized militias; stockpiled, or stored, guns; and prepared for war

Complaints and Grievances

The 56 members of the First Continental Congress drafted a list of complaints and grievances against the king and his government. They agreed that all 13 colonies would stop importing goods from Great Britain—not just tea and other items that were taxed, but all British goods. They also agreed that, unless Parliament repealed the Intolerable Acts, the colonies would stop exporting colonial goods to Great Britain.

Some colonists began to think a war was unavoidable. They thought it was time to start stockpiling muskets and gunpowder. Others believed that it was not too late to patch up relations with the king and his government.

Representatives from Virginia debated this issue in March 1775. Several representatives argued that Virginia should do whatever it could to keep the peace and restore good relations with the king. But others felt that it was too late for that. A country lawyer named Patrick Henry proposed that it was time to stop talking about peace and to start fighting for liberty:

“Gentlemen may cry, Peace, Peace—but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! . . . Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? . . . Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!”
—Patrick Henry

Many people in Massachusetts agreed with Patrick Henry. They were organizing militias, stockpiling guns, and preparing to fight. Some of the Massachusetts militiamen were known as minutemen. These special troops were created to be ready to fight at a moment’s notice!
The British government knew that these preparations were underway. In response, they sent a large army to Boston. British generals were told to confiscate any weapons they could find. They were also told to find and arrest the biggest troublemakers among the Sons of Liberty—Samuel Adams and John Hancock.

In April 1775, the British tried to capture some weapons that members of the patriot movement had hidden in Concord, west of Boston. Approximately 700 British soldiers marched out of Boston on the night of April 18, hoping to surprise the militia in Concord. But the patriots were watching every move the British soldiers made.

D Support Confiscate means to take by force.
The Night Rider

One of the men keeping an eye on the British was Paul Revere. He had heard that the British soldiers were getting ready to march out to Concord. He knew there were only two ways to get to Concord from Boston. One was to march there on foot. The other was to cross the Charles River in boats and then march the rest of the way. It was not possible to tell which way the British would go until they set out. Revere came up with a clever plan. He told a friend to hang lanterns in the belfry of the North Church in Boston. If the soldiers left Boston on foot, Revere’s comrade was to hang one lantern; if they set off in boats, he was to hang two lanterns.

On the night of April 18, 1775, Revere’s friend ran up to the belfry and hung two lanterns. Then, Revere and several other patriots jumped into action. Revere got into a rowboat and rowed across the Charles River—right past a British warship! Once he made it across, he jumped onto a horse and set off along the same road the soldiers would be taking. Paul Revere and other riders, including William Dawes and Samuel Prescott, rode through the night to awaken the sleeping colonists.

Paul Revere, well-known for the popular cry, “The British are coming!” never actually spoke those words, let alone yelled them into the darkness. Today, historians believe it is more likely he quietly warned colonists, “The regulars are coming out!” Paul Revere never made it to Concord that night. But he did ride to Lexington to warn Samuel Adams and John Hancock, who were wanted by the British and in hiding there.

Because of Revere and the other riders, people who lived along the road knew the British soldiers were headed toward Concord. Hundreds of minutemen grabbed their guns and prepared to defend their homeland.
C [Have a student read the caption on page 25 aloud.]

D Inferential This is an artist’s depiction of the “Midnight Ride of Paul Revere.” We now know this image is not entirely historically accurate. What evidence in the text suggests that the image may not be historically accurate?

» Answers may vary, but may include that Paul Revere quietly warned colonists the British soldiers were coming; he was not the only rider.

This painting of Paul Revere’s ride was created more than 100 years after the night of April 18, 1775. The scene depicted is not an entirely accurate account of what happened. However it does convey the tension and drama of the events that took place that night.
[Have students read page 26 and the main text on page 28 silently, ending at “. . . the Revolutionary War had begun!”]

[Reread the third paragraph on page 26 aloud.]

Evaluative People now call the event described in this paragraph as the “shot heard ‘round the world.” Why do you think this event is called that?

» Answers may vary, but may include that everyone in the world must have heard about what happened because it is what started the Revolutionary War.

The Shot Heard ’Round the World

It was April 19, 1775. In Lexington, a town on the road to Concord, 80 militiamen lined up in formation. They had their guns with them, but they were not planning to fire on the redcoats. After all, a war had not been declared. Still, they knew there was a chance fighting might break out, and they wanted to be ready if it did.

As the British approached, John Parker, the leader of the Lexington militia, told his men, “Stand your ground; don’t fire unless fired upon, but if they mean to have a war, let it begin here.”

A British officer told the armed men to go home. According to one report, he shouted, “Lay down your arms, you rebels!” However, as the militiamen were turning to go, a shot rang out.

Who fired that shot? Even today nobody knows for sure. The British soldiers thought the militiamen fired it. However, Parker and his men said later that they did not. The shot may have been fired by someone who was not part of Parker’s militia. He may have been firing into the air to sound an alarm. In any case, the soldiers thought they were under attack. They fired a volley and—in a matter of seconds—guns were flashing and smoking on both sides.
A [Note: If there is inadequate time to complete this chapter, stop at the end of the main text on page 28, omitting the two text boxes, “Georgia Stays Home” and “Two Very Important Patriots.”]

B [Have a student read the box titled “Georgia Stays Home” on page 28 aloud.]

C Inferential Why did Georgia choose not to send a representative to the First Continental Congress?
   » Many Georgians did not want to get involved with the revolution because they believed they had done well under the king’s rule.

Seven members of the militia were killed in Lexington that day, and nine more were wounded. On the other side, only one British soldier was wounded.

Next, the British soldiers marched on to Concord. They searched Concord and found a few cannons and some musket balls. By this time, word of the fighting was spreading rapidly. Hundreds of men made their way to Concord, ready to fight. One troop of militiamen met the regulars on the outskirts of Concord at North Bridge. The British fired. The militiamen fired back.

Soon the British commander decided to march his troops back to Boston. However, as the British soldiers made their way back, militiamen shot at them. The militiamen hid behind trees and stone walls. They fired on the British soldiers, one or two at a time. By the time the British made it back to Boston that night, 73 soldiers had been killed and another 174 had been wounded. As for the colonists, 49 had died and 39 had been wounded. The colonists had stood up to the British, and the British had failed to capture Samuel Adams and John Hancock. There was no going back—the Revolutionary War had begun!

Georgia Stays Home

Georgia was the only colony that did not send representatives to the First Continental Congress that met in Philadelphia in 1774. Though Georgians also opposed British trade regulations, many hesitated to join the revolutionary movement that emerged in the colonies. Many Georgians believed they had prospered under royal rule.
Two Very Important Patriots

Samuel Adams

In 1765, Samuel Adams was elected to the Massachusetts colonial assembly and became the leader of opposition to the British government. As a delegate to the First and Second Continental Congress, Adams fought for colonial independence. Though Harvard-educated, Adams was not part of the social elite who typically held government positions at the time. Several of Adams's acquaintances helped to give him a gentlemanly appearance, more befitting a political leader of the time. For his first trip to Philadelphia, one friend provided him with financial assistance and another gave him the outfit he wore to the meeting.

John Hancock

John Hancock's name tops the list of signatures on the Declaration of Independence. His prominent signature is familiar to anyone who has seen an image of that document. John Hancock was a wealthy Boston merchant and patriot leader of the American Revolution. Following the Boston Massacre in 1770, John Hancock was one of the committee members chosen to go to the governor to demand the removal of British troops from the city. At the funeral of Crispus Attucks and other victims, Hancock delivered an address that led to an order for his arrest.

D [Have a student read page 29 aloud.]

E Inferential In what ways was Samuel Adams different from other political leaders of the time?

» Answers may vary, but may include he was not part of the social elite who typically held government positions at the time; he did not have a refined, gentlemanly appearance; he did not have nice clothes; he did not have a lot of money.

F Literal Besides signing the Declaration of Independence, what else did you learn about John Hancock from this text?

» Answers may vary, but may include he was a wealthy Boston merchant, a patriot leader of the American Revolution; he demanded the removal of British troops from Boston; a speech he gave at Crispus Attucks's funeral led to an order for his arrest.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

10 minutes

• Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Summarize the events leading to the beginning of the Revolutionary War, beginning with the British response to the Boston Tea Party.
   » Britain implemented a series of new laws (the Intolerable Acts); the First Continental Congress drafted a list of complaints and grievances against Britain; many people in Massachusetts organized militias, stockpiled guns, and prepared to fight; British soldiers were sent to confiscate weapons from the Sons of Liberty; someone fired a shot that prompted shooting on both sides (the shot heard 'round the world), thus starting the Revolutionary War.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 1.3 as you refer to Timeline I. Use the following questions to guide students in adding events to their timelines as you do so with the displayed timeline:

1. What name did the colonists give to the new set of laws imposed by Great Britain in 1774?
   » the Intolerable Acts

2. What was the name of the group of colonial representatives who met together in Philadelphia in September 1774 in response to the trouble in Boston?
   » the First Continental Congress

3. What important events took place near Boston on April 19, 1775 that began the Revolutionary War?
   » the Battles of Lexington and Concord

• Tell students they will take home Activity Page 4.2 to read for fluency and complete for homework.

Note
Question 1 relates to The Big Question of the chapter.

Note
Students will have the opportunity to cut out and assemble their timelines during the Pausing Point days.
Word Work: Intolerable

1. In the chapter you read, “The Bostonians called these new laws the Intolerable Acts.”

2. Say the word intolerable with me.

3. Intolerable means too painful or hard to be accepted.

4. It is intolerable to think of killing elephants for their ivory tusks.

5. What are other examples of something that you think is intolerable? Be sure to use the word intolerable in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ is intolerable because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word intolerable?
   » adjective

[Use a Sharing activity for follow-up.] Turn to the person sitting next to you and share about a time when you found a situation intolerable. Be sure to use the word intolerable in your discussion.

GRAMMAR

Review Quotation Marks

- Remind students they have learned to use commas with quotation marks. Refer to the Quotation Marks Poster you prepared in advance. Point out the following:
  - Quotation marks are used to show exactly what a person says or has said. (dialogue) Have a different student read each example. Remind students that punctuation marks fall inside quotation marks, and that a comma is needed to separate the speaker from what is being said. Also point out that the meaning of the sentence does not change depending upon whether the quotation begins or ends the sentence.

  - Quotation marks are used when copying exact words from a written text. Have a different student read each example. Remind students that punctuation marks fall inside quotation marks, and that a comma is needed to separate the text from what the text says.

  - When a quotation is split within one sentence, quotation marks indicate which part of the sentence is being quoted. Have a student read the example. Have students point out the quoted text and explain how they know it is the quoted text.

- Have students turn to page 25 of their Reader and read the caption for the image.

Materials

- Quotation Marks Poster
- The Road to Independence
- Activity Page 4.3
Tell students they will write quotations about what is happening in the image. Tell them they need to write at least three quotations.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 4.3. Review the directions and have students complete the activity page in pairs.

MORPHOLOGY

Practice Root port

- Review the definition of root. (A root is the main element of a word that forms the basis of its meaning. A prefix or suffix added to the root can change the meaning.)

- Briefly review the root port, reminding students that it means “to carry.”

- Tell students you will read a sentence that is missing a word. Then, students should choose the word from the left column that best completes the sentence on the right.

- Practice with the first sentence.

1. import, export, support
   The colonists would ____ or send goods from the colonies to be sold in Great Britain.

   - Ask students which word best fits the blank from the choices given. (export)

   Support If students have difficulty, ask which words they could eliminate from the list to narrow the options. Remind students of word meanings if necessary.

- Continue in this manner with the remaining items as time permits.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 4.4. Review the directions and complete the first sentence as a group. Have students complete the rest of the activity page independently.

- Collect Activity Page 4.4 to review and grade at a later time.
Draft an Introductory Paragraph

Review Cause and Effect Paragraphs

• Have students turn to Activity Page 3.4, which they completed for homework.

• Ask a student to read his or her completed paragraph aloud. It should be a variation of the following:

  – The British and the French fought the French and Indian War because they both wanted control of land in North America. The British won the war, but they were left with enormous debts and needed money desperately. The British government felt the colonists should help pay the debts since some of the money was spent on their protection, so Parliament passed the Stamp Act to tax the colonists. Because they had no representation in the British government, the colonists felt the Stamp Act was unfair and protested the taxes.

• Tell students they will write an essay about the causes and effects leading up to the American Revolution. Explain they will follow a five-paragraph structure for their essays, including an introductory paragraph, three body paragraphs, and a concluding paragraph.

• Tell students the paragraph they wrote for homework will serve as the basis for the introductory paragraph in their cause and effect essay.

Draft an Introductory Paragraph

• Tell students that today they will copy their paragraph from Activity Page 3.4 onto paper, checking for proper punctuation and spelling as they write.

• Circulate and check in with students as they write, providing them with guidance and support in transferring the paragraph and checking spelling and punctuation.

• Either collect the papers or have designated folders in the classroom to create a portfolio of student drafts throughout this unit.

TAKE-HOME MATERIAL

Reading

• Have students take home Activity Page 4.2 to complete for homework.
Lesson 5

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

✓ Explain that the new laws called the Intolerable Acts contributed to the discontent that the colonists felt toward Great Britain
✓ Explain that the colonists sent representatives from twelve of the thirteen colonies to Philadelphia to meet at the First Continental Congress
✓ Explain that the Revolutionary War began in Concord and Lexington in April 1775

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to compare the historical details of the events of Paul Revere’s ride with the account in the poem “Paul Revere’s Ride.”

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to respond to a writing prompt to plan for their first body paragraph.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Read closely to examine the author’s words, sentences, and literary devices for a deeper understanding of “The Fight Begins” and the poem “Paul Revere’s Ride.”

Writing

- Read through Vignette I on Activity Page 5.2 and decide how you will assign roles to students. You will need one narrator, five students to play members of Parliament, one student to play Paul Revere, and eight students to play members of the Sons of Liberty. All remaining students will be the chorus.
Fluency (optional)

- If students were assigned a selection from the Fluency Supplement, determine which students will read the selection aloud and when. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

READING

Review

5 minutes

- Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, review student responses to Activity Page 4.2, which was assigned for homework.

Review the Chapter

5 minutes

- Tell students they will reread an excerpt from Chapter 3, “The Fight Begins,” and an excerpt from the poem, “Paul Revere’s Ride,” by Henry Longfellow.

- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read closely to examine the author’s words, sentences, and literary devices for a deeper understanding of “The Fight Begins” and the poem “Paul Revere’s Ride.”

Close Reading

There are many ways for students to respond to the questions. Vary how you elicit students' responses to promote student engagement. For example:

- Have students work in pairs. Following each question, direct students to consult with their partner about the correct response before one student responds.

- Have students work in small groups of three or four students. Following each question, direct students to consult with others in their group about the correct response before one student responds.

- Following a question, have all students provide a written response before one student responds orally.

Read “The Fight Begins” and “From ‘Paul Revere’s Ride’”

20 minutes

Read the title of the chapter as a class, “The Fight Begins.” As you read portions of the chapter, pause to explain or clarify the text at each point indicated.

The Night Rider

One of the men keeping an eye on the British was Paul Revere. He had heard that the British soldiers were getting ready to march out to Concord. He knew there were only two ways to get to Concord from Boston. One was to march there on foot. The other was to cross the Charles River in boats and then march the rest of the way. It was not possible to tell which way the British would go until they set out. Revere came up with a clever plan. He told a friend to hang lanterns in the belfry of the North Church in Boston. If the soldiers left Boston on foot, Revere’s comrade was to hang one lantern; if they set off in boats, he was to hang two lanterns.

On the night of April 18, 1775, Revere’s friend ran up to the belfry and hung two lanterns. Then, Revere and several other patriots jumped into action. Revere got into a rowboat and rowed across the Charles River—right past a British warship! Once he made it across, he jumped onto a horse and set off along the same road the soldiers would be taking. Paul Revere and other riders, including William Dawes and Samuel Prescott, rode through the night to awaken the sleeping colonists.

Paul Revere, well-known for the popular cry, “The British are coming!” never actually spoke those words, let alone yelled them into the darkness. Today, historians believe it is more likely he quietly warned colonists, “The regulars are coming out!” Paul Revere never made it to Concord that night. But he did ride to Lexington to warn Samuel Adams and John Hancock, who were wanted by the British and in hiding there.

Because of Revere and the other riders, people who lived along the road knew the British soldiers were headed toward Concord. Hundreds of minutemen grabbed their guns and prepared to defend their homeland.
[Have students turn to Activity Page 5.1. Tell them they will read a poem that relates to the historical events in the Reader. Explain that Henry Longfellow wrote the poem “Paul Revere’s Ride” 85 years after the actual ride by Paul Revere and others as a way to inspire American patriotism.]

This painting of Paul Revere’s ride was created more than 100 years after the night of April 18, 1775. The scene depicted is not an entirely accurate account of what happened. However, it does convey the tension and drama of the events that took place that night.
• Have students read the poem excerpts (three stanzas) silently. Then have a student read the title, author, date, and first stanza aloud.

Support Remind students of the following literary terms used for poetry. A stanza is a group of lines in a poem separated from other stanzas by a space; rhyme is the repetition of ending sounds; end rhyme is when words at the end of lines rhyme.

From “Paul Revere's Ride”
Henry Wadsworth Longfellow
Written in 1860
1. Listen, my children, and you shall hear
2. Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
3. On the eighteenth of April, in Seventy-Five;
4. Hardly a man is now alive
5. Who remembers that famous day and year.

1. COMP Evaluative What does the title “From ‘Paul Revere's Ride’” mean?
   » It is an excerpt from a larger body of work.

2. COMP Inferential This poem was first published in a literary magazine, so the original intended audience was not children. Why do you think the poem begins, “Listen, my children . . .” if it is not addressing children?
   » Answers may vary, but may include that it communicates the importance of this historic event to future generations.

3. COMP Inferential What does it mean that “Hardly a man is now alive / Who remembers that famous day and year”?
   » This poem was written a long time after that event, so not many people who were alive when the event happened were still alive when the poem was written.

Support Paul Revere's ride took place in 1775 and Henry Longfellow wrote the poem in 1860, so few people who had witnessed Paul Revere's ride would have been alive when the poem was written (85 years later). It is common for historical events to be incorporated into literary poems and stories.

4. LIT Evaluative Identify the rhyme scheme of this stanza.
   » AABBA

Support Remind students that rhyme scheme refers to the arrangement of rhymes in a poem. For example, ABAB indicates that the first and third lines rhyme, and the second and fourth lines rhyme.

• Have a student read the second stanza aloud.
He said to his friend, “If the British march
By land or sea from the town to-night,
Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry-arch
Of the North-Church-tower, as a signal-light, —
One if by land, and two if by sea;
And I on the opposite shore will be,
Ready to ride and spread the alarm
Through every Middlesex village and farm,
For the country-folk to be up and to arm.

1. SYN Inferential To whom does He refer to in the first line, “He said to his friend, ‘If the British march . . .’”? Use page 24 in the Reader to help determine who “He” is.
   - He refers to Paul Revere. The Reader states, “One of the men keeping an eye on the British was Paul Revere. He had heard that the British soldiers were getting ready to march out to Concord . . . Revere came up with a clever plan. He told a friend to hang lanterns in the belfry of the North Church in Boston.”

2. COMP Literal In the Reader, you read that there were two ways for the British soldiers to get to Concord from Boston. What were they?
   - March on foot, or cross the Charles River by boat and then march the rest of the way

3. SYN Inferential Why, then, do you think the poem says, “One if by land, and two if by sea”?
   - Revere’s friend was to hang one lantern in the church belfry if the soldiers left Boston on foot (by land) and he was to hang two lanterns in the church belfry if the soldiers left Boston by boat (by water, across the Charles River). The term sea represents that they would be coming by water, but not literally the ocean. [You might point out that sea rhymes with the word be.]

4. LIT Evaluative What is the rhyme scheme of this stanza?
   - ABABCCDDDD
• Have a student read the first line of the third stanza aloud.

1 Meanwhile, impatient to mount and ride,

1. COMP Inferential To whom does the poem refer when it says “Meanwhile, impatient to mount and ride,” and how do you know?
   » The poem refers to Paul Revere. We know this because in the previous stanza, Paul Revere says, “I on the opposite shore will be / Ready to ride and spread the alarm.”

• Have a student read the second line of the third stanza aloud.

2 Booted and spurred, with a heavy stride,

1. SYN Inferential What does it mean to say “Booted and spurred, with a heavy stride”?
   » At this point in the poem, Paul Revere, wearing his boots with spurs, is pacing impatiently back and forth.
   Support Spurs are pointed objects on the back of a rider’s boots that the rider presses into the horse’s sides to make the horse run faster.

• Have a student read the third line of the third stanza aloud.

3 On the opposite shore walked Paul Revere.

1. COMP Inferential Where was Paul Revere according to the poem?
   » He was on the opposite side of the Charles River, waiting for the signal in the belfry.

• Have a student read lines 4–6 of the third stanza aloud.

4 Now he patted his horse’s side,
5 Now gazed on the landscape far and near,
6 Then impetuous stamped the earth,
1. VOC Inferential Impetuous means done without thinking; acting in an emotional way. What does it mean to say “Then impetuous stamped the earth”? [You may want to demonstrate by stamping your foot loudly.]
   » He is getting anxious; he stamped his foot on the ground in an emotional way.

- Have a student read lines 7–11 of the third stanza aloud.

7 And turned and tightened his saddle-girth;
8 But mostly he watched with eager search
9 The belfry-tower of the old North Church,
10 As it rose above the graves on the hill,
11 Lonely and spectral and somber and still.

1. COMP Inferential How does Paul Revere feel as he waits for the signal to warn the colonists? Include examples from the parts of the poem read so far to support your answer.
   » Answers may vary, but may include impatient, nervous, eager; “Meanwhile, impatient to mount and ride” or “But mostly he watched with eager search.”

2. VOC Inferential Spectral means ghostlike; somber means sad and serious. Why might the belfry be described as lonely, spectral, somber, and still?
   » These words convey the emptiness of the belfry as Paul Revere watched it eagerly, waiting to see if one or two lanterns appeared. Because Revere was eager to see the light of one or two lanterns, he must have been very aware of the stillness, emptiness, quietness, and ghostlike nature of the dark tower.

- Have a student read lines 12–16 of the third stanza aloud.

12 And lo! as he looks, on the belfry’s height,
13 A glimmer, and then a gleam of light!
14 He springs to the saddle, the bridle he turns,
15 But lingers and gazes, till full on his sight
16 A second lamp in the belfry burns!
1. COMP Inferential Why do you think Paul Revere springs to the saddle but then lingers and gazes?

   When Paul Revere sees the first lantern in the belfry, he knows it is time for him to alert the colonists about the British soldiers on the way, so he springs, or jumps quickly, onto his horse. However, he also lingers and gazes at the belfry to see whether his friend will hang a second lantern.

Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

10 minutes

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Based on what you learned in the Reader about Paul Revere’s ride, do you think the poem excerpt is historically accurate, meaning all of the details in the excerpt you read are exactly how they happened that night in 1775? Include examples from the Reader text and the poem to support your answer.

   Answers may vary, but examples of inaccuracies might include that the poem says Paul Revere was waiting on the opposite shore, however the Reader states he had to row across the Charles River; the poem mentions Paul Revere as the only rider that night; the Reader states that two other men, William Dawes and Samuel Prescott, accompanied Paul Revere; the poem implies that Revere rode all the way to Concord, however the Reader states that he rode to Lexington to warn Samuel Adams and John Hancock but never made it to Concord. Examples of accuracies might include the date of the event (April 18, 1775); the purpose of the ride was to warn the colonists to prepare for attack; and the fact that Paul Revere was successful in warning Samuel Adams and John Hancock.

   Support Authors take creative liberties when writing literary works. Although the poem is based on events that actually took place, many of the details may be embellished or not entirely factual. In fact, in the years after this poem was published, many people mistakenly believed it to be a factual account of what happened the night of April 18, 1775. However, historians now know it to be a memorable example of patriotism and a popular American legend.

2. Evaluative Think Pair Share Do you think people today would still remember Paul Revere if Henry Longfellow had never written the poem, “Paul Revere’s Ride”?

   Answers may vary, but should include evidence from the text.
Word Work: Revolutionary

1. In the chapter you read, “There was no going back—the Revolutionary War had begun!”
2. Say the word revolutionary with me.
3. Revolutionary means leading to, or relating to, a complete change.
4. Thomas Edison’s invention of the light bulb was revolutionary.
5. What are some other examples of revolutionary changes? Be sure to use the word revolutionary in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “______ was revolutionary because . . .”]
6. What part of speech is the word revolutionary?
   » adjective

[Use a Discussion activity for follow-up.] When the word revolutionary is used as a proper noun, like the Revolutionary War or the American Revolution, it should be capitalized. There have been many revolutions fought around the world, each one bringing about great change. Talk with your partner about the changes the colonists thought were worth fighting for, and why or why not these changes could be considered revolutionary. Be sure to use the word revolutionary in complete sentences as you discuss this with your partner.

Writing

Perform Vignette and Plan a Body Paragraph

Explain Vignette and Graphic Organizer

Remind students they will write an essay about the causes and effects leading up to the American Revolution and they have already written a draft about early disagreements between the British and the colonists for the introductory paragraph.

Tell students that today they will plan the first of three body paragraphs, each paragraph detailing additional causes of the Revolutionary War.

Explain that the content for each of the three body paragraphs will come directly from Chapters 2 and 3 of The Road to Independence. In preparation for drafting their first body paragraph, they will review the content by performing a vignette, or short scene from history.

Explain that after students perform the vignette, they will record key information from the vignette in a graphic organizer and respond to a writing prompt.

Materials

- Activity Pages 5.2, 5.3
- Answer Key for Activity Page 5.3
Enact Vignette and Plan a Body Paragraph

30 minutes

- Have students turn to Activity Page 5.2. Review the scenes and characters for Vignette I.

- Have students read the scenes silently.

- Assign roles for the vignette.

- Enact vignette.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 5.3. Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, complete the graphic organizer together.

