Dear Family Member,

Please help your child succeed in spelling by taking a few minutes each evening to review the words together. Helpful activities for your child to do include: spelling the words orally, writing sentences using the words, or simply copying the words.

Spelling Words

This week, we will be reviewing the spellings of r-controlled vowels. Your child learned to read and spell words with r-controlled vowels in first and second grades, so this should be a review. On Friday, your child will be assessed on these words.

Students have been assigned two Challenge Words, above and beginning, to spell this week. Remember that Challenge Words do not follow spelling patterns and need to be memorized.

New this week is the introduction of a Content Word. The Content Word for this week is Mediterranean. This word is directly related to the material that we are reading. The Content Word is an optional spelling word for your child. If your child would like to try spelling it but gets it wrong, it will not count against him or her on the assessment. We encourage everyone to stretch themselves a bit to try to spell this word.
The spelling words, including the Challenge Words and the Content Word, are listed below:

1. tarnish
2. marbles
3. portion
4. motor
5. circulate
6. servant
7. turkey
8. doctor
9. worship
10. surgery
11. immortal
12. sword
13. messenger
14. barbecue
15. giraffe
16. slurp
17. sir
18. mirth
19. Challenge Word: above
20. Challenge Word: beginning

Content Word: Mediterranean

Student Reader

This week, we start our new unit about ancient Rome. In this unit, your child will read Stories of Ancient Rome, which includes information about the history of Rome, legends, Roman gods and goddesses, myths, powerful rulers, and wars, as well as the rise of Christianity. Mrs. Teachwell is the narrator who will be guiding your child through the information, some of which is fiction and some nonfiction, as your child learns many new and exciting facts about a very old civilization. Be sure to ask your child each evening about what he or she is learning.

This week, your child will be reading about how Rome was built on the banks of the Tiber River, the legend of Romulus and Remus, and about Roman gods and goddesses.

Students will bring home text copies of the chapters in the reader throughout the unit. Encouraging students to read a text directly related to this domain-based unit will provide content and vocabulary reinforcement. Please remind your child that the copy of the glossary they brought home today can be used to find the meaning of the bolded words.
Rome, Then and Now

“This is Rome,” said Mrs. Teachwell, pointing to a black dot on the classroom map.

“But this is Rome too,” she added, as she traced a circle that was so large it seemed to touch all four sides of the map.

The students looked confused.

“How can it be both?” Charlie Chatter shouted out.

“I’ll explain,” Mrs. Teachwell said, “but please raise your hand if you would like to speak.”

Charlie Chatter nodded. It was not the first time he had heard this. In fact, Mrs. Teachwell had asked him to raise his hand many times, but it was hard for Charlie. His mouth seemed to be faster than his hand.

“Rome started out as a little town along the Tiber River,” Mrs. Teachwell explained.

“Like Egypt on the Nile?” Charlie asked.

“Yes,” said Mrs. Teachwell, “but let’s see that hand!”

The students giggled.

“As Charlie has just reminded us,” Mrs. Teachwell said, “many civilizations spring up along the banks of a river. Rome was no exception. It sprang up here, on the banks of the Tiber River, among seven hills. At first, Rome was just a few houses on a hill. Then, it grew and grew and grew. After a while, people started building houses on other hills nearby. Then, the little towns on the hills grew together to make a big city. In fact, to this day, Rome is known as the ‘City of Seven Hills’.

“Then, the Romans fought wars with their neighbors. The Romans won most of these wars. They defeated the Etruscans, who lived north of them. They conquered the Greeks, who had settled to the south, as well. It wasn’t long before they controlled most of this piece of land that we call Italy.”

Mrs. Teachwell traced the outline of Italy with her finger.
“Check it out!” Charlie Chatter shouted. “Italy looks like a boot!”

“Yes,” said Mrs. Teachwell. “Italy does look like a boot, but, please, Charlie, raise your hand! This is your last warning. Now, does anyone know what this body of water that the boot of Italy sticks out into is called?”

Rachel Readmuch, who always had her nose in a book, raised her hand. Mrs. Teachwell called on her.

“That’s right!” said Mrs. Teachwell. “This is the Mediterranean Sea. Rome grew so much that, at its peak, the Romans controlled all the land around the Mediterranean Sea. They took over most of Spain and France. They took over this area that we call the Balkans. They took over Greece and much of Turkey. They took over the Middle East, Egypt, and the coast of North Africa.”

Tim Timetable, who loved to learn about when things happened, put up his hand.

“When was all this happening?”