- Review directions for the writing prompt on Activity Page 5.3. Have students respond to the prompt.

Wrap Up

5 minutes

- Have students share their responses to the writing prompt.
CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

✓ Explain that, with each move by the British government and response by the colonists, the colonies came closer to declaring their independence
✓ Identify a timeline for the fighting at Lexington, Concord, and Bunker Hill
✓ Explain that the battles at Lexington, Concord, and Bunker Hill occurred before the formal Declaration of Independence and organization of an army
✓ Identify Thomas Jefferson as the main writer of the Declaration of Independence
✓ Identify the Declaration of Independence as a key document in American history

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain that although the colonists were somewhat divided on the issue, the Second Continental Congress voted to declare independence from Great Britain and approved the Declaration of Independence as the document outlining reasons for their desire to be independent.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to make a subject and action verb agree in the present tense.
Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to distinguish between root words and words with the prefixes im- or in- (meaning “not”) and use those words correctly in sentences.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will be prepared to practice targeted spelling words.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn what was happening in Philadelphia while battles continued outside Boston.

- You may wish to prepare to display the digital version of Timeline II found in the digital components for this unit.

Grammar

- Prepare and display the following Subject-Action Verb Agreement Poster for the remainder of this unit. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

READING

Whole Group: Chapter 4 “Shots and Speeches”

Introduce the Chapter

5 minutes

- Tell students they will read Chapter 4, “Shots and Speeches.”

- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter. Have a student read the title aloud.

- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is retreated.

- Have them find the word on page 30 of the Reader. Explain that each word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate retreat, and then have a student read the definition.

- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun—n.; verb—v.; adjective—adj.; adverb—adv.

---

Materials

- The Road to Independence
- Activity Pages 6.1, 6.2
- Timeline II
– Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 6.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. retreat, v. to move back or away from danger or attack (retreated) (30)
2. casualty, n. a person killed or injured during battle (casualties) (30)
3. ammunition, n. bullets, shells, and other objects used as weapons shot from guns (30)
4. score, n. another term for 20; a group of 20 things (scores) (32)
5. fortify, v. to make a place safe from attack by building defenses (walls, trenches, etc.) (fortified) (32)
6. ambassador, n. the person who represents the government of his or her country in another country (ambassadors) (33)
7. declaration, n. an official statement of something (35)
8. abstain, v. to choose not to vote (abstained) (35)
9. levy, v. to use legal authority to demand and collect a fine or tax (levied) (38)
10. implication, n. a possible effect or result that may take place in the future (implications) (39)

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn what was happening in Philadelphia while battles continued outside Boston.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

What big decision did the colonists make as a result of shots fired in Massachusetts and speeches delivered in Pennsylvania?

Read “Shots and Speeches” 30 minutes

Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
What a difference a day makes! By the time the sun came up on April 20, 1775, the British army had retreated from Concord back to Boston. They had suffered more than 200 casualties and were now surrounded by militia.

Things went from bad to worse when the militia set up cannons on two hills overlooking Boston Harbor. One of the hills was called Breed's Hill. The other was Bunker Hill.

The British generals were worried. If the militia had cannons up on the hills, they might be able to fire on the British ships in the harbor below and sink some of them. The generals decided that they had to drive the militia off the hills.

It would take time to put their plan into action, but two months later, on June 17, 1775, the British launched an attack. Hundreds of redcoats began marching up Breed's Hill. The militiamen at the top of the hill waited nervously. A commander named William Prescott knew his men did not have much ammunition. They would have to make every shot count.

Chapter 4
Shots and Speeches

What big decision did the colonists make as a result of shots fired in Massachusetts and speeches delivered in Pennsylvania?
The militia waited . . . and waited . . . and waited. Finally, they opened fire. Scores of British troops fell to the ground. Surprisingly, the redcoats were forced to retreat. The British attacked a second time, but again they were beaten back. They attacked a third time—and this time they were successful. The militia had run out of ammunition. Now it was their turn to retreat.

Today this battle is known as the Battle of Bunker Hill. However, that is an unusual name for a battle that was actually fought on Breed’s Hill. It is possible that the confusion about the location of the battle was caused by a lack of familiarity with the area. The two hills are near each other. In fact, a British officer who mapped the battle site mixed them up on his map. It is also possible that Prescott had been ordered to fortify Bunker Hill but fortified Breed’s Hill instead when he realized that it was the more desirable spot.

In one sense, the Battle of Bunker Hill was a victory for the British. They achieved their goal: they drove the militia off the hill. In another sense, it felt more like a defeat. Is it really a victory if 1,000 men are killed and wounded compared to 500 on the other side? The British knew that they could not afford to continue to lose so many soldiers, even if the eventual outcome was a victory!

While the Battle of Bunker Hill was raging outside Boston, 56 representatives from all 13 colonies attended the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia. Thomas Jefferson came north to represent Virginia. John Adams, Samuel Adams, and John Hancock made their way south from Massachusetts. Benjamin Franklin, a native Bostonian living in Philadelphia, did not have far to travel.
The Making of a Government

As months of discussion and debate continued, some decisions were made. Many of these decisions were based on the belief that a peaceful settlement with Great Britain was now impossible. The Second Continental Congress began to function as a government. They made important decisions.

They issued paper money. They set up a postal service. They appointed generals and ambassadors. They agreed to the creation of an army and put George Washington in charge of it. This army would eventually be called the Continental Army.

Many members of the Second Continental Congress thought that the time had come for the colonies to declare their independence. They wanted the colonies to become a new nation. Others thought there might still be a way to patch things up with the British, and they wanted to try to do so. These members of the Continental Congress were not the only ones who were divided on the question of independence. The people of the colonies they represented were divided as well.

George Washington became commander of the Continental Army.

Evaluative Why were the members of the Second Continental Congress, as well as many of the people whom they represented, still undecided about going to war with Britain?

» Answers may vary, but should include that many were in favor of a peaceful solution, believing they could “patch things up” rather than go to war.
A Little Common Sense

One man who may have done more than anyone else to convince people to declare independence was Thomas Paine. Paine was an Englishman who had moved to Philadelphia only a few months earlier at the suggestion of Benjamin Franklin. Franklin thought Paine could help the patriot movement. Thomas Paine wrote a pamphlet called Common Sense. It was published in January 1776, while the Second Continental Congress was meeting.

Paine believed that monarchy was a foolish way to run a country. “Mankind being originally equals in the order of creation,” Paine wrote; so how could any one man claim the right to rule over millions?

Paine argued that the colonies should separate from Great Britain and form a republic—a government made up of elected representatives. He told his new countrymen they had an amazing opportunity—they could cast off government by kings and replace it with something much, much better:

“[W]e have every opportunity and every encouragement before us, to form the noblest, purest constitution on the face of the earth. We have it in our power to begin the world over again. . . . The birthday of a new world is at hand. . . . [F]or God’s sake, let us come to a final separation.”

—Thomas Paine

A [Have students read pages 34 and 35 silently.]

B Inferential Why did Thomas Paine believe “that monarchy was a foolish way to run a country”?
   » Answers may vary, but should include that he believed all men were equal and, therefore, should not be ruled by one man.

Support Paine was British, so he had firsthand experience with a monarchy.

C Literal What form of government did Thomas Paine recommend to replace a monarchy?
   » a republic; a government made up of elected representatives

D [Have a student read the excerpt from Common Sense at the bottom of page 34 aloud.]

E Inferential What does Paine mean when he calls for a final separation?
   » independence from Great Britain
F Literal What does the Declaration of Independence outline?

» Reasons for the colonists’ desire for independence from Great Britain.

» Thomas Jefferson

Common Sense became a bestseller. Copies were printed in all 13 colonies. Selections were printed in newspapers. Those who could read studied the pamphlet. Those who could not read listened while it was read aloud at an inn or coffeehouse. Common Sense convinced many colonists that it was, in fact, time to declare independence.

A Final Separation

By June 1776, most members of the Second Continental Congress were ready to vote for what Paine referred to as “a final separation.” Thomas Jefferson, a delegate from Virginia, was asked to write an official declaration of independence. His job was to explain why the colonies were breaking away from Great Britain, and why it was necessary for them to do so.

Benjamin Franklin and John Adams reviewed Jefferson's draft. They made a few changes, but overall they accepted Jefferson's work without reservation. On July 2, 1776, the members of the Second Continental Congress voted for independence. On July 4, 1776, the members voted again—this time on whether to accept Jefferson's Declaration of Independence as the document that outlined the reasons for their desire to be independent. No one voted against it. One colony, New York, abstained. The Declaration of Independence was approved!
In the first part of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson wrote specific ideals that he and his fellow colonists wholeheartedly believed to be true. “We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.” Jefferson believed that the role of government is to protect these rights. However, if a government failed to protect these rights—if it actually took these rights away—then the people had the right to rebel and set up a new government.

Inferential How does this image relate to the text? Where do you think the image is set and who do you think is pictured?

» Answers may vary, but should include the setting as the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia and some of the subjects of the painting as Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, and John Adams.
Jefferson argued that this was what the British government had done. In the second half of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson presented a long list of unacceptable actions the British government had taken. It had levied unfair taxes, taken away the right to trial by jury, and quartered British troops in colonial cities. For all of these reasons (and more), Jefferson wrote, the colonists had no other option but to declare independence from Great Britain.

Happy Birthday to Us!

Ever since 1776, the Fourth of July has been a national holiday in the United States. On this day every year, Americans celebrate their independence by watching fireworks, singing patriotic songs, and attending picnics and parades. Although it took another month to get all the signatures on the Declaration of Independence, Americans still celebrate Independence Day on July 4.
No Simple Solution

The colonists did not initially have a national army ready to fight on their behalf. The Continental Army, as such, did not yet exist. In June 1775, the Continental Congress appointed Virginian George Washington to create such an army. Until then, the army had consisted of a loosely organized collection of militia units from New England. The implications of what had happened at Lexington and Concord were far from clear in the days following the battles. While there had been plenty of outrage, it had taken over a year for independence to be declared. In fact, after the battles in Lexington and Concord, some patriots had created a flag called “The Continental Colors.” This flag featured the red and white stripes from the Sons of Liberty flag with an image of the British Union Jack superimposed on it, indicating some degree of continued loyalty to the British government.

B Challenge What evidence does the text give to show that people were still conflicted about declaring independence from Great Britain following the Battles of Lexington and Concord?

» The flag created following the Battles of Lexington and Concord represented both sides. The stripes represented a united desire to protect and defend the patriots’ liberties, and the Union Jack, or British flag, represented others’ continued loyalty to Great Britain.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

• Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Inferential What big decision did the colonists make as a result of shots fired outside Boston and speeches delivered in Philadelphia? How did they communicate this decision?
   - to declare independence from Great Britain; They chose Thomas Jefferson to write an official declaration of independence.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 6.2. Use the following questions to guide students in adding these events to their timelines as you do so with the displayed timeline:

1. What is the name of the battle in June 1775 that took place overlooking Boston Harbor in which the British drove back the colonial militia?
   - the Battle of Bunker Hill

2. What is the name of the pamphlet published by Thomas Paine in January 1776 to help convince colonists to declare independence from Great Britain?
   - Common Sense

3. On what date did members of the Second Continental Congress vote to adopt Jefferson’s Declaration of Independence?
   - July 4, 1776

   Challenge How many years passed between when the British repealed the Stamp Act and when the Second Continental Congress approved the Declaration of Independence? Refer to your timeline to determine the answer.
   - 10 years (1766–1776)
Word Work: Fortify

1. In the chapter you read, “It is also possible that Prescott had been ordered to fortify Bunker Hill but fortified Breed’s Hill instead when he realized that it was the more desirable spot.”

2. Say the word fortify with me.

3. Fortify means to make a place safe by building defenses (walls, trenches, etc.).

4. During the Middle Ages, lords fortified their castles by building moats around them.

5. What are some other ways people might fortify a place? Be sure to use the word fortify in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “You could fortify a building by . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word fortify?

   » verb

[Use a Synonyms activity for follow-up.] What does the word fortify mean? What are some synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of fortify? [Prompt students to provide words like strengthen and reinforce.] With a partner, create a sentence for each synonym of fortify discussed.

GRAMMAR

Introduce Subject-Action Verb Agreement

- Remind students that a sentence has two parts, a subject and a predicate. The subject tells who or what the sentence is about. The predicate tells what the subject is doing, did, or will do. Verbs are part of the predicate.

- Refer to the sentences on the board/chart paper:

   - Paul Revere warns the colonists.
   - The soldiers march toward Concord.

- In the first sentence, have students identify the subject (Paul Revere) and draw a single line under it. Have students identify the predicate (warns the colonists) and draw a double line under it. Have students identify the action verb (warns) and draw a circle around it.

Materials

- Subject-Action Verb Agreement Poster
- Subject-Action Verb Agreement Chart
- Activity Page 6.3
Support  An action verb shows action. Examples include run, jump, and read, etc.

- Follow this same process for the second sentence. (subject: the soldiers; predicate: march toward Concord; action verb: march)

- Refer to the Subject-Action Verb Agreement Poster you prepared in advance. Explain that the examples given on the poster are in the present tense (i.e., the action is happening in the present, or now).

- Point out the following:
  - If the subject is singular (the government) and the action verb ends in ‘s’, ‘sh’, ‘ch’, ‘x’, and ‘z’ (pass), add –es to the verb (passes).
  - If the subject is singular (Paul Revere) and the action verb ends with ‘y’ (spy), change the ‘y’ to an ‘i’ and add –es (spies).
  - Otherwise, if the subject is singular (the farmer), add –s to the verb (plows).
  - If the subject is plural (the colonists), it is not necessary to change the verb (fight).

- Direct students’ attention to the Subject-Action Verb Agreement Chart you prepared in advance. Tell students you will complete the chart as a class. Reference the Subject-Action Verb Agreement Poster as necessary. Combine subjects with action verbs and write full phrases under “Agreement” on the chart.

- Next, have students help you orally extend the first example from the chart, the king rules, into an expanded sentence.
  - Answers may vary, but should reflect the correct use of the king rules, and should be a complete sentence. For example, The king rules Great Britain and the colonies.

- Have students create an expanded complete sentence using two or three more examples from the chart.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 6.3. Review the directions and completed examples in both sections of the activity page. Direct students to complete the next item in the chart, and to write an expanded sentence for it. Circulate around the room to be certain that students understand the directions. Have students complete the remainder of the activity page for homework.
MORPHOLOGY

15 minutes

Introduce Prefixes im– and in–

- Refer to the Prefixes Poster on display in the classroom and read the definition of prefix to students.
- Tell students the two prefixes they will study are im– and in–.
- Write the prefix im– on the board/chart paper and explain that it is pronounced /im/.
- Write the prefix in– on the board/chart paper and explain that it is pronounced /in/.
- Explain that im– and in– both mean “not.” Explain further that knowing the meaning of specific prefixes will help students figure out the meaning of unfamiliar words.
  - Remind students there are other prefixes that mean “not,” such as un–, non–, dis–, il–, and ir–.
  - Share the following examples of words with other prefixes that mean “not”: unoriginal, nondairy, dislike, illegal, irresponsible.
- Tell students that adding im– or in– does not change the part of speech of the root word, but adding them does change the meaning of the root word.
  - Note that the prefix im– is added to the beginning of words that begin with the letters ‘m’, ‘p’, and ‘b’. (These letters usually stand for the sounds /m/, /b/, and /p/, which are made using the lips.) The prefix in– is added to the beginning of words that begin with most other letters.
- Write the word possible on the board. Briefly discuss the meaning and then use it in a sentence. (Possible means able to be done. It is possible to finish my homework before dinner. You may also want to point out that possible can also mean able to become.)
- Add im– to possible and have students read the new word. Discuss the meaning of the new word. (Impossible means not able to be done or not able to become.) Point out that the prefix im– does not change the part of speech of possible. Both possible and impossible are adjectives.
- Refer to the example sentence for impossible on the board/chart paper:

  It is impossible to fit the new table in the back of our small car.

- Have students provide sentences using the word impossible. (Answers may vary.)
- Ask students for synonyms of impossible. (unable, difficult, etc.)
- Write correct on the board. Briefly discuss the meaning of the word and then use it in a sentence. (Correct means true or accurate. The correct answer to the math problem 4 x 11 is 44.)
• Add in– to correct and have students read the new word; discuss the meaning of the new word. (Incorrect means not true or not accurate.) Point out that adding the prefix in– does not change the part of speech of correct. Both correct and incorrect are adjectives.

• You may also want to explain that correct can also be used as a verb (to correct a mistake) but you are referring to correct used as an adjective for this lesson.

• Refer to the example sentence for incorrect on the board/chart paper:

> It is incorrect grammar to use the word ain’t.

• Have students provide sentences using the word incorrect. (Answers may vary.)

• Ask students for synonyms of incorrect. (wrong, inaccurate, etc.)

• Continue in this manner for the remaining im– and in– words, using the following chart as a guide.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 6.4. Briefly review the directions and complete the first sentence together. Have students complete the activity page for homework.

SPELLING

Introduce Spelling Words

- Explain that students will practice 10 words related to the content of the Reader, The Road to Independence. These words do not follow one single spelling pattern. Tell students they will be assessed on these words and will write a detailed sentence related to one or more of these words in Lesson 10.

- Introduce the words by writing them on the board/chart paper. First say the word aloud, and then sound out each syllable, naming each letter aloud as you write it. Continue syllable by syllable until the word is spelled correctly. You may wish to use the pronunciation chart to guide students in saying the words.

1. declaration
2. grievance
3. incident
4. independence
5. militia
6. monarchy
7. representative
8. surrender
9. valiant
10. victory

Pronunciation/Syllabication Chart

The following chart includes pronunciation and syllabication information for the spelling words. The first column lists the words. The second column breaks the words into decodable sounds based on the Core Knowledge code approach to decoding words. The third column lists syllable types in each word. This information is provided so you can present these new, unfamiliar spelling words in a way that calls upon and reinforces the manner in which students were taught to decode and encode in the earlier grades.

Materials

- Activity Page SR.1

Note

Remember to point out specific spelling patterns in each word and their relationship to the sounds and spellings on the Individual Code Chart.
Students who participated in CKLA instruction in K–Grade 2 have been taught to read and spell using an explicit, systematic phonics approach. These students will be the most successful in learning to spell increasingly challenging words if they are encouraged to segment each word into manageable syllables and then make use of the specific letter-sound code knowledge they were taught in earlier grades. This letter-sound knowledge is summarized on the Individual Code Chart, which lists each sound in the English language, followed by all the possible ways that the given sound could be spelled; the spellings for each sound are listed in the order of frequency with which they occur in English, from most frequent to least frequent spelling. The Individual Code Chart is located in the Activity Book (Activity Page SR.1) and in the Teacher Resources section of Unit 1.

As you introduce and write each word, it may be helpful if you point out particular spelling patterns within each word and show students where these spellings are reflected on the Individual Code Chart. For example, you might note that the word declaration includes a schwa sound (/ә/) in the second syllable of the word (i.e., the second syllable is pronounced /ә/, but spelled ‘a’) and then point out the ‘a’ spelling for /ә/ that is included on the Individual Code Chart.

If you are unfamiliar with the CKLA phonics approach and/or have limited phonics training, you may also find the following materials in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide helpful: “Using Chunking to Decode Multisyllable Words” and “Sound and Spelling of Schwa.”

If you have taught CKLA in Grades K–3, you will notice the sound-spelling notation is different in Grade 4 than in previous grades. In Grades K–3, we noted each individual sound spelling within //. For example, the sound spellings for costly would be /k//o//s//t/*/l//ee/. Beginning with Grade 4, we use a sound-spelling notation that follows linguistic and dictionary conventions, making each notation easier to see and read. For example, the word costly is now notated as /kost*lee/.

- Activity Pages 6.3–6.6
- Fluency Supplement selection (optional)
Lesson 7

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

✓ Explain that, with each move by the British government and response by the colonists, the colonies came closer to declaring their independence
✓ Identify a timeline for the fighting at Lexington, Concord, and Bunker Hill
✓ Explain that the battles at Lexington, Concord, and Bunker Hill occurred before the formal Declaration of Independence and organization of an army
✓ Identify Thomas Jefferson as the main writer of the Declaration of Independence
✓ Identify the Declaration of Independence as a key document in American history

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain details related to the colonists’ desire for independence as outlined in the Declaration of Independence.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to write a reflective prompt to serve as notes for their second body paragraph.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to gain a better understanding of the events that led the colonists to declare independence from Great Britain.
Writing
- Read through Vignette II on Activity Page 7.2 and decide how you will assign roles to students. You will need one student to be the narrator, one student to play King George III, four students to play members of Parliament, one student to play Patrick Henry, and two students to play representatives from Virginia.

Grammar; Morphology; Spelling
- Collect Activity Pages 6.3, 6.4, and 6.6 to review and grade as there are no grammar, morphology, or spelling lessons today.

READING

Materials
- The Road to Independence
- Activity Page 7.1

Small Group: Chapter 4 “Shots and Speeches”

Review the Chapter
- Use the following questions to review the chapter:
  - What are the shots referred to in the chapter title?
    » shots fired at the Battle of Bunker Hill
  - What are the speeches referred to in the chapter title?
    » members of the Second Continental Congress, debating war
  - What big decision did the colonists make as a result of shots fired in Massachusetts and speeches delivered in Pennsylvania?
    » They decided to fight for independence.

- Tell students that they will reread Chapter 4, “Shots and Speeches.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
• You may wish to review the following vocabulary words before you reread the chapter:

1. retreat, v. to move back or away from danger or attack (retreated) (30)
2. casualty, n. a person killed or injured during battle (casualties) (30)
3. ammuniton, n. bullets, shells, and other objects used as weapons shot from guns (30)
4. score, n. another term for 20; a group of 20 things (scores) (32)
5. fortify, v. to make a place safe from attack by building defenses (walls, trenches, etc.) (fortified) (32)
6. ambassador, n. the person who represents the government of his or her country in another country (ambassadors) (33)
7. declaration, n. an official statement of something (35)
8. abstain, v. to choose not to vote (abstained) (35)
9. levy, v. to use legal authority to demand and collect a fine or tax (levied) (38)
10. implication, n. a possible effect or result that may take place in the future (implications) (39)

• Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if they forget its meaning.

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

> Read to gain a better understanding of the events that led the colonists to declare independence from Great Britain.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

> What big decision did the colonists make as a result of shots fired in Massachusetts and speeches delivered in Pennsylvania?

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

○ Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 7.1 with your support while reading.
Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to vary how you assign students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 7.1 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 7.1 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:

- collect the pages and correct them individually
- provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
- confer with students individually or as a group at a later time

Over the course of the year, students may change groups, depending on individual students’ needs.
Read “Shots and Speeches”

30 minutes

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
What a difference a day makes! By the time the sun came up on April 20, 1775, the British army had retreated from Concord back to Boston. They had suffered more than 200 casualties and were now surrounded by militia.

Things went from bad to worse when the militia set up cannons on two hills overlooking Boston Harbor. One of the hills was called Breed’s Hill. The other was Bunker Hill.

The British generals were worried. If the militia had cannons up on the hills, they might be able to fire on the British ships in the harbor below and sink some of them. The generals decided that they had to drive the militia off the hills.

It would take time to put their plan into action, but two months later, on June 17, 1775, the British launched an attack. Hundreds of redcoats began marching up Breed’s Hill. The militiamen at the top of the hill waited nervously. A commander named William Prescott knew his men did not have much ammunition. They would have to make every shot count.
John Ward Dunsmore, Bunker Hill (Fight at Rail Fence)
The militia waited... and waited... and waited. Finally, they opened fire. Scores of British troops fell to the ground. Surprisingly, the redcoats were forced to retreat. The British attacked a second time, but again they were beaten back. They attacked a third time—and this time they were successful. The militia had run out of ammunition. Now it was their turn to retreat.

Today this battle is known as the Battle of Bunker Hill. However, that is an unusual name for a battle that was actually fought on Breed's Hill. It is possible that the confusion about the location of the battle was caused by a lack of familiarity with the area. The two hills are near each other. In fact, a British officer who mapped the battle site mixed them up on his map. It is also possible that Prescott had been ordered to fortify Bunker Hill but fortified Breed's Hill instead when he realized that it was the more desirable spot.

In one sense, the Battle of Bunker Hill was a victory for the British. They achieved their goal: they drove the militia off the hill. In another sense, it felt more like a defeat. Is it really a victory if 1,000 men are killed and wounded compared to 500 on the other side? The British knew that they could not afford to continue to lose so many soldiers, even if the eventual outcome was a victory!

While the Battle of Bunker Hill was raging outside Boston, 56 representatives from all 13 colonies attended the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia. Thomas Jefferson came north to represent Virginia. John Adams, Samuel Adams, and John Hancock made their way south from Massachusetts. Benjamin Franklin, a native Bostonian living in Philadelphia, did not have far to travel.
The Making of a Government

As months of discussion and debate continued, some decisions were made. Many of these decisions were based on the belief that a peaceful settlement with Great Britain was now impossible. The Second Continental Congress began to function as a government. They made important decisions. They issued paper money. They set up a postal service. They appointed generals and ambassadors. They agreed to the creation of an army and put George Washington in charge of it. This army would eventually be called the Continental Army.

Many members of the Second Continental Congress thought that the time had come for the colonies to declare their independence. They wanted the colonies to become a new nation. Others thought there might still be a way to patch things up with the British, and they wanted to try to do so. These members of the Continental Congress were not the only ones who were divided on the question of independence. The people of the colonies they represented were divided as well.

George Washington became commander of the Continental Army.

Inferential The final paragraph on page 32 transitions the reader from one topic to another, from the Battle of Bunker Hill to the Second Continental Congress. What clue does the heading at the top of page 33 give about the work of the Second Continental Congress?

» It suggests they worked to form a new government and lets the reader know this is the main idea of the next few paragraphs.

Inferential In what ways did the Second Continental Congress begin to alter their behavior, acting independently from Great Britain?

» They began to function as their own government, asserting their rights to make their own decisions by creating their own money and forming their own army and postal service. They were part of a representative government, forming their own rules rather than following the rules of a foreign government in which they had no representation.

A Little Common Sense

One man who may have done more than anyone else to convince people to declare independence was Thomas Paine. Paine was an Englishman who had moved to Philadelphia only a few months earlier at the suggestion of Benjamin Franklin. Franklin thought Paine could help the patriot movement. Thomas Paine wrote a pamphlet called Common Sense. It was published in January 1776, while the Second Continental Congress was meeting.

Paine believed that monarchy was a foolish way to run a country. “Mankind being originally equals in the order of creation,” Paine wrote; so how could any one man claim the right to rule over millions?

Paine argued that the colonies should separate from Great Britain and form a republic—a government made up of elected representatives. He told his new countrymen they had an amazing opportunity—they could cast off government by kings and replace it with something much, much better:

> “[W]e have every opportunity and every encouragement before us, to form the noblest, purest constitution on the face of the earth. We have it in our power to begin the world over again. . . . The birthday of a new world is at hand. . . . [F]or God’s sake, let us come to a final separation.”

—Thomas Paine

D Common Sense became a bestseller. Copies were printed in all 13 colonies. Selections were printed in newspapers. Those who could read studied the pamphlet. Those who could not read listened while it was read aloud at an inn or coffeehouse. Common Sense convinced many colonists that it was, in fact, time to declare independence.

A Final Separation

By June 1776, most members of the Second Continental Congress were ready to vote for what Paine referred to as “a final separation.” Thomas Jefferson, a delegate from Virginia, was asked to write an official declaration of independence. His job was to explain why the colonies were breaking away from Great Britain, and why it was necessary for them to do so.

Benjamin Franklin and John Adams reviewed Jefferson’s draft. They made a few changes, but overall they accepted Jefferson’s work without reservation. On July 2, 1776, the members of the Second Continental Congress voted for independence. On July 4, 1776, the members voted again—this time on whether to accept Jefferson’s Declaration of Independence as the document that outlined the reasons for their desire to be independent. No one voted against it. One colony, New York, abstained. The Declaration of Independence was approved!
A  [Read page 36 aloud.]

B  Support  [Tell students they will hear these famous words by Thomas Jefferson many times during their lifetime. These words helped to convince others that it was right to rebel, or fight, against Great Britain.]

C  Inferential  Jefferson noted three inalienable rights of the people: life, liberty (freedom), and the pursuit (search) of happiness. Which of these rights had Great Britain taken away? Provide examples from your reading.

  » Answers may vary, but students may identify the right to liberty (i.e., freedoms taken away from the colonists, including the Intolerable Acts). They may also identify the right to life, considering the colonists killed in the Boston Massacre, Bunker Hill, etc.
Jefferson argued that this was what the British government had done. In the second half of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson presented a long list of unacceptable actions the British government had taken. It had levied unfair taxes, taken away the right to trial by jury, and quartered British troops in colonial cities. For all of these reasons (and more), Jefferson wrote, the colonists had no other option but to declare independence from Great Britain.

Support Based on the way it is used in the final sentence of this paragraph, we can infer the meaning of the word option to be a choice or possibility.

Inferential Why is July 4 called Independence Day?

» It is the day on which members of the Second Continental Congress voted whether to accept Jefferson’s Declaration of Independence from Great Britain. So, ever since then, this is the date that Americans celebrate their independence, or freedom, from British control.
No Simple Solution

The colonists did not initially have a national army ready to fight on their behalf. The Continental Army, as such, did not yet exist. In June 1775, the Continental Congress appointed Virginian George Washington to create such an army. Until then, the army had consisted of a loosely organized collection of militia units from New England. The implications of what had happened at Lexington and Concord were far from clear in the days following the battles. While there had been plenty of outrage, it had taken over a year for independence to be declared. In fact, after the battles in Lexington and Concord, some patriots had created a flag called “The Continental Colors.” This flag featured the red and white stripes from the Sons of Liberty flag with an image of the British Union Jack superimposed on it, indicating some degree of continued loyalty to the British government.

Evaluative
Look at the heading on page 39, “No Simple Solution.” What does the heading mean and does it accurately represent what the paragraph is about? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

Answers may vary, but may include the problem the colonists faced, to remain under British rule or to declare independence, was not an easy one to solve. This paragraph discusses the conflicted feelings as evidenced by the length of time it took to actually declare independence after the Declaration of Independence was written.

[Have students complete the second half of Activity Page 7.1 with your help.]
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

- Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Think Pair Share  Have you ever heard the idiom, Actions speak louder than words? It means what you do is more important than what you say. In this chapter, you read about the actions (shots) of the militia and words (speeches) of the members of the Second Continental Congress. Which was more essential—actions or words—in the colonists’ decision to go to war with Great Britain? Turn and share your opinion with a partner.

   » Answers may vary, but should draw support from the text. Students may conclude that shots were more important because of the loss of life or that speeches were more important because they represented a majority opinion from all 13 colonies.

Word Work: Implication

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “The implications of what had happened at Lexington and Concord were far from clear in the days following the battles.”

2. Say the word implication with me.

3. Implication means a possible effect or result that may take place in the future.

4. An implication of eating too much cake is that you may feel sick afterward.

5. What are some other examples of implications, or future results? Be sure to use the word implication in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “An implication of _____ is . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word implication?

   » noun

[Use a Questions and Answers activity for follow-up.] I am going to ask a question, beginning with “What is an implication of _____?” You will respond with a sentence, beginning with “An implication of _____ is . . .” Remember, an implication is a possible effect or result that may take place in the future.
1. I did not do my homework, so I might have to stay in from recess. What is an implication of not doing my homework?
   » An implication of not doing my homework is I may have to stay in from recess.

2. My mother said she might not make macaroni and cheese for dinner if we drink all the milk. What is an implication of drinking all the milk?
   » An implication of drinking all the milk is we may not have macaroni and cheese for dinner.

3. Sometimes when I stay up late on weekends, I cannot wake up on time on Monday. What is an implication of staying up late on weekends?
   » An implication of staying up late on weekends is I may not wake up on time on Monday.

4. My coach told us if we did not practice enough, we may not win the game. What is an implication of not practicing enough?
   » An implication of not practicing enough is we may not win the game.

WRITING

45 minutes

Perform Vignette and Plan a Body Paragraph

Review Vignette and Graphic Organizer 10 minutes

- Remind students they are drafting an essay about the causes and effects leading up to the American Revolution. Remind them that the content for each of the three body paragraphs will come directly from Chapters 2 and 3 of The Road to Independence.

- Briefly remind students of the vignettes, or short scenes, performed during the last writing lesson, which corresponded to content from Chapter 2 of the Reader—the repeal of the Stamp Act through the Boston Tea Party.

- Tell students they will enact another vignette today, corresponding to the events from Chapter 3 of the Reader, in preparation for writing their second body paragraph.

Enact Vignette and Plan a Paragraph 30 minutes

- Have students turn to Activity Page 7.2. Review the scenes and characters for Vignette II.

- Have students read the scenes silently.

- Assign roles for the vignette.

- Enact the vignette.

Materials

- Activity Pages 7.2, 7.3
- Answer Key for Activity Page 7.3
• Have students turn to Activity Page 7.3. Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, complete the graphic organizer together.

• Review directions for the writing prompt on Activity Page 7.3. Have students respond to the prompt.

Wrap Up

• Have students share their responses to the writing prompt.

MID-UNIT CONTENT ASSESSMENT

You may wish to pause one day before proceeding to Lesson 8 so you can assess students’ comprehension of the domain content presented in the Reader thus far. During your next ELA period, administer the Mid-Unit Content Assessment (Activity Page PP.1), which will take approximately 30–45 minutes for students to complete. You may choose to collect the assessments so a grade can be assigned and/or you may review the answers with students after they complete the assessment. You may use the remainder of the period for remediation and/or enrichment, including having students reread Reader chapters or read Fluency Supplement selections.

Note

This is a good opportunity to use the Tens scoring system to gather formative assessment data. Information about the Tens scoring system appears in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide.
Lesson 8

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

✓ Identify a timeline for the events at Trenton, Valley Forge, and Saratoga
✓ Explain that the Continental Army faced many challenges and defeats in the years following the Declaration of Independence
✓ Describe the concerns George Washington expressed in a letter to the Continental Congress in December 1777 to request more military support

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to discuss strategies Washington’s troops used to outsmart the British and the physical challenges they faced during the brutal winter at Valley Forge.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to write a reflective prompt to serve as notes for their third body paragraph.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

• Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn the challenges the Continental Army faced in its battle against the British army and Mother Nature.

• You may wish to prepare to display the digital version of Timeline II found in the digital components for this unit.
REPRESENTING

Reading

Materials
- The Road to Independence
- Activity Pages 6.2, 8.1
- Timeline II

Writing

- Read through Vignette III on Activity Page 8.2 and decide how you will assign roles to students. You will need one student to be the narrator, two students to play members of Parliament, one student to play King George III, one student to play Samuel Adams, and one student to play John Hancock.

Reading

Read-Aloud: Chapter 5 “It’s War!”

Introduce the Chapter

- Tell students you will read aloud Chapter 5, “It’s War!” They should follow along in their Reader as you read.

- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

- Have students refer to the maps of the colonies on page 92 as they read the chapter.

- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is fronts.

- Have them find the word on page 40 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate front, and then have a student read the definition.

- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

- Have students reference Activity Page 8.1 while you read each vocabulary word and its meaning noting that:
  - The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  - Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.
1. front, n. the place where fighting happens in a war ([fronts] 40)
2. strategic, adj. carefully planned to achieve a specific goal, such as winning a battle or finishing a project (42)
3. confront, v. to challenge or fight against (42)
4. surrender, v. to give up, quit (43)
5. morale, n. confidence, level of enthusiasm one feels (43)
6. tactics, n. ways used to achieve a goal (44)
7. bleak, adj. depressing, grim, bad (47)

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read to learn the challenges the Continental Army faced in its battle against the British army and Mother Nature.

  Support Discuss the meaning of the name Mother Nature; ask students for a synonym. (weather)
• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

At the beginning of the war between the British and the colonists, who seemed most likely to win the war, and why?
Read “It’s War!” 30 minutes

Read the chapter aloud, as students follow along in their Readers. As you read, stop to read and discuss the corresponding guided reading supports. Guided reading supports in brackets are directional and not intended to be read aloud. All other phrases and sentences are intended to be read aloud verbatim. Whenever asking a guided reading support question, explicitly encourage students to refer to the text and reread prior to offering an answer.
At the beginning of the war, the British were confident that they could defeat the colonists. The Continental Army, at least at first, was not exactly a force to be reckoned with. It was made up of farmers and shopkeepers. These soldiers knew how to shoot, but they didn't know how to march or fight in formation. They had almost no cannons and very few fighting ships. On the other hand, the British army and navy were among the largest and best trained in the world. The British had more soldiers, more cannons, and more ships, and they had much more experience. Besides that, the British had a plan that they thought would help them win the war: divide the colonies in half and fight them on two fronts.
The commander of each regiment in the Continental Army read the Declaration of Independence to his troops.
Having retreated from Boston, the British turned their attention to New York City. They recognized the strategic importance of this port city. If their plan to gain control was to succeed, they needed to capture it. However, George Washington was equally aware of the importance of having control of New York City. He marched his troops there to confront the British army.

In the summer of 1776, the British and Continental armies engaged in a battle on Long Island and Manhattan Island. George Washington and his men failed to keep New York City out of British hands. By November 1776, having lost New York City, George Washington retreated along the Hudson River and then into New Jersey. Washington knew his army was simply not as strong as the British army. If he tried to challenge the British in a major battle, he knew he would lose. He would have to look for opportunities to attack when his enemies were not expecting it.

On December 25, 1776, that is exactly what Washington did. It was Christmas night, and the Hessian troops who were camped in Trenton,
New Jersey, had been on round-the-clock alert for over a week. They were exhausted. Finally, they had been allowed to sleep. Because they were not expecting an attack on Christmas night, many were unarmed.

Washington crossed the Delaware River from Pennsylvania and took the Hessians completely by surprise. More than 1,000 of them were forced to surrender in the sneak attack.

The victory at Trenton was extremely good for the morale of Washington’s troops, but it was followed by a string of defeats. Washington and his men were defeated at the Battle of Brandywine in September 1777 and again at the Battle of Germantown in October. At Germantown, some of the soldiers in the Continental Army became confused and fired on their own troops. Because of these defeats, the British were able to capture Philadelphia. The Continental Congress was forced to break up and relocate to another city.

Farther north, a British army marched down from Canada, recaptured Fort Ticonderoga, and began to close in on the Continental Army fighting in this area. The Continental Army was in trouble. It was time to retreat and regroup—but the British were right behind them.

C Literal Recall how Washington and his army surprised the Hessians in Trenton.

> They attacked them on Christmas night when the Hessian troops were sleeping.

Support The Hessians were soldiers who were paid to help the British fight the colonists.

D Evaluative Look at the image “Washington Crossing the Delaware” on pages 42 and 43. What does Washington’s posture and placement in the boat tell you about his position in the army?

> Answers may vary, but may include that Washington is important because he does not have to row the boat; he is standing with one foot resting on the boat’s edge looking across the river. This suggests he is thinking deeply and searching for shore; he is the tallest figure in the image and is close to the middle, suggesting that he is important. An artist would say Washington is the focal point of the painting because the eye is drawn to him first.

Challenge This image shows Washington staring across the river during an important moment in the Revolutionary War. The image suggests that he has great vision. When someone has great vision, it means he/she can see the consequences or potential in a situation. How might Washington be described as having great vision?

> Washington was able to see beyond individual battles and realize that his army may lose sometimes, or even frequently, but that it could still win the war. He used creative techniques and also paid attention to morale, or how his troops felt.

Support Why do you think Washington is not rowing the boat?

> He was the leader of the army and too important to row the boat.
Outsmarting the Enemy

The Continental Army also needed a plan. Fortunately, a man named Tadeusz Kościuszko had one. Kościuszko was a Polish engineer who had joined the colonists in their fight for independence. Kościuszko shared certain strategies that the Continental Army might use to slow down the British army.

At Kościuszko’s suggestion, the Continental soldiers cut down trees and let them fall across roads as they retreated. They destroyed bridges, and they built dams so rivers would overflow onto the roads.

These tactics gave the soldiers time to set up defenses near Saratoga, New York. Kościuszko played an important role in that, too. He suggested the best defensive spots to build forts, thus preventing the British from continuing south to Albany. He also taught the Continental soldiers how to build strong defensive walls.

In September 1777, the British attacked the forts near Saratoga. Despite repeated efforts, they were not able to break through the Continental Army defenses. On October 17, the British general surrendered. More than 6,000 British soldiers handed over their weapons. The Battle of Saratoga was the first big victory for the Continental Army.

In December 1777, Washington and his tired men limped into the Pennsylvania town of Valley Forge. Washington had decided that his army would spend the winter there. In those days, armies scaled back fighting during the winter. That winter, Washington’s army had to face another enemy—Mother Nature.

Mother Nature was not kind to the Continental Army during the winter of 1777 to 1778. It was a bitterly cold winter, and the soldiers were not prepared for it. Most of them did not have winter coats. Many did not even have shoes. Their injured feet left bloody footprints in the snow.
C  Evaluative  Using evidence from the image on page 45, what details support the idea that the soldiers were miserable that winter?

» Answers may vary, but may include that the soldiers are outside. They are wearing what looks like coats but they don’t look very thick, and the ground is covered with snow. One soldier is warming himself by a fire; the sky looks gray and bleak, and nighttime must be coming because the clouds are turning colors as the sun sets.
During December and January, the soldiers cut down trees and used them to build log cabins. These cabins provided some shelter from the cold, but they were crowded and damp.

There were other problems, too. The soldiers did not have enough to eat. They had to survive for many weeks on firecake, a tasteless mixture of flour and water baked over a fire. Occasionally, they might have a bowl of pepper pot soup, a thin broth made from beef and a handful of peppercorns.

Clean drinking water was also in short supply. Many soldiers drank dirty water and got sick. A few died of frostbite or starvation; many more died as a result of diseases.

One army surgeon, Albigence Waldo from Connecticut, kept a diary during his time in Valley Forge. Here is an excerpt from his diary:

December 14. The Army, which has been surprisingly healthy hitherto, now begins to grow sickly from the continued fatigues they have suffered this campaign. . . . I am sick, discontented, and out of humor. . . . Why are we sent here to starve and freeze?

—Albigence Waldo

George Washington was worried about the state of the army. On December 23, 1777, he wrote a letter to the Continental Congress explaining that many of his men were in such poor health that they were no longer fit for combat. The situation was so bad, Washington wrote that he was worried that his men might give up and go home:
According to the text, Washington was worried about the health of his soldiers. What else worried him?

» Washington was concerned that the soldiers would simply leave the army and go home.

As the New Year dawned in 1778, things looked bleak for George Washington and the Continental Army. However, the tide was beginning to turn in their favor.

Among Washington’s men at Valley Forge was a young French nobleman named the Marquis de Lafayette. Lafayette was to have a prominent role in the Revolutionary War.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Literal At the beginning of the war between the British and the colonists, who seemed most likely to win the war, and why?
   » The British seemed most likely to win because they had a large, well-trained army. They had more supplies, weapons, and experience. The British also had a strategy: to divide and fight the colonists in more than one location.

2. Inferential When George Washington wrote to the Continental Congress in December 1777 describing the state of the army, what was morale like?
   » low

3. Literal What evidence from the text leads you to that conclusion?
   » The soldiers were cold, hungry, and sick; Washington wrote that many of the soldiers were unfit for combat, and he feared they might give up and go home.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 6.2. Use the following questions to guide students in adding these events to their timelines as you do so with the displayed timeline:

1. What date did General Washington’s troops cross the Delaware River to surprise the Hessian troops in Trenton?
   » December 25, 1776 (Crossing the Delaware/Surprise attack on Trenton)

2. What was the result of Tadeusz Kościuszko’s advice in Saratoga in October 1777?
   » Continental Army victory/British surrender at Saratoga

3. Following Saratoga, where did Washington’s troops set up camp in December 1777?
   » Valley Forge
Word Work: Morale

1. In the chapter you read, “The victory at Trenton was extremely good for the morale of Washington's troops, but it was followed by a string of defeats.”

2. Say the word morale with me.

3. Morale means confidence or level of enthusiasm one feels.

4. After losing the soccer game because their goalie was injured, the team’s morale was low.

5. What are some other reasons for high morale and low morale? Be sure to use the word morale in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students' responses to make complete sentences: “_____ might lead to high morale.” or “_____ might lead to low morale.”]

6. What part of speech is the word morale?
   » noun

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I will read a statement about something that produces either high morale or low morale. After I read the statement, you will say, “That would lead to high morale,” or “That would lead to low morale.”

1. Washington’s troops had very little food during the freezing winter.
   » That would lead to low morale.

2. The coach announced that the team had earned a spot in the state championship.
   » That would lead to high morale.

3. After watching a video thanking them for their service, the soldiers felt good about the job they were doing.
   » That would lead to high morale.

4. The company president announced that workers would be fired the following week.
   » That would lead to low morale.

5. After the play, the actors knew they had performed their best.
   » That would lead to high morale.

Materials

- The Road to Independence
• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

At the beginning of the war between the British and the colonists, who seemed most likely to win the war, and why?

Close Reading

There are many ways for students to respond to the questions. Vary how you elicit students’ responses to promote student engagement. For example:

- Have students work in pairs. Following each question, direct students to consult with their partner about the correct response before one student responds.

- Have students work in small groups of three or four students. Following each question, direct students to consult with others in their group about the correct response before one student responds.

- Following a question, have all students provide a written response before one student responds orally.

Note

Close reading lessons present excellent opportunities to ensure that English learners and other students who need additional support fully comprehend a reading selection.
Read “It’s War!”

Read the chapter of the title as a class, “It’s War!” As you read portions of the chapter, pause to explain or clarify the text at each point indicated.

It was made up of farmers and shopkeepers. These soldiers knew how to shoot, but they didn't know how to march or fight in formation. They had almost no cannons and very few fighting ships. If he tried to challenge the British in a major battle, he knew he would lose. He would have to look for opportunities to attack when his enemies were not expecting it.

On December 25, 1776, that is exactly what Washington did. It was Christmas night, and the Hessian troops who were camped in Trenton,
New Jersey, had been on round-the-clock alert for over a week. They were exhausted. Finally, they had been allowed to sleep. Because they were not expecting an attack on Christmas night, many were unarmed.

Washington crossed the Delaware River from Pennsylvania and took the Hessians completely by surprise. More than 1,000 of them were forced to surrender in the sneak attack.

The victory at Trenton was extremely good for the morale of Washington’s troops, but it was followed by a string of defeats. Washington and his men were defeated at the Battle of Brandywine in September 1777 and again at the Battle of Germantown in October. At Germantown, some of the soldiers in the Continental Army became confused and fired on their own troops. Because of these defeats, the British were able to capture Philadelphia. The Continental Congress was forced to break up and relocate to another city.

Farther north, a British army marched down from Canada, recaptured Fort Ticonderoga, and began to close in on the Continental Army fighting in this area. The Continental Army was in trouble. It was time to retreat and regroup—but the British were right behind them.
Outsmarting the Enemy

The Continental Army also needed a plan. Fortunately, a man named Tadeusz Kościuszko had one. Kościuszko was a Polish engineer who had joined the colonists in their fight for independence. Kościuszko shared certain strategies that the Continental Army might use to slow down the British army.

At Kościuszko’s suggestion, the Continental soldiers cut down trees and let them fall across roads as they retreated. They destroyed bridges, and they built dams so rivers would overflow onto the roads. These tactics gave the soldiers time to set up defenses near Saratoga, New York. Kościuszko played an important role in that, too. He suggested the best defensive spots to build forts, thus preventing the British from continuing south to Albany. He also taught the Continental soldiers how to build strong defensive walls.

In September 1777, the British attacked the forts near Saratoga. Despite repeated efforts, they were not able to break through the Continental Army defenses. On October 17, the British general surrendered. More than 6,000 British soldiers handed over their weapons. The Battle of Saratoga was the first big victory for the Continental Army.

In December 1777, Washington and his tired men limped into the Pennsylvania town of Valley Forge. Washington had decided that his army would spend the winter there. In those days, armies scaled back fighting during the winter. That winter, Washington’s army had to face another enemy—Mother Nature.

Mother Nature was not kind to the Continental Army during the winter of 1777 to 1778. It was a bitterly cold winter, and the soldiers were not prepared for it. Most of them did not have winter coats. Many did not even have shoes. Their injured feet left bloody footprints in the snow.

Washington riding through the camp at Valley Forge
During December and January, the soldiers cut down trees and used them to build log cabins. These cabins provided some shelter from the cold, but they were crowded and damp.

There were other problems, too. The soldiers did not have enough to eat. They had to survive for many weeks on firecake, a tasteless mixture of flour and water baked over a fire. Occasionally, they might have a bowl of pepper pot soup, a thin broth made from beef and a handful of peppercorns.

Clean drinking water was also in short supply. Many soldiers drank dirty water and got sick. A few died of frostbite or starvation; many more died as a result of diseases.

One army surgeon, Albigence Waldo from Connecticut, kept a diary during his time in Valley Forge. Here is an excerpt from his diary:

December 14. The Army, which has been surprisingly healthy hitherto, now begins to grow sickly from the continued fatigues they have suffered this campaign. . . . I am sick, discontented, and out of humor. . . . Why are we sent here to starve and freeze? —Albigence Waldo

George Washington was worried about the state of the army. On December 23, 1777, he wrote a letter to the Continental Congress explaining that many of his men were in such poor health that they were no longer fit for combat. The situation was so bad, Washington wrote that he was worried that his men might give up and go home.
As the New Year dawned in 1778, things looked bleak for George Washington and the Continental Army. However, the tide was beginning to turn in their favor.

Among Washington’s men at Valley Forge was a young French nobleman named the Marquis de Lafayette. Lafayette was to have a prominent role in the Revolutionary War.

Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

• Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Evaluative Think Pair Share At the beginning of the war, it seemed the British were most likely to win the war. However, the end of this chapter suggests the British might not win the war after all. What words or phrases in the text suggest the British might not win the war?
   » The last sentence of the chapter says, “However, the tide was beginning to turn in their favor.” In this sentence their refers to the Continental Army. This means changes were going to occur that would favor, or benefit, the Continental Army.

Word Work: Confront

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “[George Washington] marched his troops there to confront the British army.”
2. Say the word confront with me.
3. Confront means to challenge or fight against.
4. When I discovered that my brother had been hiding my blocks, I decided to confront him and ask where he hid them.
5. What are some other examples of confront? Be sure to use the word confront in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “When I heard about _____, I decided to confront _____.”]
6. What part of speech is the word confront?
   » verb

[Use a Discussion activity for follow-up.] Talk with your partner about a time when you or someone you know confronted someone about an idea, misunderstanding, or problem. Be sure to use the word confront in complete sentences as you discuss this with your partner.
Introduce Pronoun-Action Verb Agreement

- Tell students that in this lesson they will learn about pronoun-action verb agreement.

- Ask students what a pronoun is. (A pronoun is a word that can be used in place of a noun. Pronouns include: I, you, he, she, it, we, and they.)

- Refer to the Pronoun-Action Verb Agreement Poster you prepared in advance. Explain that the examples given in the poster are in the present tense (i.e., the action is happening in the present, or now).

- Point out the following:
  - If the subject is the pronoun it, he, or she and the action verb ends in ‘s’, ‘sh’, ‘ch’, ‘x’, or ‘z’ (catch), add –es to the verb (catches).
  - If the subject is the pronoun it, he, or she and the action verb ends with ‘y’ (dry), change the ‘y’ to an ‘i’ and add –es (dries).
  - Otherwise, if the subject is the pronoun it, he, or she, add –s to the verb (hums).
  - If the subject is the pronoun I, we, you, or they, it is not necessary to change the verb (prepare).

- Direct students’ attention to the Pronoun-Action Verb Agreement Chart you prepared in advance. Tell students you will complete the chart as a class. Reference the Pronoun-Action Verb Agreement Poster as necessary. Combine pronouns with action verbs and write full phrases in the “Agreement” column of the chart.