“Rome started growing about two thousand five hundred years ago,” Mrs. Teachwell explained. “It started growing about five hundred years before the birth of Jesus, in the years we call BC or BCE. It was still growing when Jesus was born. In fact, Jesus was born here, in a part of the Middle East that was controlled by the Romans.”

Tim Timetable made a note of the date.

Mrs. Teachwell went on: “We will be studying Rome for three weeks or so. Each day, we will have a report on a topic connected to ancient Rome. I’ll give the first few reports. Then, each of you can do some research and give the next few. How does that sound?”

The kids cheered. They were eager to learn more about Rome. Rachel Readmuch already knew quite a lot. Tim Timetable had lots of questions about what happened when. As for Charlie Chatter, he was looking forward to the day when he would get to give his report. Then, he would get to talk without having to raise his hand first!

The Legend of Romulus and Remus

We learned last time that Rome started as a small town and grew to become a big city. Then, it grew some more until it became a great empire. That’s what historians tell us.

The Romans themselves have a story about how their city got started that they like to tell. They say that Rome was founded by twins who had been saved by a wolf.

The twins were named Romulus and Remus. They were the children of a woman named Rhea Silvia and the god Mars. Their mother loved them, but her brother, the king of Latium, did not. He saw the boys as a threat. He thought they might grow up and take his crown from him. The king told one of his servants to find the twins and drown them in the Tiber River.

The servant found the twins, but he could not bring himself to drown them. Instead, he put the boys in a basket. Then, he set the basket in the river. The basket floated downstream. It drifted and drifted until, at last, it washed up on the banks of the river.

A she-wolf found the twins. She saw that they were hungry. She took them to her cave. There she gave them the same milk she fed to her wolf pups.

Later, the twins were adopted by a shepherd. The shepherd raised them well. They grew up to be smart and strong.

When they were 18, Romulus and Remus decided to create a city of their own. They wanted to build a city on the banks of the Tiber, somewhere among the seven hills, not far from where they had washed ashore as babies.

Soon, however, the brothers began to fight.

“Let’s build our city here!” said Romulus, pointing to a hill.

“No!” said Remus. “This hill over here is a much better spot.”

So each brother started building his own city on a different hill. Each knew that it would be important to have a strong wall to protect the city he was building. After a few days, Remus decided to visit Romulus to see how his city was coming along.
It takes a long time to build a city, so Remus did not expect Romulus’s city to be finished. He decided, however, to taunt his brother and made fun of his unfinished wall. “You call that a wall?” he said. “That wall would not keep anyone out!” Then, to make his point, he stepped over the wall.

That made Romulus angry. He and Remus started to fight. No longer remembering that they were fighting one another, Romulus and Remus battled with all their might. Suddenly, Remus collapsed, fell to the ground, and died. When Romulus saw what he had done, he began to cry. He had not wished to kill his brother. He dug a grave for Remus.

Romulus went on building his city. He named it Rome after himself.

The rest, as they say, is history. Rome grew and grew. It became a great city, the center of a mighty empire.

The government of Rome made coins. The coins showed two young boys reaching up to touch a she-wolf. The people of Rome handed these coins back and forth. They used them to buy food and drinks. They used them to pay bills and buy clothing. And all of them knew who the two boys on the coin were: they were Romulus and Remus, the legendary founders of Rome.

The Roman Gods, Part I

Let’s learn about the gods and goddesses of Rome.

The ancient Romans did not believe in one god who ruled the entire world. They believed in many gods.

In many ways, the Roman gods acted like human beings. They ate and drank. They played tricks on each other. They fell in love and got into fights. But there was one main way in which the gods were not like human beings: the gods were immortal. Human beings might live for many years. Some might even live to be one hundred. Eventually, though, they would die. The gods, on the other hand, lived forever. They did not—and could not—die.

The Romans’ ideas about their gods were similar to the ancient Greeks. In fact, they worshipped many of the same gods as the Greeks, but they called those gods by different names. The chart shows the Roman names for some Greek gods you may already know.

The top god, sometimes called the father of the immortals, was a strong, bearded figure. The Greeks called him Zeus. The Romans called him Jupiter.

Jupiter was a mighty god. He carried a thunderbolt that he could throw at anyone who angered him. If Jupiter threw his thunderbolt at you, that was the end of you.

Jupiter lived on Mount Olympus, with the other gods.

Juno was Jupiter’s wife. She was the goddess of marriage and the protector of wives.

The Roman gods were all related. They were like a big family. Jupiter’s brother Neptune was the god of the seas and oceans.