- Next, have students help you orally extend the first example from the chart, I learn, into an expanded sentence.
  - Answers may vary, but should reflect the correct use of I learn, and should be a complete sentence. For example, I learn about why the colonists wanted to be free from British rule.

Materials

- Pronoun-Action Verb Agreement Poster
- Pronoun-Action Verb Agreement Chart
- Activity Page 9.1
- Have students create an expanded complete sentence using two or three more examples from the chart.

- Have students turn to Activity Page 9.1. Review the directions and completed examples in both sections of the activity page. Direct students to complete the next item in the chart, and to write an expanded sentence for it. Circulate around the room to be certain that students understand the directions. Have students complete the remainder of the activity page for homework.

MORPHOLOGY

Practice Prefixes im– and in–

- Refer to the Prefixes Poster you displayed in the classroom and read the definition of a prefix.

- Briefly review the prefixes im– and in– that you added to the poster in Lesson 6. Remind students the prefixes im– and in– both mean “not.”

- Remind students the prefixes im– and in– are added to root words that are adjectives. The prefixes im– and in– do not change the part of speech of the new words; the new words are also adjectives.

- Remind students that the prefix im– is added to the beginning of words that begin with the letters ‘m’, ‘b’, and ‘p’. (These letters usually stand for the sounds /m/, /b/, and /p/, which are made using the lips.) The prefix in– is added to the beginning of words that begin with most other letters.

- Refer to the word lists you prepared in advance.

  |im– impossible, imperfect, impractical, impatient, impolite
  |in– incorrect, inconvenient, incomplete, incapable, inactive

- Have one student read the im– words aloud: impossible, imperfect, impractical, impatient, impolite. Have another student read the in– words aloud: incorrect, inconvenient, incomplete, incapable, inactive.

- Tell students you will read some sentences aloud, but will leave a word out. Students must decide which word from the list best completes the sentence.

- Read the following sentences aloud and have students identify the missing word for each:

  - It was _____ to go home before soccer practice because we were already near the practice field. (inconvenient or impractical)
- My cousin had to put his cell phone away because my grandmother said it is _____ to text at the table. impolite
- We had to go to the store on the other side of town to get what we needed even though it was _____. inconvenient
- When I have to wait too long for my turn at the water fountain I get _____. impatient

SPELLING

Practice Spelling Words

- Tell students they will practice writing the spelling words for the week.
- Have students turn to Activity Page 9.3. Explain that they will work with a partner to create sentences for each of the spelling words. Remind students they can reference the Individual Code Chart to help them spell words.
- Collect Activity Page 9.3 to review and grade at a later time.
- Remind students they will complete their spelling assessment during the next lesson.

Grammar

- Have students take home Activity Page 9.1 to complete for homework.

Unit 7: American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

- Identify a timeline for the French Alliance, the Continental Army’s departure from Valley Forge, the Battle of Yorktown, the British surrender, and the Treaty of Paris.
- Explain that the Continental Army benefitted from the assistance of several individuals from different European countries during the war.
- Explain that a German by the name of von Steuben trained the Continental Army at Valley Forge, helping them secure their first decisive victory against the British at the Battle of Yorktown three years later.
- Explain that the alliance with France was pivotal in the colonists winning the war.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Spelling: Students will be assessed on their knowledge of the correct spelling of the targeted words.

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain how the French helped the Continental Army win the war against Great Britain.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to draft a paragraph for the body of their cause and effect essay.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Spelling
- Erase or cover the list of spelling words prior to the assessment.

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

  Read to learn how the situation began to improve for the Continental Army after the harsh winter at Valley Forge.

- You may wish to prepare to display the digital version of Timeline II found in the digital components for this unit.

Writing
- Prepare and display the following Sample Writing Prompt Response. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for the unit.

  By 1773, the colonists had been living with unfair taxation for many years. The Stamp Act had been repealed, but the British government imposed new taxes on the colonists. When the British imposed a tax on tea, the colonists boycotted, refusing to buy British tea. Led by the Sons of Liberty, a group of patriots protested and tossed tea into Boston Harbor.

Grammar
- Collect Activity Page 9.1 to review and grade as there is no grammar lesson today.

SPELLING 15 minutes

Assessment
- Have students turn to Activity Page 10.1 for the spelling assessment.
- Using the following list, read the words one at a time in the following manner: Say the word, use it in a sentence, and then repeat the word.
- Tell students that at the end you will review the list once more.
- Remind students to pronounce and spell each word syllable by syllable.

Spelling Word | Example Sentence
--- | ---
1. valiant | George Washington was a valiant leader during the French and Indian War.
2. militia | The colonial militia surprised the British by setting up cannons on Breed's Hill.
3. victory | The decisive victory of the American Revolution came in 1781 at Yorktown, Virginia.
4. declaration | Thomas Jefferson wrote a declaration of independence, explaining why the colonists wanted to break away from Great Britain.
5. incident | The incident known as the “Boston Massacre” led to more unrest in the colonies.
6. monarchy | Thomas Paine spoke out against the British monarchy, believing they had too much power.
7. representative | Representatives from all thirteen colonies met together in Philadelphia.
8. grievance | Members of the First Continental Congress drew up a list of grievances against King George III.
9. surrender | The British troops surrendered to the Continental Army at the Battle of Saratoga.
10. independence | The colonists were divided about whether to seek independence from Great Britain.

• After reading all of the words, review the list slowly, reading each word once more.
• Have students write the following sentence as dictated.

> The colonies worked toward independence from the British monarchy.

• Repeat the sentence slowly several times, reminding students to check their work for appropriate capitalization and punctuation.
• Collect all spelling assessments to grade later. Use of the template provided at the end of this lesson is highly recommended to identify and analyze students’ errors.

Introduce the Chapter
- Tell students they will read Chapter 6, “From Valley Forge to Yorktown.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter. Have a student read the title aloud.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is impressed.
- Have them find the word on page 48 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate impress, and then have a student read the definition.
- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun—n.; verb—v.; adjective—adj.; adverb—adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
- Have students reference Activity Page 10.2 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:
  - The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  - Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn how the situation began to improve for the Continental Army after the harsh winter at Valley Forge.
• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

What European country joined the Continental Army to fight the British, and how did their help influence the outcome of the war?

Read “From Valley Forge to Yorktown” 25 minutes

Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
A  [Have students read pages 48 and 49 silently.]

B  Literal  What European country joined the Continental Army to fight the British and why?
   » France joined the Continental Army to fight the British because it was a longtime enemy of Great Britain.

   Support  What prior conflict between France and Great Britain caused the British to go into debt and led Parliament to impose taxes on the colonies?
   » the French and Indian War

C  Inferential  How do you think the colonists felt about French involvement in the war and why?
   » Answers may vary, but may include that the colonists felt happy or excited about France’s involvement because France had a strong, organized military whereas the colonists did not.

There is a saying, “what doesn’t kill you makes you stronger.” The winter of 1777 to 1778 was a difficult time for Washington and his men. Those who survived that winter in Valley Forge came to think they were strong enough to survive just about anything!

In February 1778, the French military entered the war to fight alongside the Continental Army. France was a longtime enemy of Great Britain, so they welcomed the opportunity to assist the colonists in their fight against the British. This was good news for the colonists. France had a strong, organized military. French involvement meant help was on the way!

Then, in late February, a man with a heavy German accent arrived in Valley Forge. His name was Friedrich Wilhelm Ludolf Gerhard Augustin von Steuben. The purpose for his arrival began during the previous summer when von Steuben traveled to Paris to volunteer his services to the Count de St. Germain, the French Minister of War. St. Germain had been so impressed with von Steuben’s military experience that he sent him across the Atlantic Ocean to meet George Washington. George Washington was equally impressed and asked von Steuben to train his soldiers. There was just one problem: von Steuben knew only a few words of English. So, he shouted his commands in German, then someone would translate the words into English.
Von Steuben taught the Continental soldiers how to march and stand in formation. He taught them how to advance on the battlefield. He also taught them how to use the bayonets attached to their muskets. Von Steuben trained a model company. Then, the members of this model company trained other companies.

Things began to improve in the spring of 1778. Washington sent out foraging parties to gather cattle, horses, corn, hay, and grains from the local people. They returned with enough food to feed the soldiers at Valley Forge. Washington also appointed a new quartermaster whose job was to make sure the army did not run out of food or supplies. And, last but not least, Washington convinced the Continental Congress to send more money and to recruit more soldiers.

By the time the Continental Army marched out of Valley Forge in June 1778, they were much better prepared to fight as an army. The newly trained Continental Army began to win more battles. Their first decisive victory came in the fall of 1781. At this point, much of the fighting had shifted south to Virginia and the Carolinas. British troops in the south were led by Lord Cornwallis.

Evaluative Why was the time the Continental Army spent in Valley Forge significant?

» Von Steuben trained the Continental Army to be more professional—marching and standing in formation, advancing on the battlefield, using weapons, and training other companies. In addition, food and supplies were better managed so they didn’t run out. Washington was able to convince the Continental Congress to send more money and recruit more soldiers. The Continental Army was much better prepared to fight as an army than when they first arrived at Valley Forge.

Support What skills did von Steuben bring to George Washington’s army?

» He had military experience and was able to train the men, teaching them how to stand and march in formation, advance on the battlefield, and use their weapons.
A [Have a student read the heading on page 50.]

B Inferential What does the heading suggest will happen next?
» The end of the war is near.

C [Have students read pages 50 and 51 silently.]

D Inferential Why was it important for Washington to trick the British into thinking he planned to attack New York?
» If the British army knew Washington’s plan, they could potentially stop his troops on their march south. Washington wanted to make a surprise attack on Cornwallis at Yorktown so Cornwallis would not be prepared.

The Beginning of the End

In August 1781, Cornwallis and his men camped at Yorktown, at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay, in Virginia. They were waiting for reinforcements and supplies.

While Cornwallis was setting up camp at Yorktown, Washington was meeting with several French generals outside New York City. The French had sent thousands of troops to assist Washington. Now Washington and the French generals had to decide how to best utilize these new troops. Should they attack the British in New York City, or should they head south and attack Cornwallis in Virginia?

Eventually they decided to march the main Continental Army and most of the French troops south to Virginia and try to trap Cornwallis. But Washington was crafty. He sent out fake messages to make the British think he was actually going to attack New York. The British were fooled by the messages.
In late September, Washington arrived at Yorktown with 4,000 French soldiers and 3,000 Continental soldiers. The Major General of the Continental Army was the Marquis de Lafayette. These new soldiers reinforced Lafayette's men who were already there. The French navy arrived as well, and one of the first things they did was drive away a convoy of British ships that were carrying supplies for Cornwallis and his men. That was when Cornwallis knew he was in trouble. He was cornered by the French and Continental armies, and the French navy had cut off his escape route as well as his supplies!

The French and Continental armies set up cannons and began firing on the British. For days the guns fired constantly. Washington gave orders to fire through the night so the British would not have any quiet time to rest or make repairs.

Cornwallis and his men could not protect themselves and, because of the position of the French fleet, they could not sail away. Eventually, on October 19, 1781, Cornwallis accepted that he had no choice but to surrender.

E Inferential In what way was the French fleet important to Washington's plan?

» The French fleet enabled the Continental Army to corner Cornwallis on all sides, both land and water. Cornwallis and his men could not sail away because of the position of the French fleet.
A  [Have students look at the image on pages 52 and 53.]

B  Evaluative  What do you think is happening in this image? Find specific details in the image or in the text to support your answer.
   » Answers may vary, but may include that the picture is of the British surrender, citing the last line on page 51 (“Cornwallis accepted that he had no choice but to surrender.”); the caption under the image; or the knowledge that a white flag is a sign of surrender.

C  [Read page 52 aloud.]

D  Inferential  What surprise does James Thatcher reveal in his account of the surrender at Yorktown?
   » Cornwallis did not appear at the surrender, but sent General O’Hara instead.

Challenge  If you did not read the main text on page 52, who would you think is pictured on the horse on page 53 and why?

Support  [Remind students that language used in the 1700s was often different from the spoken language they hear today. Discuss how you know the men were both surprised and disappointed to see O’Hara instead of Cornwallis by citing lines from the text: “Every eye was prepared to gaze on Lord Cornwallis, the object of peculiar interest and solicitude; but he disappointed our anxious expectations; pretending indisposition, he made General O’Hara his substitute as the leader of his army.”]

Thousands of people who lived in nearby towns and villages came out to watch the official surrender. The Continental Army lined up on one side of the road and the French on the other. At about two o’clock in the afternoon, the British army marched between the lines of French and Continental troops to surrender. James Thatcher of Massachusetts was present at Yorktown and wrote an account of the surrender:

“It was about two o’clock when the captive army advanced through the line formed for their reception. Every eye was prepared to gaze on Lord Cornwallis, the object of peculiar interest and solicitude; but he disappointed our anxious expectations; pretending indisposition, he made General O’Hara his substitute as the leader of his army. This officer was followed by the conquered troops in a slow and solemn step, with shouldered arms, colors cased and drums beating a British march.”

—James Thatcher
A [Have students read pages 54 and 55 silently.]

B Literal The text says the British troops were directed to ground their arms. Find a sentence in the text that helps explain the meaning of the phrase ground their arms.

   » More than 7,000 British soldiers laid down their guns.

C Inferential Did the surrender of British troops at Yorktown end the war? Find evidence in the text to support your answer.

   » No, fighting continued after Yorktown. The war ended in September 1783 with the Treaty of Paris.

After General O’Hara surrendered, the British troops were directed to ground their arms. More than 7,000 British soldiers laid down their guns. Of course, as James Thatcher recorded, many of them were not happy about it:

> "Some of the platoon officers appeared to be exceedingly chagrined when giving the word ‘ground arms,’ . . . many of the soldiers manifested a sullen temper, throwing their arms on the pile with violence, as if determined to render them useless."

Although there was some fighting for a while after the Battle of Yorktown, the British soon decided that they could not keep up the fight. Six thousand soldiers had surrendered at Saratoga, and another 7,000 at Yorktown. The British government did not have the money it would cost to replace those soldiers. Many British people had also grown weary of the war. In September 1783, the British signed a peace treaty, the Treaty of Paris. The Revolutionary War was over. The colonists had won their independence, and a new nation was born!

Part of the Treaty of Paris
The Marquis de Lafayette

The Marquis de Lafayette was one of the first Europeans to volunteer to assist the colonists in their fight for independence. When he offered to help the colonists fight the British, he was told that no one could afford to pay him. Lafayette agreed to serve without pay. The King of France did not want Lafayette, a nobleman, to go off to war, but Lafayette was determined—even if it meant disobeying the king! Lafayette went so far as to purchase a ship to carry him to North America. Only 19 years old when he arrived, he quickly established himself as one of Washington's top generals in the Continental Army.

D Literal Find examples in the text box about the Marquis de Lafayette that suggest he was a wealthy man.

» He agreed to serve the army without pay and he purchased his own ship to sail to America when he was only 19 years old.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

• Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Literal What European country joined the Continental Army to fight the British, and how did their help influence the outcome of the war?
   » The French brought both land troops and a fleet of ships so the Continental Army was able to corner the British by land and sea at Yorktown, helping the Continental Army win the war.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 6.2. Use the following questions to guide students in adding these events to their timelines as you do so with the displayed timeline:

   1. What European country entered the war in February 1778 to assist the Continental Army?
      » France (France enters the war/the French alliance)
   2. What significant event took place in October 1781 signifying that the Continental Army had won the Revolutionary War?
      » the British surrender at Yorktown
   3. What official document was signed in Paris in September 1783 declaring that colonists had won their independence?
      » Treaty of Paris/peace treaty

• Have students take home Activity Page 10.3 to complete for homework.

Word Work: Impress

1. In the chapter you read, “George Washington was equally impressed and asked von Steuben to train his soldiers.”

2. Say the word impress with me.

3. To impress means to amaze or to cause others to feel admiration or interest.

4. I impressed my mom when I won the spelling bee.

5. What are some examples of things that impress you? Be sure to use the word impress in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ impresses me because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word impress?
   » verb

[Use an Antonyms activity for follow-up.] What does the word impress mean? What are some antonyms, or words that have the opposite meaning, of impress? [Prompt students to provide words like disappoint, underwhelm, and dishearten.] With a partner, create a sentence for each of the antonyms of impress he or she provides.

Note
Question 1 relates to The Big Question of the chapter.
Draft a Body Paragraph

Model Drafting a Body Paragraph

- Remind students they have drafted an introductory paragraph for their cause and effect essay. Remind them they have already completed graphic organizers and responded to writing prompts to plan for writing three body paragraphs.

- Have students take out Activity Page 5.3. Tell them they will examine their response to the writing prompt as you model how to draft a body paragraph.

- Have students turn to Activity Page SR.2.

- Have a student read the “Exemplary” column of the “Body” section for Paragraph 1 on the rubric. Tell students this is the goal of their first body paragraph.

- Tell students they will reach the goal of exemplary status if they follow what you model for them today.

- Refer students to the Sample Writing Prompt Response you prepared in advance.

By 1773, the colonists had been living with unfair taxation for many years. The Stamp Act had been repealed, but the British government imposed new taxes on the colonists. When the British imposed a tax on tea, the colonists boycotted, refusing to buy British tea. Led by the Sons of Liberty, a group of patriots protested and tossed tea into Boston Harbor.

- Tell students you are going to check to see whether you have included the necessary information found in the “Body” section for Paragraph 1 in your response to the writing prompt. Model how to add content to the paragraph, writing on the board/chart paper.

  - Note the first item in the rubric: repeal of the Stamp Act

    » Ask a student to read the sentence where you included the repeal of the Stamp Act: The Stamp Act had been repealed, but the British government imposed new taxes on the colonists.

    » Have students check their own response to the writing prompt. If they did not include the repeal of the Stamp Act, have them circle it on the rubric as a reminder that they need to do so.

  - Note the second item in the rubric: the Boston Massacre

    » Ask a student to read the sentence where you included the Boston Massacre. (This is not included.) Tell students you did not include this information so you will add it now. After the second sentence, insert: Angry crowds gathered in the streets of Boston and the British soldiers opened fire, killing five patriots. This incident became known as the Boston Massacre.

Materials

- Activity Pages 5.3, SR.2
- Sample Writing Prompt Response
Have students check their own response to the writing prompt. If they did not include the Boston Massacre, have them circle it on the rubric as a reminder that they need to do so.

- Note the third item in the rubric: the Boston Tea Party

- Ask a student to read the sentence(s) where you included the Boston Tea Party: When the British imposed a tax on tea, the colonists boycotted, refusing to buy British tea. Led by the Sons of Liberty, a group of patriots protested and tossed tea into Boston Harbor.

- Have students check their own response to the writing prompt. If they did not include the Boston Tea Party, have them circle it on the rubric as a reminder that they need to do so.

Tell students you are going to check for vocabulary from the word bank on Activity Page 5.3. Tell them it is not essential to use every word, but they should have at least five or six. Underline the words you used:

By 1773, the colonists had been living with unfair taxation for many years. The Stamp Act had been repealed, but the British government imposed new taxes on the colonists. Angry crowds gathered in the streets of Boston and the British soldiers opened fire, killing five patriots. This incident became known as the Boston Massacre. When the British imposed a tax on tea, the colonists boycotted, refusing to buy British tea. Led by the Sons of Liberty, a group of patriots protested and tossed tea into Boston Harbor.

Have students underline any words from the word bank included in their own response and make a note of adding more if needed.

- Refer to the Transition Words Poster on display and remind students that transition words help the reader identify the relationship between causes and effects. Tell students you will demonstrate using a few of these words in your own paragraph.

By 1773, the colonists had been living with unfair taxation for many years. The Stamp Act had been repealed, but the British government imposed new taxes on the colonists. Consequently, angry crowds gathered in the streets of Boston. As a result, the British soldiers opened fire, killing five patriots. This incident became known as the Boston Massacre. When the British government imposed a tax on tea, the colonists boycotted, refusing to buy British tea. Led by the Sons of Liberty, a group of patriots protested and tossed tea into Boston Harbor.

Draft a Body Paragraph

10 minutes

- Tell students they will use Activity Page 5.3 to draft a body paragraph, adding content as needed, just as you modeled.

- Have students spend the remainder of the time drafting the first body paragraph.

- Have students finish drafting the first body paragraph for homework.
Guidance for Teacher Use of Rubrics

Rubrics are provided for evaluation of the content and structure of student writing composed within each unit. The criteria within the descriptions correspond to what is taught in the writing lessons. “Exemplary” to “Beginning” performance columns provide graduated descriptions for each criterion. The columns for “Strong,” “Developing,” and “Beginning” performance are shaded to help students initially attend to the description for “Exemplary” performance. Rubrics allow teachers and students to identify graduated steps for improvement when aspects of the writing do not meet all the criteria taught. To do this, teachers (and students) may highlight the language from each row that best describes student writing. Consider the following sample rubric with bolding. The rubric communicates a corresponding piece of writing that was evaluated as:

- Strong for the Introduction section
- between Strong and Developing for the Body section
- Strong for the Conclusion section
- between Strong and Exemplary for the Structure of the Piece

Students might make the following errors:

- declaration: using ‘u’ instead of ‘a’ for /ә/; using ‘shun’ instead of ‘tion’ for /shә*n/
- grievance: using ‘uns’ instead of ‘ance’ for /әns/
- incident: using ‘u’ instead of ‘i’ for /ә/
- independence: using ‘u’ instead of the first ‘e’ for /ә/; using ‘uns’ instead of ‘ence’ for /әns/
- militia: using ‘u’ instead of the first ‘i’ for /ә/; using ‘shu’ or ‘sha’ instead of ‘tia’ for /sh*ә/
- monarchy: using ‘k’ instead of ‘ch’ for /k/
- representative: using ‘u’ instead of the second ‘e’ for /ә/; using ‘u’ instead of ‘a’ for /ә/; using ‘tiv’ instead of ‘tive’ for /tiv/
- surrender: using ‘ser’ instead of ‘sur’ for /ser/
- valiant: using ‘ya’ or ‘yu’ instead of ‘ia’ for /әә/
- victory: using ‘u’ instead of ‘o’ for /ә/

Although any of the above student-error scenarios may occur, misspellings may be due to many other factors. You may find it helpful to use the analysis chart to record any student errors. For example:

- Is the student consistently making errors on specific vowels? Which ones?
- Is the student consistently making errors at the ends of the words?
- Is the student consistently making errors in multisyllable words, but not single-syllable words?
- Also, examine the dictated sentence for errors in capitalization and punctuation.
Lesson 11
Unit 7: The American Revolution

CORE CONTENT OBJECTIVES

Students will:

✓ Identify a timeline for the French alliance, the Continental Army’s departure from Valley Forge, the Battle of Yorktown, the British surrender, and the Treaty of Paris

✓ Explain that the Continental Army benefitted from the assistance of several individuals from different European countries during the war

✓ Explain that a German by the name of von Steuben trained the Continental Army at Valley Forge, helping them secure their first decisive victory at the Battle of Yorktown three years later

✓ Explain that the alliance with France was pivotal in the colonists winning the war

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the Treaty of Paris in 1783 as marking the official end of the Revolutionary War.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use to be verbs in sentences.
Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to distinguish between root words and words with the suffix –able or –ible and use those words correctly in sentences.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will be prepared to practice spelling targeted words.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

• Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

   Read to learn how long the Revolutionary War lasted, and over what great distances the war was fought.

Grammar

• Prepare the following Subject-to be Verb Agreement Poster on the board/chart paper and display for the remainder of the unit. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Fluency (optional)

• Choose and make sufficient copies of a text selection from the online Fluency Supplement to distribute and review with students for additional fluency practice. If you choose to do a fluency assessment, you will assess students in Lesson 15. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

READING

Small Group: Chapter 6 “From Valley Forge to Yorktown”

Review the Chapter

10 minutes

- Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, review student responses to Activity Page 10.3, which was assigned for homework.
- Tell students they will reread Chapter 6, “From Valley Forge to Yorktown.”
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- You may wish to review the following vocabulary words before you reread the chapter:

1. impress, v. to amaze; to cause others to feel admiration or interest (impressed)
2. bayonet, n. a sharp piece of metal attached to the muzzle of a musket (bayonets)
3. model company, n. a group of soldiers deserving to be copied or imitated by others
4. foraging, adj. for the purpose of searching for something, usually food or supplies
5. recruit, v. to search for people to join a group or organization (e.g., the army)
6. decisive, adj. important; without any doubt
7. reinforce, v. to make a group more effective by adding more people or supplies (reinforced)
8. convoy, n. a group of ships traveling together for safety
9. fleet, n. a group of military ships that sail under the same commander

- Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if they forget its meaning.
- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

> Read to learn how long the Revolutionary War lasted, and over what great distances the war was fought.
• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

What European country joined the Continental Army to fight the British, and how did their help influence the outcome of the war?

Establish Small Groups

Before reading the chapter, divide students into two groups using the following guidelines:

Small Group 1: This group should include students who need extra scaffolding and support to read and comprehend the text. Use the guided reading supports to guide students through reading the text. This is an excellent time to make notes in your anecdotal records. Students will complete Activity Page 11.1 with your support while reading.

Small Group 2: This group should include students who are capable of reading and comprehending text without guided support. We encourage you to vary how you assign students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 11.1 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read. Make arrangements to check that students in Small Group 2 have answered the questions on Activity Page 11.1 correctly. You may choose to do one of the following to address this:

- collect the pages and correct them individually
- provide an answer key to students to check their own or a partner’s work after they have completed the activity page
- confer with students individually or as a group at a later time

Over the course of the year, students may change groups, depending on individual students’ needs.

Read “From Valley Forge to Yorktown”

The following guided reading supports are intended for use with Small Group 1. Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
[Have a student read the first paragraph on page 48 aloud.]

Inferential Did all of Washington’s army survive the bitter winter of 1777 to 1778 at Valley Forge? Cite evidence from the text to support your answer.

» No, the text says “those who survived,” suggesting that some men died at Valley Forge.

There is a saying, “what doesn’t kill you makes you stronger.” The winter of 1777 to 1778 was a difficult time for Washington and his men. Those who survived that winter in Valley Forge came to think they were strong enough to survive just about anything!

In February 1778, the French military entered the war to fight alongside the Continental Army. France was a longtime enemy of Great Britain, so they welcomed the opportunity to assist the colonists in their fight against the British. This was good news for the colonists. France had a strong, organized military. French involvement meant help was on the way!

Then, in late February, a man with a heavy German accent arrived in Valley Forge. His name was Friedrich Wilhelm Ludolf Gerhard Augustin von Steuben. The purpose for his arrival began during the previous summer when von Steuben traveled to Paris to volunteer his services to the Count de St. Germain, the French Minister of War. St. Germain had been so impressed with von Steuben’s military experience that he sent him across the Atlantic Ocean to meet George Washington. George Washington was equally impressed and asked von Steuben to train his soldiers. There was just one problem: von Steuben knew only a few words of English. So, he shouted his commands in German, then someone would translate the words into English.
Von Steuben taught the Continental soldiers how to march and stand in formation. He taught them how to advance on the battlefield. He also taught them how to use the bayonets attached to their muskets. Von Steuben trained a model company. Then, the members of this model company trained other companies.

Things began to improve in the spring of 1778. Washington sent out foraging parties to gather cattle, horses, corn, hay, and grains from the local people. They returned with enough food to feed the soldiers at Valley Forge. Washington also appointed a new quartermaster whose job was to make sure the army did not run out of food or supplies. And, last but not least, Washington convinced the Continental Congress to send more money and to recruit more soldiers.

By the time the Continental Army marched out of Valley Forge in June 1778, they were much better prepared to fight as an army. The newly trained Continental Army began to win more battles. Their first decisive victory came in the fall of 1781. At this point, much of the fighting had shifted south to Virginia and the Carolinas. British troops in the south were led by Lord Cornwallis.

C Read the first sentence of the final paragraph on page 49 aloud: “By the time . . .”

D Literal Go back and skim the first two paragraphs on page 49 and cite examples of how the Continental Army was better prepared to fight as an army.

- They had received military training, had more food and supplies, and additional soldiers.

E Inferential How much time passed between the time the Continental Army marched out of Valley Forge and the time they won their first decisive battle?

- more than three years (June 1778 to the fall of 1781)

A  [Have students read page 50 silently.]

B  Literal  In August 1781, where was Lord Cornwallis camped with the British troops?
   » Yorktown, Virginia, at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay

Literal  In August 1781, where was George Washington camped with the colonial troops?
   » outside New York City

C  [Have students reference the map on page 92 of the Reader.]

D  [Have students put a finger on New York and trace the route south, through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, to Virginia. Remind them that Washington intended to march his troops the whole distance, nearly 700 miles, on foot.]

The Beginning of the End

In August 1781, Cornwallis and his men camped at Yorktown, at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay, in Virginia. They were waiting for reinforcements and supplies.

While Cornwallis was setting up camp at Yorktown, Washington was meeting with several French generals outside New York City. The French had sent thousands of troops to assist Washington. Now Washington and the French generals had to decide how to best utilize these new troops. Should they attack the British in New York City, or should they head south and attack Cornwallis in Virginia?

Eventually they decided to march the main Continental Army and most of the French troops south to Virginia and try to trap Cornwallis. But Washington was crafty. He sent out fake messages to make the British think he was actually going to attack New York. The British were fooled by the messages.
In late September, Washington arrived at Yorktown with 4,000 French soldiers and 3,000 Continental soldiers. The Major General of the Continental Army was the Marquis de Lafayette. These new soldiers reinforced Lafayette's men who were already there. The French navy arrived as well, and one of the first things they did was drive away a convoy of British ships that were carrying supplies for Cornwallis and his men. That was when Cornwallis knew he was in trouble. He was cornered by the French and Continental armies, and the French navy had cut off his escape route as well as his supplies!

The French and Continental armies set up cannons and began firing on the British. For days the guns fired constantly. Washington gave orders to fire through the night so the British would not have any quiet time to rest or make repairs.

Cornwallis and his men could not protect themselves and, because of the position of the French fleet, they could not sail away. Eventually, on October 19, 1781, Cornwallis accepted that he had no choice but to surrender.

Inferential  How long did it take the colonial troops to reach Virginia? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

» Less than two months. They left New York in August and arrived in Virginia in late September, so while the text doesn’t provide precise dates, we can infer that it was less than two months.

[Have students look at the illustration on these two pages, reminding them that General O'Hara stood in for Lord Cornwallis when the British troops surrendered.]

Thousands of people who lived in nearby towns and villages came out to watch the official surrender. The Continental Army lined up on one side of the road and the French on the other. At about two o'clock in the afternoon, the British army marched between the lines of French and Continental troops to surrender. James Thatcher of Massachusetts was present at Yorktown and wrote an account of the surrender:

“"It was about two o'clock when the captive army advanced through the line formed for their reception. Every eye was prepared to gaze on Lord Cornwallis, the object of peculiar interest and solicitude; but he disappointed our anxious expectations; pretending indisposition, he made General O’Hara his substitute as the leader of his army. This officer was followed by the conquered troops in a slow and solemn step, with shouldered arms, colors cased and drums beating a British march."

—James Thatcher
John Trumbull, Surrender of Lord Cornwallis
A  [Read page 54 aloud.]

B  Inferential  What was the significance of the Treaty of Paris?
   » The Treaty of Paris marked the official end to the Revolutionary War.

Support  When was the Treaty of Paris signed?
   » September 1783; two years after the British surrender at Yorktown

[Have students record the answer to question 3 on Activity Page 11.1.]

C  [Have students work with a partner to sequence the events of Chapter 6 on Activity Page 11.1.]

After General O’Hara surrendered, the British troops were directed to ground their arms. More than 7,000 British soldiers laid down their guns. Of course, as James Thatcher recorded, many of them were not happy about it:

"Some of the platoon officers appeared to be exceedingly chagrined when giving the word 'ground arms,' . . . many of the soldiers manifested a sullen temper, throwing their arms on the pile with violence, as if determined to render them useless."

Although there was some fighting for a while after the Battle of Yorktown, the British soon decided that they could not keep up the fight. Six thousand soldiers had surrendered at Saratoga, and another 7,000 at Yorktown. The British government did not have the money it would cost to replace those soldiers. Many British people had also grown weary of the war. In September 1783, the British signed a peace treaty, the Treaty of Paris. The Revolutionary War was over. The colonists had won their independence and a new nation was born!
The Marquis de Lafayette was one of the first Europeans to volunteer to assist the colonists in their fight for independence. When he offered to help the colonists fight the British, he was told that no one could afford to pay him. Lafayette agreed to serve without pay. The King of France did not want Lafayette, a nobleman, to go off to war, but Lafayette was determined—even if it meant disobeying the king! Lafayette went so far as to purchase a ship to carry him to North America. Only 19 years old when he arrived, he quickly established himself as one of Washington's top generals in the Continental Army.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson
5 minutes

- Bring the class back together as a group and work as partners to discuss the following question.

1. Evaluative Think Pair Share Using the map on page 93 at the back of the Reader, discuss with your partner how the outcome of the war might have been different if the French had not entered the war. Support your answers with evidence from the text.
   - Answers may vary, but should include the fact that the British were surrounded on all sides, by land and by sea. Without the French fleet of ships, the British may have received additional supplies, enabling them to win the war.

- Have students share their observations with the group. Ensure they understand the importance of the French navy, citing the first paragraph on page 51.

Word Work: Fleet
5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “Cornwallis and his men could not protect themselves and, because of the position of the French fleet, they could not sail away.”

2. Say the word fleet with me.

3. Fleet means a group of military ships that sail under the same commander.

4. The fleet protected the harbor from foreign invaders.

5. What are some other ways a fleet of ships might be used? Be sure to use the word fleet in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “The fleet helped ____.”]

6. What part of speech is the word fleet?
   - noun

GRAMMAR

Introduce Subject-to be Verb Agreement

• Remind students that in the previous lessons they learned about subject-action verb agreement. Review that an action verb describes a subject’s action. Write the following sentence on the board:

The British general surrenders at Yorktown.

• Have students identify the action verb (surrenders).

• Have students provide a list of action verbs and record their answers on the board/chart paper.

• Tell students that today they will learn about a different kind of verb. This type of verb does not show action.

• Refer to the Subject-to be Verb Agreement Poster you prepared in advance.

• Read the definition of to be verbs.
  - to be verbs are linking verbs that link, or connect, the subject to the predicate without showing action. Explain that the examples given in the poster are in the present tense.

• Point out the following:
  - If the subject is I, the correct form of the to be verb is am.
  - If the subject is he, she, it, or a singular noun, the correct form of the to be verb is is.
  - If the subject is you, we, they, or a plural noun, the correct form of the to be verb is are.

Materials

• Subject-to be Verb Agreement Poster
• Activity Page 11.2

Note

The copula be—the to be verb—and the third person singular inflection pose problems for English learners at all levels. Thus, detailed treatment is given to the present tense forms of the to be verb.

Note

Action verbs describe an action or what the subject is doing (e.g., run, walk, paint, write, study). Stative/non-action verbs represent a state of being (e.g., to be, like, love, seem, think, believe).
Introduce Suffixes –able and –ible

- Refer to the Suffixes Poster on display in the classroom and read the definition of a suffix to students.
- Tell students the two suffixes they will study this week are –able and –ible. Explain that the Latin suffixes –able and –ible both mean “able to.”
- Write the suffix –able on the board/chart paper and explain that it is pronounced /ә*әl/. Write the suffix –ible on the board/chart paper and explain that it is also pronounced /ә*әl/.
- Tell students that when –able and –ible are added to nouns or verbs the word becomes an adjective.
- Write enjoy on the board. Briefly discuss the meaning of the word and then use it in a sentence. (Enjoy means to take pleasure in doing or experiencing. I enjoy being outside when it is sunny.)
- Add the suffix –able to enjoy and have students read the new word. Discuss the meaning of the new word. (Enjoyable means able to take pleasure in; able to enjoy.) You may want to point out that the suffix –able changes the part of speech from a verb (enjoy) to an adjective (enjoyable).
- Share the following example of enjoyable used in a sentence.

  Grocery shopping is more enjoyable when the store is not crowded.

- Have students provide sentences using the word enjoyable. (Answers may vary.)
- Ask students for synonyms of enjoyable. (pleasant, delightful, fun)
- Write collect on the board. Briefly discuss the meaning of the word and then use it in a sentence. (Collect means to gather. The children collect leaves from the ground in the fall.)
- Add –ible to collect and have students read the new word; discuss the meaning of the new word. (Collectible means worthy of being collected.) Point out that the suffix –ible changes the part of speech from a verb (collect) to an adjective (collectible).
- You may also want to explain that collectible can sometimes be spelled collectable. (able to be collected)
- Share the following example of collectible used in a sentence:

  Baseball cards are collectible because they can be very valuable.
• Have students provide sentences using the word collectible. (Answers may vary.)

• Ask students for synonyms of collectible. (rare, valuable, collectable)

• Continue in this manner for the remaining –able and –ible words, using the following chart as a guide.

• Have students turn to Activity Page 11.3. Briefly review the directions. Complete the first two sentences together as a class. Have students complete the rest of Activity Page 11.3 for homework, or if you feel they need more assistance, complete the entire activity page as a teacher-guided activity.
Introduce Spelling Words

- Explain that students will practice 12 words related to prefixes and suffixes they have studied in morphology. Apart from the prefix or suffixes, these words do not follow one single spelling pattern. Tell students they will be assessed on these words in Lesson 15.

- Introduce the words by writing them on the board/chart paper. First say the word aloud, and then sound out each syllable, naming each letter aloud as you write it. Continue syllable by syllable until the word is spelled correctly. You may wish to use the pronunciation chart to guide students in saying the words.

1. easily
2. greasy
3. immobile
4. imperfect
5. impossible
6. inflexible
7. insufficient
8. intolerable
9. loudly
10. noisy
11. tasty
12. temporarily

Pronunciation/Syllabication Chart

The following chart includes pronunciation and syllabication information for the spelling words. The first column lists the words. The second column breaks the words into decodable sounds based on the Core Knowledge code approach to decoding words. The third column lists syllable types in each word. This information is provided so you can present these new, unfamiliar spelling words in a way that calls upon and reinforces the manner in which students were taught to decode and encode in the earlier grades.

As you introduce and write each word, it may be helpful if you point out particular spelling patterns within each word and show students where these spellings are reflected on the Individual Code Chart. For example, you might note that the word greasy includes an /ee/ sound in the first syllable of the word (i.e., the first syllable is pronounced /ee/, but spelled ‘ea’) and then point out the ‘ea’ spelling for /ee/ that is included on the Individual Code Chart.

If you are unfamiliar with the CKLA phonics approach and/or have limited phonics training, you may also find the following materials in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide helpful: “Using Chunking to Decode Multisyllable Words” and “Sound and Spelling of Schwa.”

If you have taught CKLA in Grades K–3, you will notice the sound-spelling notation is different in Grade 4 than in previous grades. In Grades K–3, we noted each individual sound spelling within //. For example, the sound spellings for costly would be /k//o// s//t/*//l//ee/. In Grade 4, we use a sound-spelling notation that follows linguistic and dictionary conventions, making each notation easier to see and read. For example, the word costly is now notated as /kost*lee/.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain the concept of heroes and villains and identify several heroes of the American Revolution.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to draft three body paragraphs from notes previously taken for a cause and effect essay.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

• Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn about nonmilitary people who supported the colonies during their war for independence.

Grammar; Morphology; Spelling

• Collect Activity Pages 11.2, 11.3, and 11.5 to review and grade as there are no grammar, morphology, or spelling lessons today.
Materials

- The Road to Independence
- Activity Pages 12.1, 12.2

Introduce the Chapter

- Tell students you will read aloud Chapter 7, “Heroes and Villains.” They should follow along in their Reader as you read.
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is heroes.
- Have them find the word on page 56 of the Reader. Explain that each word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate hero and then have a student read the definition.
- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun—n.; verb—v.; adjective—adj.; adverb—adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
- Have students reference Activity Page 12.1 while you read each vocabulary word and its meaning noting that:
  - The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  - Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.
1. hero, n. a person who is respected for bravery or good qualities (heroes, heroism) (56)

2. villain, n. someone who does evil things (villains) (56)

3. defiant, adj. refusing to obey (58)

4. enlist, v. to volunteer for military service (enlisted) (60)

5. regiment, n. a military unit formed by multiple groups of soldiers (60)

6. heroine, n. a woman who is respected for bravery or good qualities (heroines) (61)

7. skirmish, n. a short, unplanned fight in a war (skirmishes) (61)

8. foil, v. to prevent someone from doing something or achieving a goal (foiled) (63)

9. jeer, n. an insult or put-down (jeers) (63)

10. traitor, n. someone who betrays his or her country, government, or a group he or she belongs to (63)

- Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

  Read to learn about nonmilitary people who supported the colonies during their war for independence.
• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

In what different ways did individuals prove to be heroes of the American Revolution?
Read “Heroes and Villains”

Read the chapter aloud, as students follow along in their Readers. As you read, stop to read and discuss the corresponding guided reading supports. Guided reading supports in brackets are directional and not intended to be read aloud. All other phrases and sentences are intended to be read aloud verbatim. Whenever asking a guided reading support question, explicitly encourage students to refer to the text and reread prior to offering an answer.
A [Have a student read the chapter title.]

[Remind students that a hero is a person who is greatly respected for bravery or good qualities, and a villain is the opposite of a hero; usually someone whose behavior is not respectable. Explain that the same person may be considered a hero by some and a villain by others, depending upon their perspective, or point of view. During the American Revolution, the colonists and the British may have differed in their opinions about who was a hero and who was a villain.]

B [Read page 56 aloud.]

C Literal What evidence does the text give that George Washington was one of the greatest heroes on the American side of the American Revolution?

» He was commander of the Continental Army throughout the war, enduring many battles and hardships along the way.
Helping Hands

There were also many heroes from other countries who came to support the colonists and help them gain independence from Britain. Kościuszko, from Poland, helped the Continental Army win the Battle of Saratoga. Von Steuben, the German, helped Washington transform untrained farmers into a disciplined, well-regulated army. The Marquis de Lafayette was the young Frenchman who was a major in the Continental Army and helped Washington win the Battle of Yorktown.

Another hero was the Scottish sea captain John Paul Jones. Jones went to live in the colonies, and when war broke out he decided to fight on the side of his adopted homeland. In 1779, his ship, Bonhomme Richard, became involved in a sea battle with the British ship Serapis. The Bonhomme Richard had 42 guns. The Serapis had 50 guns. For a while, the two ships floated right next to each other, blasting away. At one point, a British sailor shouted to Jones, asking him if he was ready to surrender.

“Surrender?” Jones shouted back. “I have not yet begun to fight!” In the end, it was the British captain who had to surrender. The story of the victory—along with Jones’s defiant reply—was printed in newspapers and John Paul Jones became a hero.

Nathan Hale, a schoolteacher from Connecticut, demonstrated his heroism in a different way. In 1776, he volunteered to help General Washington with a very dangerous mission. He agreed to sneak behind British lines in New York City and spy on the British army there. Unfortunately, Hale was captured and the British gave orders that he be hanged. However, before he died, according to legend, Hale uttered, “I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country.”
D  Inferential  How does this image support the text?

» Answers may vary, but may include that John Paul Jones is quoted in the text giving his famous reply to those aboard the Serapis, “Surrender? I have not yet begun to fight!”; the most prominent figure in the image is John Paul Jones, shown with his hand cupped as though shouting to the boat in the distance; the image helps the reader visualize the scene.

» John Paul Jones
Unsung Heroes

Saul Matthews, an African enlisted in the Continental Army, served as a soldier in Virginia. His name may be less recognizable today than some of the others, but he became a hero in his own right. Matthews was a successful spy and provided key information about British troop positions. Colonel Josiah Parker commissioned Matthews to go on spying missions in British military camps.

Another unsung colonial hero, James Lafayette Armistead, was asked to become a servant to Lord Cornwallis to spy on him. At some point, Lord Cornwallis asked Armistead to become a spy. Armistead agreed, but what Cornwallis didn’t know was that Armistead was secretly working for the colonial side. He passed along important information to the Continental Army and gave unimportant information to Lord Cornwallis.

Peter Salem, a freed slave, was one of the militiamen who fought in the Battles of Concord and Lexington. He also fought in the Battle of Bunker Hill. Salem went on to join the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment and served in the Continental Army for seven years. Few soldiers served for that length of time. He was considered to be a war hero. As a result, in 1882, a monument was erected in Framingham, Massachusetts, in his honor.
There were also many heroines during this time in American history. George Washington's wife, Martha, played an important role in helping the Continental Army survive at Valley Forge. She helped make clothing for the soldiers and helped take care of the sick.

Abigail Adams, the wife of John Adams, raised their children and managed their farm, but she also housed and fed Continental soldiers. Mrs. Adams was known to write letters to her husband, one of the most important delegates in the Continental Congress. In these letters, Mrs. Adams advocated for women's rights, especially with regard to educational opportunities. She also let him know that she was opposed to slavery.

At the time, most people believed that fighting in the army was strictly a job for men. Some women were allowed to serve in the army, performing duties such as nursing, cooking, searching for food, and even burying the dead. But women who tried to enlist were turned away. Some women, however, disguised themselves as men so they, too, could fight for their country.

Deborah Sampson, from Massachusetts, signed up for the army using the name Robert Shurtleff. Sampson served for a year and a half and fought in several skirmishes. In one of them, she was wounded. Two musket balls lodged in her thigh. Sampson removed one of the balls herself, but the other was buried too deep to be removed. Fortunately, her wound healed and she survived. After the war, Deborah Sampson was recognized by John Hancock for having shown "an extraordinary instance of female heroism."
Another woman, Mary Draper, also fed and clothed Continental soldiers as they marched through her hometown. But she even went so far as to melt down the pewter dishes she owned so that the metal could be used to make bullets.

Still other women became heroes by simply standing up for what they believed. Historians have recorded the story of Mum Bett, an enslaved woman from Massachusetts. It seems Mum Bett may have heard her patriot master reading the Massachusetts State Constitution aloud. Bett thought about the words in that document, “All men are born free and equal.” She figured the words meant that she herself had a right to be equal, and even free. She found a lawyer who was opposed to slavery and convinced him to take her case. To the surprise of many, she won the lawsuit. In 1781, the Supreme Court of Massachusetts ruled that Mum Bett could no longer be held as a slave. She celebrated her victory by taking a new name, Elizabeth Freeman. Her case was one of many factors that helped lead to the end of slavery in Massachusetts.
C From Hero to Villain
Benedict Arnold was a hero—at first. Later, he became more of a villain. He was one of the top Continental Army generals at the Battle of Saratoga and was praised after the victory there. However, Arnold opposed joining forces with the French in 1778. He believed the colonists had traded one enemy for another.

In 1780, Benedict Arnold made a plan to surrender the colonial fort at West Point in New York to the British. When this plan was foiled, Arnold joined the British army. He went on to fight for the British. The cheers for Benedict Arnold the hero quickly turned to jeers for Benedict Arnold the traitor.

D Literal Find evidence in the text to support the claim that Benedict Arnold was a hero in the American Revolution.
> “He was one of the top Continental Army generals at the Battle of Saratoga and was praised after the victory there.”

E Literal Find evidence in the text to support the claim that Benedict Arnold was a villain in the American Revolution.
> “Arnold joined the British army. He went on to fight for the British.”

Support Even today, more than 200 years later, we still use the name Benedict Arnold as a synonym for traitor.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

- Use the following question to discuss the chapter.

1. Literal In what different ways did individuals prove to be heroes of the Revolution? Cite examples from the text to support your answers.
   - Some served as members of the army: Kościusko, von Steuben, Lafayette, John Paul Jones (p. 58); Peter Salem (p. 60); Deborah Sampson (a.k.a. Robert Shurtleff) (p. 61); Benedict Arnold (p. 63)
   - Some served as spies: Nathan Hale (p. 58); Saul Matthews, James Lafayette Armistead (p. 60)
   - Some supported troops by feeding, clothing, and housing the Continental Army: Martha Washington, Abigail Adams (p. 61); Mary Draper (p. 62)
   - Others stood up for beliefs: Abigail Adams (rights for women and slaves) (p. 61); Mum Bett (freedom of slaves) (p. 62)

- Have students turn to Activity Page 12.2 and have them complete it for homework.

Word Work: Defiant

1. In the chapter you read, “The story of the victory—along with Jones’s defiant reply—was printed in newspapers and John Paul Jones became a hero.”
2. Say the word defiant with me.
3. Defiant means refusing to obey.
4. My little brother was defiant when he dove into the swimming pool right after my mom asked him not to go back into the water.
5. What are some other examples of someone being defiant? Be sure to use the word defiant in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ was defiant when . . .”]
6. What part of speech is the word defiant?
   - adjective

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I am going to read several sentences. If the person described in the sentence is defiant, say “S/he’s defiant.” If the person described is not defiant, say “S/he’s not defiant.”
1. Caroline ate two more cookies after her dad told her to put the box of cookies away.
   » She’s defiant.

2. Jamez sat quietly waiting for the show to begin, just as his teacher had instructed.
   » He's not defiant.

3. The puppy continued to jump on the furniture despite repeated attempts to teach him not to.
   » He's defiant.

4. Figaro shouted at the top of his lungs, “I refuse to go to bed no matter what you say!”
   » He's defiant.

5. Carmen leaned back in the dental chair and opened her mouth so that the dentist could examine her teeth.
   » She’s not defiant.

WRITING

Draft Body Paragraphs

Review

- Remind students that in the last writing lesson they drafted the first body paragraph for their cause and effect essay.

- Have students turn to the sections on Activity Pages 7.3 and 8.3 where they responded to writing prompts. Remind them of the procedure you modeled for them in the previous lesson.

  - Check to ensure all necessary information listed in the “Exemplary” column of the “Body” section of the rubric is included. If not, add necessary information to the draft.

  - Check to ensure that at least five or six vocabulary words from the word bank on the planning pages for each paragraph (Activity Pages 7.3, 8.3) are included.

  - Add transition words where appropriate.

  - Copy the writing prompt response onto paper.

Draft Body Paragraphs

- Have students follow the same process to review and revise the remaining body paragraphs. Remind students to use the rubric on Activity Page SR.2 and the word banks on the planning activity pages (Activity Pages 7.3 and 8.3) as they write their paragraphs.

Materials

- Activity Pages 7.3, 8.3, SR.2
• Remind students to check that the information in their paragraphs is in sequential order.

  Support Work with students in a small group who need help comparing their writing prompt responses to the rubric. Help students identify information they have included by placing a check mark on the rubric and circling information on the rubric they need to go back and include.

Wrap Up

• Collect finished body paragraphs to review and monitor student progress.

  Feedback Written feedback may include the following:

  » You have correctly sequenced the causes and effects in each body paragraph.

  » I see that you have included some causes and effects in one paragraph but not all. Go back to the rubric—which one(s) are you missing in your paragraph? Add those to the paragraph.

  » You have included important vocabulary to support the information in your paragraph.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to explain the mysterious disappearance of the main character, Ichabod Crane, in “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.”

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to draft a concluding paragraph for a cause and effect essay.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn why the local people believe a headless horseman haunts the village of Sleepy Hollow.
Materials
- Answer Key for Activity Page 12.2
- Activity Pages 12.2, 13.1
- The Road to Independence

READING

Whole Group: Chapter 8 “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow”

Review
- Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, review student responses to Activity Page 12.2, which was assigned for homework.