There are many statues of Neptune. In most of them, he is holding a special, three-pronged spear called a trident. Neptune’s trident had magical powers. The god could use it to stir up storms and waves. He could also wave it over the stormy seas and make the rough seas smooth.
Roman sailors prayed to Neptune. “Great Neptune!” they prayed. “Send us good weather and smooth sailing!”

Mars was the god of war. Soldiers would pray to him before a big battle. The Romans fought a lot of wars, so they spent a lot of time praying to Mars.

Mercury was one of Jupiter and Juno’s sons. He was the messenger of the gods. He was as fast as a flash. In paintings, he is often shown with wings on his hat and his shoes, to show how fast he was.

Venus was the goddess of love. She was very beautiful.

If Venus wanted someone to fall in love, she could send her son Cupid on a mission. Cupid would shoot the person with one of his magic arrows. The person would then fall in love with the first person he or she saw.

Cupid is still with us today. You will see little Cupids all over the place on Valentine’s Day, when we celebrate love.

Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Neptune are the names of planets in our solar system. These planets are named after the Roman gods. For example, the planet Mars is named after Mars, the Roman god of war.

Oh, To Be a Prince Again!

Once upon a time an ugly, green creature named Fred the Frog sat hopeful that his princess would come along and give him a magic kiss, so he could once again be a handsome prince. He sat all day looking up and down the road awaiting his princess! “I __________ wrongly SO ugly!” he moaned. “Why won’t my princess come to give me a kiss?” Fred the Frowning Frog looked at the other frogs in the pond and said, pitifully, “All of you __________ wrongly hideous!” He then turned his back on the other frogs and fretted.

Fred the Fretting, Frowning Frog shouted to the trees, the flowers, and anything else that would listen, “A prince should not have to wait so long! You trees and flowers __________ wrongly not helpful at all! Can’t you send for my princess? This __________ wrongly taking too long!”

Just then, along came a grand carriage carrying his princess. Fred the Faithful, Forward-Looking Frog hopped to the middle of the road and stood up tall and important (and hopefully regal) as he said, “Oh my Princess, you __________ wrongly just in time! The other frogs in this pond __________ wrongly driving me crazy! Come give me a kiss so I can change back into your handsome prince.”

Paula the Pretty Princess kissed Fred the Festive Frog and he magically transformed into Peter the Proud Prince. They lived happily ever after.

The Roman Gods, Part II

Good morning, class! Last time we learned about some of the Roman gods and goddesses. Today, I’d like to tell you about a few more gods and goddesses.

Vulcan was the blacksmith of the gods. He melted iron and other metals. Then, he shaped the metal to make a sword, a helmet, or a shield.

Vulcan was the god of fire and volcanoes.

Apollo was the god of the sun. He was also the god of music and poetry.

Apollo is another god who was worshipped by both the Greeks and the Romans. He had a famous shrine at Delphi, in Greece. When the Greeks and Romans wanted advice, they would send messengers to Delphi. The priestess of Apollo would give them an answer. It was almost never a clear answer, though. Often, it was more like a riddle that they had to figure out on their own.

Minerva was the goddess of wisdom. She was also the goddess of crafts and weaving.

According to legend, Minerva was not born in the usual way. One day, Jupiter complained of a headache. Then—presto!—Minerva sprang, fully grown, from his head.

Minerva’s special animal was the owl. Sometimes she was painted with an owl perched on her shoulder.

Diana was the goddess of the moon. She was also the goddess of the hunt. In statues, she is often shown as a young girl, with a bow and arrow. Sometimes, the sculptor will also show one of her dogs or a deer.

Bacchus was the Roman god of grapes and wine. He was followed by women and satyrs, who were half man and half goat.

A famous story tells how pirates tried to kidnap Bacchus. That was a big mistake. The god transformed himself into a lion. He turned the boat into a lush garden. As for the pirates, he changed them into dolphins and sent them splashing away in the ocean.

Dear Family Member,

Please help your child succeed in spelling by taking a few minutes each evening to review the words together. Helpful activities for your child to do include: spelling the words orally, writing sentences using the words, or simply copying the words.

Spelling Words

This week, we will be reviewing two spellings for the sound of /ee/. Your child learned how to read and spell words with these patterns in first and second grades, so this should be a review. On Friday, your child will be assessed on these words.

Students have been assigned two Challenge Words, except and follow. Challenge Words are words used very often. These Challenge Words do not following spelling patterns and need to be memorized. These two words will be on the assessment.