Introduce the Chapter
- Tell students they will read Chapter 8, “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow” (Adapted from the story by Washington Irving).
- Explain that Washington Irving was an American author who lived and wrote during the years following the American Revolution. He wrote many well-known short stories set during this time period and is considered one of the first authors of American literature. “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow” was first published in 1820 as part of a collection of stories, nearly 40 years after the American Revolution.
- Point out that this story was adapted from one of Irving’s short stories. Explain that, when a story is adapted, it is changed in some way to make it more suitable for a particular audience. In this case, some of the language has been simplified for modern-day students.
- Explain that this story is a literary text. Remind students that literary texts include elements such as characters, setting, plot, and dialogue. The short story genre of literature is similar to other fiction stories, but generally focuses on one event or theme, has fewer characters, and is shorter than a novel.
- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.
- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.
- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is bewitching.
- Have them find the word on page 64 of the Reader. Explain that each word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.
- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate bewitching, and then have a student read the definition.
- Explain the following:
  - The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun—n.; verb—v.; adjective—adj.; adverb—adv.
  - Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.
Have students reference Activity Page 13.1 while you read each word and its meaning noting that:

- The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
- Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. bewitching, adj. charming, captivating, or enchanting (64)
2. abound, v. to be present in large quantities (abounds) (64)
3. switch, n. a thin stick that bends easily, often used as a whip (64)
4. dread, v. to look ahead to the future with great fear (66)
5. laden, adj. heavily loaded; carrying large amounts (66)
6. suitor, n. a man interested in marrying a certain woman (66)
7. formidable, adj. extremely powerful; worthy of respect (66)
8. burly, adj. strong and heavy (66)
9. woo, v. to try to get someone to love you (wooing) (67)
10. splendor, n. extreme, awe-inspiring beauty (67)

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn why the local people believe a headless horseman haunts the village of Sleepy Hollow.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

Why do people believe a headless horseman haunts the village of Sleepy Hollow?
Read “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow”  25 minutes

Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
A [Have a student read the first paragraph on page 64 aloud.]

B Support This paragraph provides information about the setting of the story. What do we learn about the setting of the story in this paragraph?
» The setting is Sleepy Hollow, a small valley near the Hudson River, near New York City.

Support [Remind students they read about the Hudson River in Chapter 5, “It’s War!” Have students turn to the map on page 92 of the Reader to locate the Hudson River on the map of New York.]

C Inferential The reference to a Hessian soldier and the Revolutionary War in this paragraph tells us about the time period in which the story is set. When can we infer that this story is set?
» sometime shortly after the Revolutionary War

Support [Remind students they read about the Hessian soldiers (soldiers hired to help the British) in Chapter 5, so the reference to a Hessian soldier suggests the story is set around the same time as the American Revolution.]

D Inferential The verb abound means to be present in large quantities. What do you think it means that the valley abounds with local tales, haunted spots, and twilight superstitions?
» Answers may vary, but should reference the text which suggests that people tell lots of stories about haunted places and scary, unusual things that happen there at night.

E Evaluative Summarize in your own words the superstition, or story, that dominated the area.
» Answers may vary, but should reference the text which explains that the valley is thought to be haunted by the ghost of a soldier who lost his head in the Revolutionary War; the ghost rides on horseback to the scene of the battle every night looking for his head, and returns to the cemetery before morning.

F [Have a student read the last two paragraphs on page 64 aloud.]

G Challenge What does this sentence mean: His name was well-suited to him?
» A crane is a bird with very long legs and a long...
According to custom, Ichabod Crane was boarded and lodged at the houses of the farmers whose children he taught. He lived with each family a week at a time. His arrival at a home caused great excitement, for the ladies thought his taste and accomplishments superior to those of the rough, country farmers. He had read many books. He was a perfect master of Cotton Mather’s History of New England Witchcraft. He himself was a firm believer in witches. Ichabod would sit in the schoolhouse after the students had departed, reading old Mather’s book until dusk. Then, as he made his way back to where he was staying, every sound of nature encouraged his overexcited imagination.

Support These paragraphs give us a lot of information about the main character of the story. What do we learn about Ichabod Crane in these paragraphs?

» He is a schoolteacher; he is tall, lanky, with narrow shoulders, long arms and legs, huge ears, green eyes, and a long nose.

Inferential This paragraph says, as he made his way back to where he was staying, every sound of nature encouraged his overexcited imagination. Why was Ichabod Crane afraid? Cite examples from the text to support your answer.

» Answers may vary, but should reference the text including that he stays late at the schoolhouse reading about witchcraft; his belief in witches; and his knowledge of the stories about ghosts in the valley.
A [Read page 66 aloud.]

B Evaluative The first paragraph says: The cost of the pleasure in all this was the terror of his walk home. What does the cost of the pleasure mean, and what does it refer to?
   » Ichabod likes to listen to the ladies’ stories about ghosts and goblins—and of the headless horseman. (the pleasure) However, even though it is pleasurable to hear the stories, they are frightening and activate his imagination as he walks home late at night in the dark. (the cost)

C Support The idiom to be in favor in someone’s eyes means to be desirable or preferred by them. Katrina found favor in Ichabod’s eyes means that Ichabod liked Katrina.

D Support Vast inheritance means that Katrina could gain a great deal of money and land when her father, the farmer, dies.

E Inferential Why is Brom Bones a formidable suitor? Cite evidence from the text.
   » Answers may vary, but may include he is a local hero; he is burly, or strong and heavy, and young; he is well-known for his horsemanship; and he is the neighborhood prankster.

F Support [Have a student reread the last sentence of the last paragraph aloud.] Whenever a crazy prank occurred in the neighborhood, people whispered that Brom Bones must be at the bottom of it. What does this sentence mean?
   » He is responsible for a lot of strange things that happen in the neighborhood.
When Brom Bones began wooing Katrina, most other suitors gave up the chase. But Ichabod Crane continued to hope he might convince Katrina to marry him. He was therefore delighted when he received an invitation to attend a party at Van Tassel’s home. When the day arrived, he dismissed his pupils an hour early. He brushed his old black suit and fussed over his appearance. He borrowed a horse so that he could arrive gallantly mounted. The horse was gaunt and old. His mane was knotted with burrs and he was blind in one eye. Ichabod was a suitable figure for such a steed. His elbows stuck out like a grasshopper’s, and as he rode his arms flapped like a pair of wings.

By the time he arrived, many people from the surrounding countryside were already gathered in the home of Van Tassel. Many beautiful young women stood shoulder to shoulder. But what caught our hero’s gaze as he entered the home was the sight of a table piled high with food. There were sweet cakes and short cakes, ginger cakes and honey cakes. There were roasted chickens, slices of glazed ham, and smoked beef. There were apple and peach and pumpkin pies, and delectable dishes of preserved plums. As Ichabod sampled every dainty, he chuckled to think that he might one day be lord of all this splendor.

H Inferential What does it mean that Ichabod thought he might one day be lord of all this splendor?

» He hopes to marry Katrina and own all of the nice things that Katrina’s family has.

Support Splendor means extreme, awe-inspiring beauty. Lord was a vocabulary word in the Middle Ages unit, meaning a man in the upper class (of the feudal society) who ruled over a large area of land.
A [Have students read page 68 silently.]

B Evaluative Summarize in your own words what happens in the first paragraph.

» Ichabod dances with Katrina while Brom Bones sits in the corner, brooding about the two of them dancing. Ichabod thinks he has surely won Katrina's affections and stays behind to talk to her as the party breaks up. However, the talk doesn’t go well, making it seem as though Katrina does not think Ichabod is the right suitor for her. Ichabod leaves, sad about what has happened, and rides off into the night.

Support  Brooding means to be serious and sad. Who was upset?

» Brom Bones

To be on the high road to success means his plan was working. Who thought his plan was working?

» Ichabod Crane

What was his plan?

» to get Katrina to fall in love with him

Ichabod danced proudly with Katrina, his loosely hung frame clattering about the room, while Brom Bones sat brooding by himself in the corner. When the party began to break up, Ichabod stayed behind to have a little talk with Katrina. He was fully convinced that he was now on the high road to success. However, Ichabod's talk did not go well, for he soon sadly departed. He went straight to the stable and, with several hearty kicks, galloped off into the night.

It was the bewitching time of night, and, as Ichabod made his way home, all the ghost stories that he had heard over the years now came to mind. The night grew darker. The stars seemed to sink deeper in the sky. Ichabod had never felt so lonely. A splash beside the bridge caught his ear. In the darkness, he caught sight of something huge, misshapen, black, and towering. The hair upon his head rose.

"Who's there?" he stammered.

He received no reply.

The shadowy object put itself in motion and bounded into the middle of the road. It appeared to be a large horseman, mounted on a black horse. Ichabod quickened his pace, in hopes of leaving the mysterious horseman behind. The stranger quickened to an equal pace. The reason for the silence of Ichabod's companion soon became clear.
[Have students read page 69 silently.]

Evaluative Summarize in your own words what happens after Ichabod Crane leaves the party.

» It is dark outside and Ichabod gets scared as he begins to think about the scary stories he's heard; he sees something behind him and thinks it is the headless horseman he's heard about; he tries to make his horse go faster, but the figure follows close behind him. The headless horseman throws his head at Ichabod, hitting him in the head. Ichabod falls off his horse as the headless horseman rides off.
A  The next morning Ichabod's old horse was found grazing near the home where Ichabod had been staying. The pupils assembled at the schoolhouse, but no schoolmaster arrived. By the riverbank they found the hat of poor Ichabod and, close beside it, a shattered pumpkin.

B  In inferential Why was there a shattered pumpkin by the riverbank?
   » Answers may vary, but prompt students to recognize and identify that the so-called headless horseman's “head” might really be a pumpkin he throws at Ichabod.

C  Literal What are some examples of the “gossip and speculation” about what happens to Ichabod Crane?
   » He is carried off by the headless horseman; he leaves because he is embarrassed that Katrina doesn't want to be his wife; he is taken by spirits, or ghosts.

D  In inferential Who does the ending imply knows what happens to Ichabod Crane?
   » Brom Bones
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Inferential Why do people believe a headless horseman haunts the village of Sleepy Hollow?
   » Answers may vary, but may include that the area abounds with tales, haunted spots, and superstitions; the story written by Washington Irving helps support these beliefs.

2. Inferential What do you think happens to Ichabod Crane?
   » Answers may vary, but should cite evidence/support from the text including that the figure may be Brom Bones dressed as a “headless horseman” to scare Ichabod Crane; it works because Ichabod runs away scared so Brom could marry Katrina.

   Support Why does Brom Bones look exceedingly knowing whenever the story of Ichabod Crane’s disappearance is told?
   » Prompt students to discuss whether Brom Bones might play a role in Ichabod Crane’s disappearance.

   Support Why would Brom Bones want to scare Ichabod Crane?
   » to get Ichabod Crane to leave town so he could marry Katrina

3. Inferential What clues help you infer that Brom Bones might be involved in Ichabod Crane’s disappearance?
   » Answers may vary, but should cite evidence/support from the text including that he is a good horseman, the neighborhood prankster, and a formidable suitor; and he looks exceedingly knowing whenever the story comes up.

- Tell students they will take home Activity Page 13.2 to read and complete for homework.

Word Work: Dread

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “How often did [Ichabod] dread to look over his shoulder, for fear of catching glimpse of some ghostly being close behind him!”

2. Say the word dread with me.

3. Dread means to look ahead to the future with great fear.

4. My cat dreads when we give her a bath because she is afraid of water.

5. What are some other examples of things people might dread? Be sure to use the word dread in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ might dread _____ because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word dread?
   » verb
Draft a Concluding Paragraph

Introduce a Concluding Paragraph

- Remind students of the structure of their cause and effect essay about the Revolutionary War. They have already drafted an introductory paragraph and three body paragraphs. Tell them they will work in the planning and drafting stages of the writing process to compose a concluding paragraph today.

- Direct students’ attention to the “Conclusion” row of the rubric on Activity Page SR.2.

- Explain that the purpose of the concluding paragraph is to summarize the essay’s content in a clear, concise way. The conclusion should not raise any new questions, but should restate the main idea and recap the content of the essay.

- Remind students the main idea of the cause and effect essay is contained in the introductory paragraph. The main idea of the essay is that multiple causes and effects led to the American Revolution.

- Have a student paraphrase the main idea and write it on the board/chart paper.

The American Revolution resulted from multiple disagreements between Great Britain and the colonists that lasted over the course of many years.

Model Drafting a Concluding Paragraph

- Tell students they will draft a concluding paragraph for their essay today.

- Remind students that their body paragraphs address the multiple causes and effects leading to the American Revolution.

- Tell students you will first model how to write a concluding paragraph. Write your sentences on the board/chart paper as you model.

The American Revolution was caused by many things.

- Follow the opening sentence with a sentence or two that summarizes the body paragraphs.

Materials

- introductory paragraph drafts
- Activity Page SR.2
Great Britain owed a lot of money following the French and Indian War and taxed the colonists to help pay their debts. The British government passed the Stamp Act, forcing the colonists to pay a tax when they purchased paper products. Angered by this new tax, the colonists protested and Great Britain repealed the Stamp Act.

- Tell students that effective concluding paragraphs often end with a sentence that makes a significant statement and wraps up the essay.
- Tell students you will write one last sentence for your concluding paragraph.

But, the colonists were not satisfied and decided to declare independence from Great Britain—even if it meant going to war.

- Ask students what significant statement you used in your concluding paragraph.
  - even if it meant going to war
- Tell students that sometimes writers must revise the introductory paragraph—and even the body paragraphs in an essay—after they write the conclusion. Students will have the opportunity to revise and edit their cause and effect essay after drafting the concluding paragraph.

Draft a Concluding Paragraph

- Have students draft the concluding paragraph for their cause and effect essay, following the format you modeled for them.
- Circulate and check in with students to offer guidance and support as needed.

Wrap Up

- Have partners share their concluding paragraphs, listening to ensure the essay’s contents are summarized in a clear and concise manner.
- Collect completed drafts to review and monitor student progress.

Feedback

Written feedback may address:

» Inclusion of necessary content

» Chronological ordering of events

» Incorporation of vocabulary from word bank

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify literary elements and devices used in “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow,” including characters, setting, and theme.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use modal auxiliary verbs to convey ability and possibility.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice distinguishing between root words and words with the suffix –able or –ible, and use those words correctly in sentences.

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice spelling targeted words.
ADVANCE PREPARATION

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read independently to gain a deeper understanding of the classic short story, “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow,” and identify literary devices, such as simile, metaphor, and hyperbole.

- Collect Activity Page 13.2 to review and grade.

Grammar
- Prepare the Modal Auxiliary Verbs Poster on the board/chart paper and display for the remainder of this unit. Alternatively, you may access a digital version in the digital components for this unit.

Modal Auxiliary Verbs

A modal auxiliary verb:
- is a helping verb and cannot stand alone
- never changes form—you do not need to add -s for the third person singular subject
- is followed by a verb which also does not change in form

She can speak French.

It will rain tomorrow.

Review the Chapter

• Tell students they will reread Chapter 8, “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.”

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• You may wish to review the following vocabulary words before you reread the chapter:

  1. bewitching, adj. charming, captivating, or enchanting (64)
  2. abound, v. to be present in large quantities (abounds) (64)
  3. switch, n. a thin stick that bends easily, often used as a whip (64)
  4. dread, v. to look ahead to the future with great fear (66)
  5. laden, adj. heavily loaded; carrying large amounts (66)
  6. suitor, n. a man interested in marrying a certain woman (66)
  7. formidable, adj. extremely powerful; worthy of respect (66)
  8. burly, adj. strong and heavy (66)
  9. woo, v. to try to get someone to love you (wooing) (67)
  10. splendor, n. extreme, awe-inspiring beauty (67)

• Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if they forget its meaning.

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

   Read independently to gain a deeper understanding of the classic short story, “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow,” and identify literary devices, such as simile, metaphor, and hyperbole.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

   Why do people believe a headless horseman haunts the village of Sleepy Hollow?
Read “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow”

Pair students to read and discuss the chapter. We encourage you to differentiate assigning students either to read independently or with partners, based on their needs. Have students make a note of vocabulary, phrases, or concepts they do not understand, noting the page number, so they may seek clarification. As students read, circulate among the class, monitoring students' focus and progress.

- Have students complete Activity Page 14.1 with their partners while they read.

At this point in the school year, some or all of your students are likely ready for the challenge of reading the entire chapter independently to themselves, especially since this lesson is a reread of the chapter read as a whole group yesterday. Likewise, you may want to ask some or all students to complete Activity Page 14.1 independently, which can then be used as a formative assessment to determine how well each student understood what was read.

Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

Review the correct answers to Activity Page 14.1 with the whole class. You may wish to select different students to read each question and share their responses, including the page number where the answer was located.

1. A simile is a literary device that uses the word like or as to compare two things. This simile helps describe the setting:

   A drowsy, dreamy atmosphere hangs over the valley, as if it were under the sway of some bewitching power.

   Literal What two things are compared in this simile?
   » the atmosphere of the valley and the sway of some bewitching power

   Inferential What mood does this simile convey about the setting?
   » Answers may vary, but should include words similar to spellbinding, haunting, magical, or enchanting. (page 64)

2. A hyperbole is a literary device that uses exaggeration. Underline the hyperbole used to describe the main character, Ichabod Crane, in the following text:

   » In this out-of-the-way place there lived a teacher by the name of Ichabod Crane. His name was well-suited to him. He was tall and very lanky, with narrow shoulders, long arms and legs, and hands that dangled a mile out of his sleeves.

   Inferential Explain the hyperbole in your own words.
   » Answers may vary, but should include the fact that a man’s hands would never hang a mile below his shirtsleeves. This hyperbole means Ichabod has very long hands. (page 64)
3. Literal Underline the two similes used to describe Ichabod Crane in this sentence:

» His elbows stuck out like a grasshopper's, and as he rode, his arms flapped like a pair of wings.

Literal What two things are compared in each simile?

» Ichabod’s elbows are compared to a grasshopper’s; Ichabod’s arms when he rides are compared to a pair of wings.

Evaluative How do these similes help describe what Ichabod Crane looks like?

» Answers may vary, but should include that comparing Ichabod’s elbows and arms to a grasshopper’s hind legs and wings helps the reader visualize how Ichabod looks riding the horse. (page 67)

4. A metaphor is a literary device that expresses comparison but does not use the word like or as.

Literal Which of the following is an example of a metaphor? Circle all that apply.

» A. One might have mistaken [Ichabod Crane] for a scarecrow.

5. Personification is a literary device in which human characteristics are assigned to nonhuman objects. Personification is used in this statement:

> What fearful shapes and shadows jumped across his path! How often did he dread to look over his shoulder, for fear of catching a glimpse of some ghostly being close behind him!

Literal What nonhuman object(s) are assigned human characteristics?

» shapes and shadows

Evaluative Explain the personification in your own words.

» Answers may vary, but should explain that the path seems more frightening because the shapes and shadows are described as having human characteristics (jumping). (page 66)
6. Evaluative Authors often use fear or suspense to build excitement. Do you think this story was scary or suspenseful? Why or why not? Support your answer with examples from the story.
   - Answers may vary, but may include yes, because of the mystical setting of the story, Ichabod’s interest in witchcraft, ghostly sounds, Ichabod’s travels after dusk in a dark wood, tales of a headless horseman, the encounter with this mysterious rider, and Ichabod’s unexplained disappearance. Students may also mention the mood suggested by the illustrations and words used in the text (bewitching, formidable, dread, fear, horror-struck, terror, etc.). Students may say no, because there isn’t much action in the story.

7. Evaluative A theme is a recurring idea or subject in a story. One theme in “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow” is greed. A second theme is real vs. imaginary. Select one theme and provide examples from the text, showing how the author weaves this theme into the story.
   - Answers may vary, but may include Ichabod’s desire to marry Katrina Van Tassel to gain wealth (greed); or ghosts, a headless horseman, imaginative thoughts in the darkness (real vs. imaginary).

- If time permits, you may want to use the following additional question(s) for discussion.

1. Evaluative Based on the information you cited on Activity Page 14.1, which characters are described with more descriptive language and why?
   - Ichabod Crane and the Headless Horseman; because they are the main characters

   Challenge The main character in a story is called the protagonist and the main character’s enemy or rival is called the antagonist. Who is the protagonist and the antagonist in “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow”?
   - The protagonist is Ichabod Crane; the antagonist, or his rival or enemy, is Brom Bones.
Word Work: Formidable

1. In the chapter you read, “The most formidable of all [suitors] was a local hero known as Brom Bones.”

2. Say the word formidable with me.

3. Formidable means extremely powerful, worthy of respect.

4. The British army was a very formidable foe for the Continental Army.

5. What are some other examples of things or people who could be described as formidable? Be sure to use the word formidable in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ is formidable because . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word formidable?
   » adjective

[Use a Making Choices activity for follow-up.] I am going to read several sentences. If the sentence I read describes something that is/was formidable, say, “That is/was a formidable ______.” If the sentence I read does not describe something that is/was formidable, say “That is/was not a formidable ______.”

1. The hurricane damaged a lot of the trees in our yard. Would you say that was or was not a formidable storm?
   » That was a formidable storm.

2. The last soccer team we played was the only team we couldn’t beat. Would you say that the soccer team was or was not a formidable opponent?
   » That was a formidable opponent.

3. Our dog rolls over to have his tummy rubbed when someone comes in the room. Would you say our dog is or is not a formidable guard dog?
   » That is not a formidable guard dog.

4. The British army had more experience and more weapons than the Continental Army. Would you say that the British Army was or was not a formidable enemy?
   » That was a formidable enemy.
INTRODUCE MODAL AUXILIARY VERBS

• Remind students that in the previous lesson they learned how to use the linking verb to be. Have students explain what a linking verb is. If necessary, ask how it is different from an action verb. (A linking verb does not show action.)

• Tell students that today they will learn about another type of verb—the modal auxiliary verb.

• Refer to the Modal Auxiliary Verbs Poster you prepared in advance. As a class, read the definition and rules for using a modal auxiliary verb at the top of the poster.

• Point out the following:
  – A modal auxiliary is always used together with a main verb.
  – A modal auxiliary does not change form. For example, “he cans” is incorrect; “he can” is correct.
  – A modal auxiliary is always followed by a main verb that also does not change form. For example, “he can speaks Spanish” is incorrect; “he can speak Spanish” is correct.

• Tell students that modal means mood and that modal auxiliaries provide information about ability and possibility (i.e., the likelihood that something may take place or happen).

• Read the first section of the poster: “Modal Auxiliary Verbs Used to Express Ability.” Have students take turns reading the example sentences.

• Point out the following:
  – The sentences follow the rules for using a modal auxiliary verb.
  – The modal can is used to express something in the present and the modal could is used to express something in the past.
  – The contracted negative form of the modal can is can’t and the contracted negative form of the modal could is couldn’t.

• Read the second section of the poster: “Modal Auxiliary Verbs Used to Express Possibility.” Have students take turns reading the example sentences.

• Point out the following:
  – The sentences follow the rules for using a modal auxiliary verb.
  – There is a change in the degree of possibility as the modal auxiliary verbs move from will to will not/won’t.
  – The contracted negative form of the modal will is won’t.
• Have students turn to Activity Page 14.2. Review the directions for each section. Have students begin working on the activity page. Circulate around the room to be certain that students understand the directions and offer support when needed.

• Have students complete Activity Page 14.2 for homework.

MORPHOLOGY 15 minutes

Practice Suffixes –able and –ible

• Refer to the Suffixes Poster on display in the classroom. Review what a suffix is and review the suffixes –able and –ible you added to the poster in Lesson 11. Remind students that when –able or –ible are added to verbs or nouns, the new word is an adjective.

• Refer to the word list on the board/chart paper. Have a student read the words aloud: visible, accessible, collectible, portable, comfortable, predictable, enjoyable.

• Model aloud how to think about the meaning of the word predictable: “You can predict something that you know about in advance. So predictable describes something that is able to be known in advance, or predicted.”

• Tell students you will read some sentences aloud, but will leave a word out. Students must listen carefully and decide which word from the list best completes the sentence.

• Read the following sentences aloud and have students identify the missing word for each:
  – The chair was really soft with big arms and a matching footrest so it was the most ________ seat in the room. (comfortable)
  – My teacher has a ________ computer that he can take home with him. (portable)
  – We had a very ________ day visiting the science museum and the new exhibit on sharks. (enjoyable)

• Have students turn to Activity Page 14.3. Briefly review the directions, complete the first sentence as a group, and then have students complete the remainder independently.

• Collect Activity Page 14.3 to review and grade at a later time.

SPELLING

Practice Spelling Words

- Tell students they will practice writing the spelling words.
- Have students turn to Activity Page 14.4, explaining that the spelling words are listed in the box on the activity page and on the board/chart paper from the first lesson.
- Have students read sentence 1 silently and fill in the blank. After students complete it, call on one student to read the sentence aloud with the spelling word in the blank.
- Ask students if anyone had a different answer. Discuss the correct answer to ensure students understand why it is correct.
- Have students check their spelling with the spelling in the word bank at the top of the activity page, make corrections if needed, and then turn their page over.
- Have students say, spell, and say the word again with you without looking at their paper. Students may close their eyes, look up at the ceiling, or trace on the back of their paper with their finger to help them visualize the spelling as they spell with you.
- Turn the page over and repeat the steps for the remaining items.
- Complete the say, spell, say the word again step for the unused words: greasy, inflexible, intolerable, and loudly.
- Then, have students work independently to write their sentences for each of the words.
- Remind students they will complete their spelling assessment during the next lesson.
- Collect Activity Page 14.4 to review and grade at a later time.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Spelling: By the end of this lesson, students will have been assessed on the unit-related spelling words.

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to identify the historical context for Washington Irving’s “Rip Van Winkle.”

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to constructively share writing with a group, setting goals for revision.

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Spelling
- Erase or cover the list of spelling words prior to the assessment.

Reading
- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this and The Big Question in the digital components for this unit.

Read to learn the historical context in which Washington Irving sets another one of his fictional characters.

Writing
- Prepare for students to work in small groups to share their writing.
Grammar

- Collect Activity Page 14.2 to review and grade as there is no grammar lesson today.

Fluency (optional)

- If students were assigned a selection from the Fluency Supplement, determine which students will read the selection aloud and when. See the Unit 1 Teacher Guide introduction for more information on using the Fluency Supplement.