The Content Word for this week is Psyche. This word is directly related to the material that we are reading and also follows the vowel patterns your child is reviewing. The Content Word is an optional spelling word for your child. If your child would like to try it but gets it incorrect, it will not count against him or her on the test. We encourage everyone to stretch themselves a bit and try to spell this word.
The spelling words, including the Challenge Words and the Content Word, are listed below:

1. Greeks
2. meter
3. Venus
4. asleep
5. secret
6. agreed
7. seed
8. succeeded
9. cedar
10. breed
11. create
12. jamboree
13. speech
14. degree
15. retail
16. screech
17. scenic
18. tedious
19. Challenge Word: except
20. Challenge Word: follow

Content Word: Psyche

Student Reader

The chapters your child will read include the myth about Cupid and Psyche and the legend of Damocles. Then, they will learn about the early history and government of Rome and the battles that Hannibal fought against Rome.

Students will continue to take home text copies of the chapters in the reader. Encouraging students to read a text directly related to this domain-based unit will provide content and vocabulary reinforcement. Please remind your child that the copy of the glossary they brought home last week can be used to find the meaning of the bolded words.
Cupid and Psyche, Part I

The Romans, like the Greeks, had many myths they liked to tell. Some of these were stories about the gods. Some were stories about heroes. Some were love stories. The myth I am going to share with you is a love story.

Once there was a king who had three daughters. All three were lovely, but the youngest, whose name was Psyche [SIE-kee], was so beautiful that words could not describe her. She was so beautiful that people began to say she was more beautiful than the goddess Venus.

Venus heard about Psyche. She was mad with jealousy. Was she, a goddess, to be forgotten on account of some young, pretty girl? She swore that would never happen!

Venus went to her son, Cupid.

“My son,” she said, “punish that girl! Shoot her with one of your arrows. Make her fall in love with the ugliest man on Earth.”

Cupid set off to do his mother’s bidding. He took his bow and arrow and flew down to Earth. He took aim at Psyche. At the last minute, though, his finger slipped. Instead of shooting Psyche, he pricked himself. So Cupid fell in love with Psyche.

Cupid came up with a plan that would let him visit Psyche in secret. He sent a message to Psyche’s family. It said that the gods had chosen a husband for Psyche. Psyche was ordered to climb to the top of a mountain, where she would meet her husband. She was also told that her husband was not a man, but a terrible monster.

Psyche was brave. She began to climb the mountain. Halfway up, she felt a warm wind surround her. Suddenly, she found herself in a magnificent palace, with fountains and gardens all around.

At first, Psyche was alone. When night fell, she lay down on a bed. During the night, Cupid visited her. He told her he was the husband the gods had chosen for her. Cupid stayed all night. He treated Psyche tenderly but he left before the sun rose.

Night after night, Cupid came to visit Psyche. He came only at night and he always left before the sun rose. Psyche knew him only in the darkness, but she accepted him as her husband.

One night, Psyche asked her husband why he came only at night, when she could not see him.

“Why do you wish to see me?” Cupid replied. “What does it matter what I look like? I love you. I treat you well. All I ask is that you love me.”

Psyche understood her husband’s words. Still, she was curious. Who was her husband? What did he look like? Why did he hide? Was he really a terrible monster? She felt that she had to find out.

One night, Psyche waited until her husband fell asleep. Then she got up and lit a lamp. She carried the lamp to the bed and lifted it up. What she saw was no monster, but the lovely face of Cupid himself. Her hand trembled with delight and a drop of hot oil fell from the lamp. The oil landed on Cupid’s shoulder and awoke him.

Cupid looked up at Psyche with sad eyes. “I asked only for your trust,” he said, “but this act of yours shows that you do not trust me. When trust is gone, love must depart.”

Then, Cupid flew away. The palace vanished into thin air and Psyche was left alone.
Cupid and Psyche, Part II

When Cupid left Psyche, Psyche was very sad. She tried to find Cupid. She wandered night and day. But she could not find her lost love.

At last, Psyche went to the temple of Venus. She begged the goddess to help her find Cupid.

Venus was not eager to help. She was still jealous of Psyche and her beauty. She gave Psyche a task, confident the girl could never complete it. She led Psyche to a huge pile of grain. In the pile were wheat, millet, barley, and lentils, all mixed up.

“Sort the grains into stacks by morning,” Venus ordered. Then, with a laugh, she disappeared.

Psyche saw that there were millions of seeds. She knew there was no way she could finish the task. She sat down and began to cry. Then, something wonderful happened. Through her tears, Psyche noticed a seed moving, then another, and then many more. An army of ants had come to aid her. Each ant was carrying a seed. Together, they sorted seeds into separate piles.