SPELLING

Assessment

- Have students turn to Activity Page 15.1 for the spelling assessment.
- Using the following list, read the words one at a time in the following manner: Say the word, use it in a sentence, and then repeat the word.
- Tell students that at the end you will review the list once more.
- Remind students to pronounce and spell each word syllable by syllable.

Note

This is a good opportunity to use the Tens scoring system to gather formative assessment data. Information about the Tens scoring system appears in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide.
• Ask students to write the following sentence as dictated.

The insufficient food and clothing created intolerable conditions for the troops.

• Repeat the sentence slowly several times, reminding students to check their work for appropriate capitalization and punctuation.

• Collect all spelling assessments to grade later. Use of the template provided at the end of this lesson is highly recommended to identify and analyze students’ errors.

READING

Whole Group: Chapter 9 “Rip Van Winkle”

Introduce the Chapter

- Tell students they will read Chapter 9, “Rip Van Winkle” (adapted from the story by Washington Irving).

- Remind students that Washington Irving also wrote “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.” Tell them that both stories were part of the same collection of stories, The Sketch Book of Geoffrey Crayon, published as a series of short stories throughout 1819 and 1820, nearly 40 years after the end of the Revolutionary War.

- Remind students what it means to say that this chapter is “adapted from the story by Washington Irving.” (When a story is adapted, it is changed in some way to make it more suitable for a particular audience.)

- Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter. Have a student read the title aloud.

- Tell students there will likely be many unfamiliar words in the text and encourage them to stop you and ask for an explanation as you guide them through the first reading of the story today.

- Preview the core vocabulary words before reading the chapter.

- Begin by telling students the first vocabulary word they will encounter in this chapter is provoked.

- Have them find the word on page 72 of the Reader. Explain that each vocabulary word is bolded the first time it appears in the chapter.

- Explain that the glossary contains definitions of all the vocabulary words in this Reader. Have students refer to the glossary at the back of the Reader, locate prove and then have a student read the definition.

• Explain the following:

• The part of speech follows each word in an abbreviated format as follows: noun–n.; verb–v.; adjective–adj.; adverb–adv.
  – Alternate forms of the word appearing in the chapter may follow the definition. They may be a different part of speech than the original word.

• Have students reference Activity Page 15.2 while you read each vocabulary word and its meaning noting that:
  – The page number (for the first occurrence of the word in the chapter) appears in bold print after the definition.
  – Words are listed in the order in which they appear in the chapter.

1. provoke, v. to cause something to happen; to bring out anger in a person or people (provoked) (72)
2. console, v. to comfort or try to make someone feel better and less sad (72)
3. peal, n. a loud noise or repeated noises (peals) (74)
4. ninepins, n. a bowling game played with nine pins (74)
5. breeches, n. pants that cover the hips down to just below the knee (74)
6. melancholy, adj. sad or depressed (74)
7. skeptical, adj. doubtful (79)
8. revere, v. to respect or honor (revered) (79)
9. henpecked, adj. used to describe a man who is constantly controlled and criticized by his wife (79)

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read to learn the historical context in which Washington Irving sets another one of his fictional characters.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

How does Washington Irving weave fact and fiction together in the telling of “Rip Van Winkle”?

Read “Rip Van Winkle” 25 minutes

Guided reading supports in brackets are intended to guide you in facilitating discussion and should not be read verbatim to students. Guided reading supports not in brackets should be read aloud verbatim.
A [Read the first two paragraphs on page 72 aloud.]

B Literal What kind of person is Rip Van Winkle? Find words in the text to describe him.

» He is a simple, good-natured fellow; a kind neighbor; a lovable soul who is ready to attend to anybody’s business but his own; one of those happy fools who lives without a care.

C Literal How does Rip’s wife respond to him? Support your answer with evidence from the text.

» She complains about him. (“His wife was continually complaining about his laziness and the ruin he was bringing upon his family.”)
When he shrugs and doesn’t reply to her complaints, it provokes “a fresh attack from his wife.” In other words, his inactivity causes his wife to yell at him.

Support Rather starve on a penny than work for a pound means he would rather have no money than have to work for it. [Explain that in Great Britain, a pound is roughly equivalent to the American dollar.]

Support By helping his neighbors but not his own family, Rip’s wife feels Rip is “bringing ruin” on his family; in other words, he is not working to take care of his family. [Point out the last sentence of the first paragraph: As to keeping his own farm in order, he found it impossible, and his children were as ragged as if they belonged to nobody.]

D [Read the final paragraph on page 72 aloud, continuing to the end of the paragraph at the top of page 74.]
Rip used to console himself, when driven from home, with the company of a group of other men who met on a bench in front of an inn.

» Students should be able to identify the two men at the inn who are identified by name in the text (Van Bummel, standing with the newspaper in his hands, and Nicholas Vedder, sitting on the bench with his pipe), as well as the portrait of King George III hanging above the door of the inn.

Challenge What clue does the portrait of King George III hanging above the door of the inn provide about the time period in which this part of the story takes place?

» The text refers to His Majesty, suggesting that King George is the present king, so this part of the story likely takes place before or during the Revolutionary War.
[Have students read the rest of page 74 silently.]

Literal Why does Rip Van Winkle leave home?
» He leaves “to escape the hard work of the farm and the complaints of his wife.”

Evaluative What kind of mood is created by the description of Rip Van Winkle’s encounter with the strangers? Provide examples from the text to support your answer.
» Answers may vary, but may include a ghostly, suspenseful mood (“narrow gully,” “peals like thunder,” “deep ravine”) or a frightening mood (“melancholy party,” “his heart turned within him and his knees banged together”).

Support Melancholy means sad or depressed, so the men look sad and depressed.

One day, seeking to escape the hard work of the farm and the complaints of his wife, Rip grabbed his gun and walked into the Catskill Mountains to hunt for squirrels. All day the mountains echoed with the sound of shots fired from his gun. Finally, he sat down on a little green hill that looked down into the valley below. Rip admired the scene as evening gradually advanced and sighed as he thought about the journey home.

As he was about to descend, he heard a voice calling, “Rip Van Winkle! Rip Van Winkle!” He caught sight of a strange figure climbing up the rocks, carrying something on its back. Rip was surprised to see any human being in this lonely place, but he concluded that it must be one of his neighbors in need of assistance. Rip hurried down to help. The stranger was a short old fellow with a grizzled beard. His clothes were old-fashioned and he carried a stout keg that Rip supposed was full of something refreshing to drink. He made signs for Rip to assist him, and together they clambered up a narrow gully. Every now and then long rolling peals like thunder seemed to issue out of a deep ravine. Passing through this ravine, they came to a hollow.

In the center was a company of odd-looking persons playing at ninepins. The thunderous noise Rip had heard from afar was the sound of the ball rolling toward the pins. Like Rip’s guide, they were dressed in an outlandish fashion, with enormous breeches. What seemed particularly odd to Rip was that these folks looked very serious indeed. They played without speaking and were, in fact, the most melancholy party he had ever witnessed. They stared at Rip in such a way that his heart turned within him and his knees banged together.
Rip and his guide joined the party. His guide emptied the keg into large tankards, and the men sipped in silence. When they were done, they returned to their game. As Rip’s fear subsided, he ventured to taste the thunderous noise Rip had heard from afar was the sound of the ball rolling toward the pins.
A Support Dame is another word for woman or Mrs.; Dame Van Winkle is Rip’s wife.

» It appears that the odd little men are putting Rip Van Winkle under a spell.

Upon waking, Rip found himself on the green hill where he had first seen the old man. It was a bright, sunny morning. “Surely,” thought Rip, “I have not slept here all night.” He recalled the strange men. “Oh! What excuse shall I make to Dame Van Winkle?” He looked around for his gun, but found only an old, rusty firearm. Suspecting he had been robbed, he decided to find the old-fashioned men and demand his gun. As he rose to walk, he found himself stiff in the joints. With some difficulty, he found the gully up which he and his companion had ascended, but could find no traces of the ravine that had led to the area with the odd little men playing ninepins. He shouldered the rusty firearm and, with a heart full of trouble, turned his steps homeward.

As he approached the village, he met a number of people, but none whom he knew. This surprised him, for he thought he was acquainted with every one of his neighbors. Their dress, too, was of a different fashion. They all stared at him with surprise and stroked their chins. When Rip did the same, he found to his astonishment that his beard had grown a foot long! A troop of children ran at his heels, hooting after him and pointing at his gray beard. There were houses in the... village that he had never seen before, with unfamiliar names over the doors. He began to wonder whether both he and the world around him were bewitched.

With some difficulty he found his own house. The roof had fallen in and the door was off its hinges. He entered and called for his wife and children, but all was silent. He spotted a dog that looked like his own and called out to him, but the dog snarled and showed his teeth. “My own dog has forgotten me,” sighed poor Rip.

He hurried to the village inn. Before it now hung a flag with stars and stripes. He spotted the face of King George on the sign, but now his red coat was blue, his head wore a cocked hat, and underneath the figure was printed GENERAL WASHINGTON. There was a crowd of people around the door, but none that Rip knew. He inquired, “Where’s Nicholas Vedder?”

C  Inferential  Bewitched means under a spell. Why does Rip Van Winkle wonder whether he and the world around him are under a spell? Cite specific examples from the text.

» Answers may vary, but may include that everyone and everything seems strange to him upon waking; he is unable to find his gun; unable to find familiar paths; has stiff joints; does not recognize people or houses in his village; notices a change in fashion; and his beard has grown a foot long.

Inferential What do all of these changes suggest has happened?

» A great deal of time has passed.

D  Inferential What does Rip Van Winkle encounter at the inn that conveys the passage of time? Cite evidence from the text.

» Answers may vary, but should include a flag with stars and stripes now hung at the inn; the image of King George on the sign has been changed; and now the words beneath the portrait read “General Washington.”

E  Inferential What does Rip Van Winkle encounter at the inn that conveys the passage of time? Cite evidence from the text.

B Inferential When Rip Van Winkle inquires about his friends, Nicholas Vedder and Van Bummel, what do the villagers’ responses tell Rip about the passage of time? Cite examples from the text.

» Nicholas Vedder “is dead and gone these eighteen years!” Van Bummel “went off to the wars and is now in Congress.” These responses indicate a lot of time has passed since Rip left.

There was silence. Then an old man replied, “Nicholas Vedder? Why he is dead and gone these eighteen years!”

“Where’s Van Bummel, the schoolmaster?” asked Rip.

“He went off to the wars and is now in Congress,” the old man answered.

Rip’s heart sank at hearing of these sad changes. “I’m not myself,” he said sadly. “I was myself last night, but I fell asleep. Now everything has changed, and I can’t tell who I am!”

“I was myself last night, but I fell asleep. Now everything has changed, and I can’t tell who I am!”
The bystanders looked at each other in puzzlement. Then a young woman pressed through the throng. She had a child in her arms, which, frightened by the gray-bearded man's looks, began to cry. "Hush, Rip," she murmured. "The old man won't hurt you."

The name of the child and the air of the mother awakened long-ago memories in Rip's mind. He caught the mother in his arms and said, "I am your father—young Rip Van Winkle once—old Rip Van Winkle now! Does nobody know poor Rip Van Winkle?"

All stood amazed for a while. Then an old woman exclaimed, "Sure enough! It is Rip Van Winkle! Welcome home again, old neighbor! Why, where have you been these twenty years?"

Rip's story was soon told, for the whole twenty years had been to him but one night. Many were skeptical, but an old man who was well-versed in the local traditions confirmed his story in the most satisfactory manner. He assured the company that the Catskill Mountains had always been haunted by strange beings, and that his own father had once seen these odd little men playing ninepins in the hollow of the mountain. (D)

Rip's daughter took him home to live with her. (Her mother had died some years before.) Having arrived at that happy age when a man can retire and rest, Rip took his place once more on the bench at the inn and was revered as one of the wise, old men of the village. He used to tell his story to every stranger that arrived. Some doubted the truth of it, but the old villagers gave Rip full credit. (E)

Even to this day, whenever a thunderstorm blows in, they say that the odd little men are at their game of ninepins; and it is a common wish of all henpecked husbands in the neighborhood, when life hangs heavy on their hands, that they might take themselves up into the Catskill Mountains in search of an adventure.

C [Read the rest of page 79 aloud.]

D Literal How do the villagers first react to the news that Rip Van Winkle has been asleep for 20 years?

» They are amazed. Many are skeptical, or doubtful.

Literal What explanation seems to satisfy the villagers and turn their doubts into belief?

» An old man who is well-versed in local traditions confirms Rip's story to everyone's satisfaction.

E Literal After 20 years away, how is Rip Van Winkle treated by people in his village?

» He is welcomed back; he is admired, or "revered as one of the wise, old men of the village."

Support Revered means respected or honored.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

- Use the following questions to discuss the chapter.

1. Literal What is the historical context in which Washington Irving sets the story of “Rip Van Winkle”?
   » This story begins when King George III still ruled the colonies and ends after the Revolutionary War in which the colonies won their independence from Great Britain.

2. Evaluative Think Pair Share In spite of its historical context, what details from the story suggest “Rip Van Winkle” is a fictional tale?
   » Answers may vary, but should include the supernatural aspects like Rip’s sleeping for 20 years and odd little men causing thunderstorms.

- Have students complete Activity Page 15.3 for homework.

Word Work: Console

1. In the chapter you read, “Rip used to console himself, when driven from home, with the company of a group of other men who met on a bench in front of an inn.”

2. Say the word console with me.

3. Console means to comfort or try to make someone feel better and less sad.

4. My mom gave me a big hug to console me when I bumped my head.

5. What are some other examples of consoling someone? Be sure to use the word console in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ consoles _____ when . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word console?
   » verb

[Use a Discussion activity for follow-up.] Describe a time when you have been consoled or when you have consoled someone else. Be sure to begin your responses with “I was consoled by _____ when . . .” or “I consoled _____ when . . .”
Share Cause and Effect Essays

Introduce Sharing Cause and Effect Essays

- Return the essays you collected during the previous lesson, ensuring that each student has their cause and effect essay draft.
- Point out that now students have a complete draft of their cause and effect essay. Tell students today they will be working in the share and evaluate stages of the writing process to receive feedback and reflect on their essay. Receiving feedback and reflecting on writing helps writers refine what they have written to make it more clear and enjoyable for readers to read.
- Discuss expectations for speaking, listening, and responding.

• Students might make the following errors:
  – noisy: using ‘z’ instead of ‘s’ for /z/
  – tasty: using ‘ee’ instead of ‘y’ for /ee/
  – loudly: using ‘ee’ instead of ‘y’ for /ee/
  – temporarily: using ‘er’ instead of ‘or’ for /әr/; using ‘u’ instead of ‘i’ for /ә/; using ‘ee’ instead of ‘y’ for /ee/
  – immobile: using ‘ble’ or ‘bul’ instead of ‘bile’ for /bal/

  – intolerable: using ‘i’ or ‘u’ instead of ‘a’ for /ә/; using ‘bul’ instead of ‘ble’ for /bal/

• Although any of the above student-error scenarios may occur, misspellings may be due to many other factors. You may find it helpful to use the analysis chart to record any student errors. For example:
  – Is the student consistently making errors on specific vowels? Which ones?
  – Is the student consistently making errors at the ends of the words?
  – Is the student consistently making errors in multisyllable words, but not single-syllable words?

• Also, examine the dictated sentence for errors in capitalization and punctuation.

Primary Focus of Lessons

Reading: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to compare two portions of the text through a close rereading.

Grammar: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to use to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs correctly in sentences.

Morphology: By the end of this lesson, students will have gained additional practice distinguishing between root words and words with the suffix –able or –ible and use those words correctly in sentences.

Writing: By the end of this lesson, students will have used an editing checklist to edit a cause and effect essay.

Advance Preparation

Reading

- Write the purpose for reading on the board/chart paper. Alternatively, you may access a digital version of this in the digital components for this unit.

Read closely to compare Rip Van Winkle’s life before and after his adventure in the Catskill Mountains.
Grammar

• Write the following sentences on the board/chart paper:

The soldiers ______ joyful that the war ______ end soon. (to be, will)
I ______ curious about what ______ happen next. (to be, might)

Morphology

• Write the following words on the board/chart paper: enjoy, enjoyable, predict, predictable, access, accessible, collect, collectible

READING

Close Reading: Chapter 9 “Rip Van Winkle” 40 minutes

Review the Chapter 10 minutes

• Using the Answer Key at the back of this Teacher Guide, review student responses to Activity Page 15.3, which was assigned for homework.

• Tell students they will reread two portions of Chapter 9, “Rip Van Winkle.”

• Remind students that the tale of Rip Van Winkle spans 20 years, including both time before and after the Revolutionary War in America. Tell them they will focus on Rip Van Winkle’s village life before and after his long sleep.

• Have students turn to the table of contents, locate the chapter, and then turn to the first page of the chapter.

• Read the purpose for reading from the board/chart paper:

Read closely to compare Rip Van Winkle’s life before and after his adventure in the Catskill Mountains.

• Have one student read The Big Question at the beginning of the chapter. Ensure students understand the meaning of The Big Question before reading the chapter.

How does Washington Irving weave fact and fiction together in the telling of “Rip Van Winkle”?

Close Reading

There are many ways for students to respond to the questions. Vary how you elicit students' responses to promote student engagement. For example:

- Have students work in pairs. Following each question, direct students to consult with their partner about the correct response before one student responds.

- Have students work in small groups of three or four students. Following each question, direct students to consult with others in their group about the correct response before one student responds.

- Following a question, have all students provide a written response before one student responds orally.

Read “Rip Van Winkle”       25 minutes

Read the title of the chapter, “Rip Van Winkle,” as a class. As you read portions of the chapter, pause to explain or clarify the text at each point indicated.

Note

Close reading lessons present excellent opportunities to ensure that English learners and other students who need additional support fully comprehend a reading selection.
A [Have a student read the first paragraph on page 72 aloud.]

B COMP Inferential What does it mean that Rip Van Winkle is “ready to attend to anybody’s business but his own”?

> He neglects things in his own life for which he should be responsible.

Support What two details from the paragraph help explain the meaning of the phrase ready to attend to anybody’s business but his own?

> “As to keeping his own farm in order, he found it impossible”; and “his children were as ragged as if they belonged to nobody.”

C [Read the second paragraph aloud.]

D COMP Literal Cite descriptions of Rip Van Winkle from the text that may provoke his wife’s complaints.

> Answers may vary, but may include that he is “one of those happy fools who lived without a care”; he “ate white bread or brown, whichever required less thought or trouble”; and he “preferred to starve on a penny than work for a pound.”

E COMP Inferential From these opening paragraphs, what can you infer about the relationship between Rip Van Winkle and his wife?

> Answers may vary, but should include they do not appear to be happy together, as she is constantly complaining, and he frequently leaves the house to avoid her attacks.

F [Have a student read the third paragraph aloud, including the end of the paragraph on page 74.]

G VOC Inferential Console means to comfort or try to make someone feel better, less sad. How do you think Rip Van Winkle’s wife feels about the way he spends his time with the other men to comfort himself? Explain your answer.

> Answers may vary, but may include that Rip’s wife would not approve of sitting around gossiping, telling stories, and reading newspapers; she would think this is a waste of time, as he is doing nothing to earn money to support his family.
Rip used to console himself, when driven from home, with the company of a group of other men who met on a bench in front of an inn.
the beverage, too. Before long, the events of the day and the mountain air overpowered Rip, and he fell into a deep sleep.

Upon waking, Rip found himself on the green hill where he had first seen the old man. It was a bright, sunny morning. “Surely,” thought Rip, “I have not slept here all night.” He recalled the strange men. “Oh! What excuse shall I make to Dame Van Winkle?” He looked around for his gun, but found only an old, rusty firearm. Suspecting he had been robbed, he decided to find the old-fashioned men and demand his gun. As he rose to walk, he found himself stiff in the joints. With some difficulty, he found the gully up which he and his companion had ascended, but could find no traces of the ravine that had led to the area with the odd little men playing ninepins. He shouldered the rusty firearm and, with a heart full of trouble, turned his steps homeward.

As he approached the village, he met a number of people, but none whom he knew. This surprised him, for he thought he was acquainted with every one of his neighbors. Their dress, too, was of a different fashion. They all stared at him with surprise and stroked their chins. When Rip did the same, he found to his astonishment that his beard had grown a foot long! A troop of children ran at his heels, hooting after him and pointing at his gray beard. There were houses in the village that he had never seen before, with unfamiliar names over the doors. He began to wonder whether both he and the world around him were bewitched.

With some difficulty he found his own house. The roof had fallen in and the door was off its hinges. He entered and called for his wife and children, but all was silent. He spotted a dog that looked like his own and called out to him, but the dog snarled and showed his teeth.
“My own dog has forgotten me,” sighed poor Rip.

He hurried to the village inn. Before it now hung a flag with stars and stripes. He spotted the face of King George on the sign, but now his red coat was blue, his head wore a cocked hat, and underneath the figure was printed GENERAL WASHINGTON. There was a crowd of people around the door, but none that Rip knew. He inquired, “Where’s Nicholas Vedder?”

A troop of children ran at his heels, hooting after him and pointing at his gray beard.

A [Have students read page 77 silently, beginning with the first full paragraph.]

B COMP Evaluative How does information you have learned from other chapters help you interpret the meaning of the changes to the portrait of King George at the inn: “now his red coat was blue, his head wore a cocked hat, and underneath the figure was printed GENERAL WASHINGTON”?

» Answers may vary, but may include that the British were called redcoats because of their red uniforms, so now the red uniform has been exchanged for the blue color of General Washington’s Continental Army uniform; the typical headwear for the patriots was a tri-cornered, or cocked, hat; General Washington was the commander of the Continental Army, which defeated King George’s army, so he is now the one revered in public places rather than the king.
A [Have students read page 78 silently.]

B VOC Inferential The idiom heart sank is used in the first sentence of this paragraph. What does it mean that Rip’s heart sank?

- Rip is discouraged and disappointed over hearing about all the changes in his village.

There was silence. Then an old man replied, “Nicholas Vedder? Why he is dead and gone these eighteen years!”

“Where’s Van Bummel, the schoolmaster?” asked Rip.

“He went off to the wars and is now in Congress,” the old man answered.

Rip’s heart sank at hearing of these sad changes. “I’m not myself,” he said sadly. “I was myself last night, but I fell asleep. Now everything has changed, and I can’t tell who I am!”

“I was myself last night, but I fell asleep. Now everything has changed, and I can’t tell who I am!”
The bystanders looked at each other in puzzlement. Then a young woman pressed through the throng. She had a child in her arms, which, frightened by the gray-bearded man’s looks, began to cry. “Hush, Rip,” she murmured. “The old man won’t hurt you.”

The name of the child and the air of the mother awakened long-ago memories in Rip’s mind. He caught the mother in his arms and said, “I am your father—young Rip Van Winkle once—old Rip Van Winkle now! Does nobody know poor Rip Van Winkle?”

All stood amazed for a while. Then an old woman exclaimed, “Sure enough! It is Rip Van Winkle! Welcome home again, old neighbor! Why, where have you been these twenty years?”

Rip’s story was soon told, for the whole twenty years had been to him but one night. Many were skeptical, but an old man who was well-versed in the local traditions confirmed his story in the most satisfactory manner. He assured the company that the Catskill Mountains had always been haunted by strange beings, and that his own father had once seen these odd little men playing ninepins in the hollow of the mountain.

Rip’s daughter took him home to live with her. (Her mother had died some years before.) Having arrived at that happy age when a man can retire and rest, Rip took his place once more on the bench at the inn and was revered as one of the wise, old men of the village. He used to tell his story to every stranger that arrived. Some doubted the truth of it, but the old villagers gave Rip full credit.

Even to this day, whenever a thunderstorm blows in, they say that the odd little men are at their game of ninepins; and it is a common wish of all henpecked husbands in the neighborhood, when life hangs heavy on their hands, that they might take themselves up into the Catskill Mountains in search of an adventure.

- C [Have a student read the first paragraph on page 79 aloud.]
- D VOC Inferential Air is a multiple-meaning word. Air can mean the invisible gases surrounding the earth. Air can also mean appearance, or certain quality. What is the meaning of the word air in this context?
  » appearance or certain quality
- E [Have students read the next two paragraphs on page 79 silently.]
- F VOC Inferential When Rip tells his story, many are skeptical. What does the word skeptical mean, and what clues to its meaning are contained in the text?
  » having or expressing doubt about something; someone “well-versed in local traditions” confirmed the story “in the most satisfactory manner.”
- G [Have students read the last two paragraphs on page 79 silently.]
- H COMP Inferential Rip returns to the same inn he used to frequent many years ago. What two details from the text suggest that aging has changed the way others view him now?
  » “Having arrived at that happy age when a man can retire and rest”; and Rip is “revered as one of the wise, old men of the village.”
- I [Reread the final paragraph on page 79 aloud.]
- J VOC Evaluative The idiom when life hangs heavy on their hands means that time passes very slowly, suggesting that life may be burdensome or dull. What clue does this idiom provide to the meaning of the phrase henpecked husbands?
  » This idiom suggests that when the neighborhood men feel burdened and bored because of their wives’ constant criticism, they remember how Rip Van Winkle went into the mountains to escape his wife’s complaints, and dream about escaping to an adventure, too.

Support Henpecked is used to describe a man who is constantly controlled and criticized by his wife.
Discuss the Chapter and Wrap Up the Lesson

5 minutes

• Tell students that many people consider Washington Irving’s “Rip Van Winkle” to be an allegory of the American Revolution. Tell them an allegory is a story in which the characters and events are symbols that stand for political or historical situations.

• Remind students that Rip Van Winkle thinks his wife is very controlling. Tell them to think of Rip Van Winkle as a symbol of Colonial America and Dame Van Winkle as a symbol of Great Britain. In other words, Dame Van Winkle tries to control Rip in the same way that Great Britain tried to control Colonial America.

• Tell students that Colonial America and Rip Van Winkle are both symbols of independence. Tell them Colonial America gained its independence from Great Britain during the American Revolution. Ask them how Rip Van Winkle gains his independence from his wife. (He escapes her control and criticism by sleeping for 20 years, during which time his wife dies.)

Word Work: Revere

5 minutes

1. In the chapter you read, “Having arrived at that happy age when a man can rest and retire, Rip took his place once more on the bench at the inn and was revered as one of the wise, old men of the village.”

2. Say the word revere with me.

3. Revere means to respect or honor.

4. The astronauts were revered for their important contributions to knowledge about the moon.

5. Who are some people who are revered in your community? Be sure to use the word revere in your response. [Ask two or three students to use the target word in a sentence. If necessary, guide and/or rephrase students’ responses to make complete sentences: “_____ are revered for . . .”]

6. What part of speech is the word revered?
   » verb

[Use a Synonyms and Antonyms activity for follow-up.] What does revere mean? What are some synonyms, or words that have a similar meaning, of revere? [Prompt students to provide words like glorify, admire, praise, and love.] What are some antonyms, or words that have the opposite meaning, of revere? [Prompt students to provide words like dishonor, disrespect, hate, and scorn. As students discuss synonyms and antonyms, guide them to use the word revere in a complete sentence: “An antonym of revere is dishonor.”]
GRAMMAR

Practice to be Verbs and Modal Auxiliary Verbs

- Refer to the Subject-to be Verb Agreement Poster you displayed in Lesson 11. Remind students to be verbs are verbs that link, or connect, the subject to the predicate without showing action.
- Refer to the Modal Auxiliary Verbs Poster you displayed in Lesson 14. Remind students that modal auxiliary verbs are helping verbs; they must be used with another verb. Modal auxiliary verbs and the verbs that follow them do not change in form.
- Direct students’ attention to the sentences on the board/chart paper.
- Have students explain the proper form of the to be verb and modal auxiliary verb needed for each blank.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>The soldiers are joyful that the war will end soon.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I am curious about what might happen next.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- Have students turn to Activity Page 16.1. Tell students that they will practice forming sentences with both to be verbs and modal auxiliary verbs, and will need to choose the correct verb to fill in. Review directions and have students complete the activity page in class.
- Collect Activity Page 16.1 to review and grade at a later time.

MORPHOLOGY

Practice Suffixes –able and –ible

- Refer to the Suffixes Poster on display in the classroom. Review the suffixes –able and –ible that you added to the poster in Lesson 11, as well as their meaning, “able to.”
- Remind students that when –able or –ible is added as a suffix to verbs or nouns the new word is an adjective.
- Refer to the word list you prepared in advance. Have a student read the words aloud: enjoy, enjoyable, predict, predictable, access, accessible, collect, collectible.
- Tell students you will read some sentences aloud, but will leave a word out. Students must listen carefully and decide which word from the list correctly completes the sentence.
- Read the following sentences aloud and have students identify the missing word for each:

  - The play was so ______ that the entire audience stood up and clapped when it was over. (enjoyable)
- My brother told me that some rare coins are ______. (collectible)

- The children watch the weather report to see if the meteorologist will ______ rain for the weekend. (predict)

- We could not ______ the road to the park because a tree had fallen across it during the storm. (access)

- I like almost every flavor of ice cream, but I especially ______ anything with chocolate. (enjoy)

• Have students turn to Activity Page 16.2. Briefly review the directions, complete the first sentence as a group, and then have students complete the remainder independently.

• Collect Activity Page 16.2 to review and grade at a later time.

WRITING

15 minutes

Edit an Essay

- Have students take out their completed essay and tell them they will work in the editing stage of the writing process today.

- Have students turn to Activity Page SR.3.

- Tell students to edit their own work, using the checklist provided.

- Tell students that when they finish editing their own work, they should exchange essays with a partner and check each other’s work against the checklist.

- Collect student essays to evaluate using the Cause and Effect Essay Rubric and Cause and Effect Essay Editing Checklist provided in Teacher Resources.

Materials

- cause and effect essay

ADVANCE PREPARATION

Unit Assessment

- Determine how many students will be assessed for fluency, and make that number of copies of the Recording Copy of “Patrick Henry” and the Fluency Scoring Sheet.

UNIT ASSESSMENT

UNIT ASSESSMENT 90 minutes

Unit Assessment

- Make sure each student has a copy of Activity Page 17.1. You may have collected this activity page from students at the beginning of the unit.

- Tell students they will read two selections, answer questions about each, and respond to a writing prompt. In the next sections, they will answer grammar and morphology questions evaluating the skills they have practiced in this unit.

- Encourage students to do their best.

- Once students have finished the assessment, encourage them to review their papers quietly, rereading and checking their answers carefully.

- Circulate around the room as students complete the assessment to ensure everyone is working individually. Assist students as needed, but do not provide them with answers.

Information about the Tens scoring system appears in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide.

Materials

Note

This is a good opportunity to use the Tens scoring system to gather formative assessment data. Information about the Tens scoring system appears in the Teacher Resources section of the Unit 1 Teacher Guide.
Reading Comprehension

The reading comprehension section of the Unit Assessment contains two selections and accompanying questions. The first selection is an informational piece about Benjamin Franklin and the Revolutionary War. The second selection is a fictional excerpt from a boy’s diary during the start of the American Revolution.

These texts were created using guidance from the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) and recommendations from Student Achievement Partners (AchievetheCore.org). These texts are considered worthy of students’ time to read and meet the expectations for text complexity at Grade 4. The texts feature core content and domain vocabulary from the American Revolution unit that students can draw on in service of comprehending the text.

The questions pertaining to these texts are aligned to the CCSS and are worthy of students’ time to answer. Questions have been designed so they do not focus on minor points in the text, but rather, they require deep analysis. Thus, each item might address multiple standards. In general, the selected-response items address Reading standards and the constructed-response item addresses Writing standards. To prepare students for CCSS-aligned assessments, such as those developed by the Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC) and Smarter Balanced, some items replicate how technology may be incorporated in those assessments, using a paper and pencil format.

Optional Fluency Assessment

You may wish to assess students’ fluency in reading, using the selection “Patrick Henry.” Assessing fluency requires that you work one on one with individual students to administer the assessment. Because this assessment requires you to work with one student at a time, you may wish to administer it either while other students complete the Unit Assessment or at a different time while students read enrichment selections and complete accompanying activity pages. Alternatively, you may have other time during the school day when you can administer this assessment as well.

Administration Instructions

- Turn to the student copy of “Patrick Henry” that follows the Unit Assessment Analysis section. This is the text students will read aloud. Turn to this copy each time you administer this assessment.
- Using one Recording Copy of “Patrick Henry” for each student, create a running record as you listen to each student read orally.
- Call the student you will assess to come sit near you.
- Explain that you are going to ask him or her to read a selection aloud and you are going to take some notes as he or she reads. Also, explain that he or she should not rush but rather read at his or her regular pace.
- Read the title of the selection aloud for the student, as the title is not part of the assessment.

Materials

- Student Copy of Fluency Assessment text
- Recording Copy of Fluency Assessment text, one for each student
- Fluency Scoring Sheet, one for each student
• Begin timing when the student reads the first word of the selection. As the student reads aloud, make a running record on the Recording Copy using the following guidelines:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Words read correctly</th>
<th>No mark is required.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Omissions</td>
<td>Draw a long dash above the word omitted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Insertions</td>
<td>Write a caret (^) at the point where the insertion was made. If you have time, write down the word that was inserted.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Words read incorrectly</td>
<td>Write an “X” above the word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Substitutions</td>
<td>Write the substitution above the word.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self-corrected errors</td>
<td>Replace original error mark with an “SC.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teacher-supplied words</td>
<td>Write a “T” above the word (counts as an error).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

• When one minute has elapsed, draw a vertical line on the Recording Copy to mark where the student was in the text at that point. Allow the student to finish reading the selection aloud.

• Assess the student’s comprehension of the selection by asking him or her to respond orally to the following questions:

1. Literal How did people describe Patrick Henry as a boy?
   » idle, shiftless, will never amount to anything

2. Inferential What was the ‘same old story’ referring to once Patrick Henry got married?
   » He did the same thing he had done as a child—he didn’t take care of the farm his parents had given him and let things drift.

3. Literal What did Patrick Henry try again after his farm failed?
   » storekeeping

4. Literal What did Patrick Henry do well in?
   » his law practice

• Repeat this process for additional students as needed. Scoring can be done later, provided you have kept running records and marked the last word students read after one minute elapsed.
UNIT ASSESSMENT ANALYSIS

Quantitative and Qualitative Analysis of the Text

The texts used in the reading comprehension assessment, “Benjamin Franklin and the Revolutionary War” (informational text) and “A Fictional Excerpt from a Boy’s Diary, Written in New York City, New York—July 11, 1776” (literary text), have been profiled for text complexity using the quantitative measures described in the Common Core State Standards for English Language Arts, Supplement to Appendix A, “New Research on Text Complexity,” (CoreStandards.org/resources). Both selections fall within the Common Core 4th–5th Grade Band.

Optional Fluency Assessment

The following is the Student Copy of the text for the Optional Fluency Assessment, titled “Patrick Henry.” Turn to this copy of the selection each time you administer this assessment.

You will also find a Recording Copy of the text for doing a running record of oral reading for each student you assess. There is also a Fluency Scoring Sheet. Make as many copies of the Recording Copy and the Fluency Scoring Sheet as you need, having one for each student you assess.
Patrick Henry

As a boy, Patrick Henry did not like to study or work on his father's farm. His delight was to wander through the woods, gun in hand, hunting for game, or to sit on the bank of some stream fishing by the hour. When not outdoors, he might be heard playing his violin.

The neighbors said, "A boy so idle and shiftless will never amount to anything." His parents did not know what to do with him. When he was fifteen years old, they had him work as a clerk in a little country store. Here he remained for a year, and then opened a store of his own. But he was still too lazy to attend to business, and soon failed.

When he was only eighteen years old, he married. The parents of the young couple gave them a small farm and a few slaves. But it was the same old story. Patrick did not take care of the farm and let things drift. Before long, the farm had to be sold to pay debts. Once more Patrick turned to storekeeping, but after a few years he failed again.

At the age of twenty-three years, he decided to become a lawyer. He borrowed some law books, and after studying for six months, he applied for permission to practice law.

He did well in his law practice. In a few years, he had so much business that people in his part of Virginia began to take notice of him. In 1765, soon after the Stamp Act was passed by the British Parliament, he was elected a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses.

Guidelines for Fluency Assessment Scoring

To calculate a student’s W.C.P.M. (Words Correct Per Minute) score, use the information you wrote on the Recording Copy and follow these steps. You may wish to have a calculator available.

1. Count Words Read in One Minute. This is the total number of words the student read or attempted to read in one minute. It includes words the student read correctly as well as words the student read incorrectly. Write the total in the box labeled Words Read in One Minute.

2. Count the Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute. You noted these on the Recording Copy. They include words read incorrectly, omissions, substitutions, and words you had to supply. Write the total in the box labeled Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute on the Fluency Scoring Sheet. (A mistake that the student self-corrects is not counted as a mistake.)

3. Subtract Uncorrected Mistakes in One Minute from Words Read in One Minute to get Words Correct. Write the number in the box labeled W.C.P.M. Although the analysis does not include any words the student read correctly (or incorrectly) after one minute, you may use this information from your Recording Copy for anecdotal purposes.

As you evaluate W.C.P.M. scores, here are some factors to consider.

It is normal for students to show a wide range in fluency and in W.C.P.M. scores. However, a major goal of Grade 4 is to read with sufficient fluency to ensure comprehension and independent reading of school assignments in this and subsequent grade levels. A student’s W.C.P.M. score can be compared with the score of other students in the class (or grade level) and also with the national fluency norms obtained by Hasbrouck and Tindal (2006). Hasbrouck and Tindal suggest that a score falling within 10 words above or below the 50th percentile should be interpreted as within the normal, expected, and appropriate range for a student at that grade level at that time of year. For example, if you administered the assessment during the fall of Grade 4, and a student scored 94 W.C.P.M., you should interpret this as within the normal, expected, and appropriate range for that student.

Pausing Point

End-of-Unit Content Assessment

Use the first day of the Pausing Point to administer the assessment of content knowledge acquired by reading The Road to Independence. Make sure each student has a copy of Activity Page PP.2. You may have collected this activity page from students at the beginning of the unit.

- Allow students as much time as they need to complete the assessment during the first Pausing Point day. In most cases, this assessment will take approximately 30 to 45 minutes.
- Tell students to read and answer the questions about what they have learned about the American Revolution. Encourage students to do their best and review their work once they have finished.
- Circulate around the room as students complete the assessment to ensure that everyone is working individually.
- Use the following Remediation and Enrichment suggestions to plan activities for the remainder of the first Pausing Point day.

Pausing Point for Differentiation of Instruction

Please use the final four days of this unit (or three days if you chose to pause one day after Lesson 7) to address results of the Content Assessment, Unit Assessment (for reading comprehension; fluency, if applicable; grammar; and morphology), and Spelling Assessments. Use each student’s scores on the Unit Assessment to determine which remediation and/or enrichment opportunities will benefit particular students. In assigning these remediation and/or enrichment activities, you may choose to have students work individually, in small groups, or as a whole class.

Remediation

Content

If students demonstrate a need for remediation on any of the American Revolution content, refer to the Reader chapters covering that content. You may wish to reteach any such chapter as a teacher read-aloud, regardless of the type of reading lesson initially used for that chapter. Additionally, you should focus more heavily on the questions labeled Support in the Teacher Guide materials for that chapter.

Reading Comprehension

It is important to understand that poor performance on the Reading Comprehension section of the end-of-unit assessment may be attributable to any number of factors. To ascertain which remediation efforts will be most worthwhile, it is highly recommended that you ask any student who performed poorly on this section to read at least one of the assessment passages aloud to you orally, one on one. As the student reads, make note of any words the student struggles with or reads incorrectly. If the student occasionally misreads words in the text, analyze the types of errors in code knowledge and consult the CKLA Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement. This online publication provides further guidance in assessing, analyzing, and remediating specific decoding skills so targeted remediation can be provided. If the student frequently misreads words in the text, this is indication of a more global decoding problem that may require further assessment and remediation by a reading specialist. The Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement can be accessed online at CoreKnowledge.org/CKLA-files and at CKLA.Amplify.com.

If the student does not misread words, but reads haltingly, a lack of fluency may impede comprehension. Administer the optional fluency assessment to verify whether the student’s reading rate is below the norm. If so, remediation efforts should be targeted at building fluency.

Once the student finishes reading the passage(s) aloud, ask the comprehension questions orally. Analyze whether the student makes errors on the same questions answered incorrectly on the written assessment, as well as the type of questions answered incorrectly. Does the student have difficulty answering particular types of questions? If so, guided rereading of specific chapters in a small group setting with other students who are struggling may be helpful. Choose chapters that were not already used for small group instruction and provide specific guidance as to how to use the text to arrive at the correct answer.

Also analyze whether there was a marked difference between the student’s comprehension of the informational and literary passages. Good performance on the informational passage requires students to use the domain specific vocabulary and knowledge presented throughout the unit. Students who performed poorly on the informational passage may benefit from rereading chapters from the unit, with more intensive focus on the domain vocabulary.

Good performance on the literary passage of this assessment requires some knowledge of domain specific vocabulary from this unit (though not to the same extent as the informational passage), as well as general knowledge of Tier 2 and academic vocabulary. Students who performed poorly on the literary passage, but did well on the informational passage, may benefit from specific practice with Tier 2 and academic vocabulary.

Fluency

Students who struggle with fluency will benefit from having multiple opportunities to reread a particular text. If students demonstrate a need for remediation related to fluency, you may have them either reread selections from the Reader or choose an excerpt from the Fluency Supplement.

Grammar and Morphology

If students demonstrate a need for remediation in the foundational grammar and morphology skills required for the lessons in Grade 4, consult the CKLA Grade 3 Skills Strand materials for additional grammar and morphology lessons and activities. Alternatively, for students who demonstrate a general proficiency in grammar and morphology, but who demonstrate a need for remediation in connection with specific skills covered in American Revolution, you may provide more targeted remediation by reteaching only the lessons for those skills. For additional practice with the grammar and morphology skills taught in this unit, you may wish to have students complete the Pausing Point activity pages in the Activity Book.

Spelling

If students demonstrate a need for remediation in spelling, but they exhibit general proficiency in code knowledge, have them use the Individual Code Chart to assist in spelling unfamiliar words, syllable by syllable.

If students exhibit specific code knowledge problems, as revealed by the spelling assessment analyses, they may benefit from remediation to target specific letter-sound correspondences. You can access the Decoding and Encoding Remediation Supplement online at CoreKnowledge.org/CKLA-files and at CKLA.Amplify.com.
Writing

Use time during the Pausing Point to return students’ cause and effect essay drafts, along with the completed Cause and Effect Essay Rubric and Editing Checklist. Meet briefly with individual students to discuss areas in which improvement is needed. You may wish to allow students additional time to revise and edit their cause and effect essay. You may also wish to allow students to publish their cause and effect essay by recopying their revised and edited draft onto a clean page.

You may wish to suggest that students needing more practice write a new cause and effect essay on a different topic, such as the French and Indian War. Provide additional structure and guidance for students, making copies of both the Cause and Effect Essay Rubric and Editing Checklist available (see Student Resources in the Activity Book). Circulate and check in with students as they write.

Enrichment

If students have mastered the content and skills in the American Revolution unit, their experience with the domain concepts may be enriched by the following activities:

- Students may read the enrichment selections contained in the Reader. The first selection, “Points of View” illustrates two sides to every issue with examples from the Revolutionary War, including colonists, British, enslaved Africans, and Native Americans. The second selection, “Artillery Training,” is an engaging dialogue between an army sergeant and his men as the sergeant instructs his soldiers in the proper care and use of field cannons in the 1770s. The Activity Book contains activity pages students can complete as they read these selections.

- Students may respond to any of the following writing prompts, conducting independent research necessary to support their response:
  - Create a vignette with two enslaved Africans in the 1770s. Include the following characters: an enslaved boy who is offered his freedom if he fights with the British; an enslaved man who decides to fight for the colonists alongside his master. Their dialogue should describe reasons for the two differing points of view.
  - If I had lived in Boston in 1775, I would . . . (Describe who you are and state your point of view regarding American independence, citing three reasons that influence your point of view.)
  - List in sequential order the steps for operating a six-pound field cannon. Provide instructions for how to perform each step, including the correct use of terminology.
  - Pretend you are a young soldier responsible for lighting the field cannon in battle. Describe the scene as you wait for your commanding officer’s orders to “GIVE FIRE!” Include how you perform your duties and what happens once the cannonball is launched.

• Students may share, either with a small group or with the class, the writing they generated in this unit or in response to the writing prompts in this Enrichment section.

Timeline

• This would be an appropriate time to have students cut out their completed timelines from Activity Pages 1.3 and 6.2, taping them together to see the sequence of events leading up to the American Revolution and Revolutionary War, and ending with the Treaty of Paris. You may suggest that students make either two separate timelines (Activity Pages 1.3 and 6.2) or one long timeline (attach both timelines).

Guidance for Teacher Use of Rubrics

Rubrics are provided for evaluation of the content and structure of student writing composed within each unit. The criteria within the descriptions correspond to what is taught in the writing lessons. “Exemplary” to “Beginning” performance columns provide graduated descriptions for each criterion. The columns for “Strong,” “Developing,” and “Beginning” performance are shaded to help students initially attend to the description for “Exemplary” performance. The rubrics allow teachers and students to identify graduated steps for improvement when aspects of the writing do not meet all the taught criteria. To do this, teachers (and students) may highlight the language from each row that best describes the student writing.
Cause and Effect Essay Editing Checklist

Meaning

Is correct grammar used?

- Sentences are complete with subject and predicate.
- Sentences are appropriate length (no run-ons).
- The student has been supported with corrections for parts of speech, verb tense, and more complex sentence structure.

Format

Does the student use appropriate formatting for the piece of writing?

- Paragraphs are indented.
- There is a title on the front.

Capitals

Is capitalization appropriately applied?

- All sentences begin with a capital letter.
- All proper nouns are capitalized.

Spelling

Are all words spelled correctly?

- Words using Core Knowledge Code are spelled appropriately.
- Words from spelling and morphology lessons are spelled accurately.
- The student has been supported with identifying misspellings to be looked up in reference sources as needed.

Punctuation

Is punctuation appropriately applied?

- All sentences have appropriate ending punctuation.
- Commas and quotation marks are used correctly for the ways they have been taught.
Guidance for Teacher Use of Editing Checklists

Editing checklists allow students and teachers to evaluate students’ command of language conventions and writing mechanics within unit writing projects. They serve a different purpose than rubrics; rubrics measure the extent to which students apply specific instructional criteria they have been building toward across the unit, whereas editing checklists measure the extent to which students apply English language conventions and general writing mechanics. With regard to expectations for accountability, we recommend using the editing checklist to measure students’ command of language conventions and writing mechanics only when students have received the appropriate instructional support and specific opportunity to review their writing for that purpose.

Evaluating Student Writing

Make enough copies of the rubric and editing checklist found in this section for evaluating each student’s writing piece.

Resources for the Enrichment Selections in The Road to Independence

The enrichment selections in The Road to Independence are intended to be used at your discretion. They are intended to be read by more advanced readers, as they are more difficult to read and include more challenging vocabulary than Chapters 1–9. You may want to assign these selections to students who need more challenging reading material. An introduction to the selections is provided here. Core vocabulary is also listed for each selection; these words are bolded in the Reader and appear in the glossary.
Core Vocabulary for “Points of View”

“Points of View” describes the events of the American Revolution from the varying historical figures’ or groups’ viewpoints. This selection helps students better understand that conflicts in history can be understood by thinking about events from different historical perspectives. Activity Page E1.1 corresponds to this enrichment selection.

The following core vocabulary words are bolded in the selections and appear in the glossary. Remind students they can look up a word in the glossary if needed.

1. so-called, adj. implying the name or description of something or someone may be inaccurate (80)
2. tyrannical, adj. ruling people in a threatening or cruel way (80)
3. oppressive, adj. harsh and unfair; cruel (80)
4. proclamation, n. a public announcement made by a person or government (83)

Read the following excerpt from "Heroes and Villains." Write the correct vocabulary word from the word bank to complete each sentence. Different forms of the words may be used in the blanks.

In 1780, Benedict Arnold made a plan to surrender the colonial fort at West Point in New York to the British. When this plan was foiled, Arnold joined the British army. He went on to fight for the British. The cheers for Benedict Arnold the hero quickly turned to jeers for Benedict Arnold the traitor.

6. Because Arnold's plan was foiled, he joined the British army and received jeers from members of the Continental Army.

7. Benedict Arnold was initially regarded as a hero, but when he turned against his country to fight for the British, he became known as a traitor/villain.

8. Select a word from the word bank that you think best describes Benedict Arnold and write it on the line:

   traitor/villain

   Write a sentence explaining your choice.

   Answers may vary, but should include a word from the word bank.

Read the following excerpt from "Heroes and Villains." Then answer the question that follows.

One of the greatest heroes on the colonists' side was George Washington. Washington was commander-in-chief of the Continental Army throughout the war. He took over not long after the Battles of Lexington and Concord in 1775, fighting the British in New York and New Jersey. He survived the dreadful winter of 1777 to 1778 at Valley Forge. He was still in command when the Continental Army won the decisive victory at Yorktown in 1781.

9. Do you agree with the statement, "One of the greatest heroes on the colonists' side was George Washington"? Circle one.
   A. Yes
   B. No

   Explain your answer in two or more sentences below.

   Answers may vary, but should include at least two sentences.
2. A hyperbole is a literary device that uses exaggeration. Underline the hyperbole used to describe the main character, Ichabod Crane, in the following text:

In this out-of-the-way place there lived a teacher by the name of Ichabod Crane. His name was well-suited to him. He was tall and very lanky, with narrow shoulders, long arms and legs, and hands that dangled a mile out of his sleeves.

Explain the hyperbole in your own words.

How do these similes help describe Ichabod Crane?

Answers may vary, but should include that comparing Ichabod’s elbows and arms to a grasshopper’s hind legs and wings helps the reader visualize how Ichabod looks riding the horse.

Write the page number where these similes are used.

3. Underline the two similes used to describe Ichabod Crane in this sentence:

His elbows stuck out like a grasshopper’s, and as he rode his arms flapped like a pair of wings.

What two things are compared in each simile?

Ichabod’s elbows are compared to a grasshopper’s; Ichabod’s arms when he rides are compared to a pair of wings.

4. A metaphor is a literary device that expresses comparison but does not use the word like or as.

Which of the following is an example of a metaphor? Circle all that apply.

A. One might have mistaken Ichabod Crane for a scarecrow.
B. The most formidable of all was a local hero known as Brom Bones.
C. There were apple and peach and pumpkin pies, and delectable dishes of preserved plums.
D. He pictured . . . every turkey wearing a necklace of savory sausages.

Select one of the metaphors above and explain it in your own words.

5. Personification is a literary device in which human characteristics are assigned to nonhuman objects. Personification is used in this statement:

What fearful shapes and shadows jumped across his path! How often did he dread to look over his shoulder, for fear of catching a glimpse of some ghostly being close behind him!

What nonhuman object(s) are assigned human characteristics?

shapes and shadows

Explain the personification in your own words.

Answer questions 6 and 7 after you and your partner finish reading “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.”

A theme is a recurring idea or subject in a story. One theme in “The Legend of Sleepy Hollow” is greed. A second theme is the real vs. the imaginary. Select one theme and provide examples from the text, showing how the author weaves this theme into the story.

Answers may vary, but may include yes, because of the mystical setting of the story, Ichabod’s interest in witchcraft, ghostly sounds, Ichabod’s travels after dusk in a dark wood, tales of a headless horseman, the encounter with this mysterious rider, and Ichabod’s unexplained disappearance; the mood suggested by the illustrations and words used in the text (bewitching, formidable, dread, fear, horror-struck, terror); or no, because there isn’t much action in the story.

Answers may vary, but may include Ichabod’s desire to marry Katrina Van Tassel to gain wealth (greed); or ghosts, a headless horseman, imaginative thoughts in the darkness (real vs. imaginary).