In the morning, Venus was surprised to find the work done.

“Your next task will not be so easy!” she said. “Take this box to the underworld and ask the queen of that realm, Proserpina [pro-SER-pee-nə], to send me a little of her beauty.”

Psyche’s heart sank. No human had ever visited the underworld and returned to tell the tale. Just then, a voice spoke to her.

“Take a coin for the boatman,” the voice said. “If you pay him, he will carry you across the river to the underworld. Take a cake, as well. If you give the cake to the three-headed dog who guards the underworld, he will let you pass. Above all, once Proserpina has placed beauty in the box, do not open it!”

Psyche obeyed the mysterious voice. She traveled safely to the underworld and Proserpina gave her the box of beauty for Venus.

Psyche could not help wondering what was inside the box. She lifted the lid and peeked inside. A deep sleep came over her. She fell senseless to the ground.
Luckily, Cupid was watching. Although he was disappointed in Psyche, he was still very much in love with her. When he saw her lying on the ground, he took pity on her. He lifted the sleeping spell and Psyche awoke.

“See what curiosity gets you?” Cupid said. He smiled at Psyche. Psyche smiled back.

Psyche delivered the box to Venus.

Cupid went to Jupiter and begged to marry Psyche with Jupiter’s blessing. Jupiter agreed. He allowed Psyche to drink ambrosia, the drink of the gods. Psyche became immortal. So Cupid and Psyche were married and lived happily ever after.

Explain why Cupid had to visit Psyche in secret. Include exact details to show why you think he had to visit Psyche in secret or why he didn’t need to visit her in secret but did so anyway.
The Sword of Damocles

Have you ever wished you were a king? Does that seem like the best job a person could have? Well, before you decide for sure, listen to this legend that was made famous by the Roman writer Cicero [SIS-er-oe] more than two thousand years ago.

Damocles [DA-mə-kleez] was a friend of Dionysius [die-ə-NIS-ee-us], the king of Syracuse, a city in southern Italy. Damocles envied his friend. He believed that the king had a very good life. He had all the riches and power he could want. What could be better?

“You think I’m lucky?” Dionysius said to him one day. “If you think so, let’s trade places. You sit here, on the throne. Try it for just one day. Then, tell me if you still think I’m lucky.”

Damocles accepted his friend’s invitation. He was eager to live the life of a king.

When the day came, Damocles ordered servants to bring him fine robes. He had them set out a great banquet of food. He ordered expensive wine and fine music. He sat back, sure that he was the happiest man in the world.

Then, he looked up. He caught his breath in fear. Above his head was a sword. It was dangling from the ceiling, held by a single strand of horse’s hair. Damocles could not speak. He could not eat. He could not enjoy the music. He could not even move.

“What is the matter, my friend?” asked Dionysius.

“How can I conduct my life with that sword hanging above me?” Damocles asked.

“How indeed?” answered Dionysius. “Now you know how it feels to be king. That sword hangs over my head every minute of every day. There is always the chance the thread will break. An advisor may turn on me. An enemy spy may attack me. I might make an unwise decision that brings my downfall. You see, my friend, with power comes danger.”

The Roman Republic

For many years, Rome was governed by kings. Some of these kings were good men who ruled well. Some were bad men who treated the Romans poorly.

One of the kings was so bad he convinced the Romans that they should get rid of kings altogether. His name was Tarquin. The Romans called him Tarquin the Proud. Tarquin was a tyrant. He was a cruel ruler who treated the people badly. In the end, the people got so mad at Tarquin that they joined together and drove him out.

Once King Tarquin had been driven out, the Romans set up a different sort of government. They set up a republic—a kind of government with no kings.

One of the most important parts of the Roman republic was the Senate. The Senate was a group of older men who met to make decisions and pass laws. Many of the senators were from old, wealthy families. Almost all of them had fought in the army and earned the trust of their fellow Romans.

Each year, the people would elect two men to serve as consuls. To be chosen as a consul was a great honor. It was the most powerful position in the Roman republic.

Rome was a republic, but it was not a democracy. Some people played a role in the government, but many more played no role at all.

In the early years of the Roman republic, one group held most of the power. These were the patricians. The word patrician comes from the Latin word pater, or father. The patricians thought of themselves as the fathers of the people. They felt that it was their job to take care of the people in the same way that parents take care of their children. The patricians were from wealthy, old families. All of the men in the Senate were patricians. In the early days of the republic, the men selected to be consuls were also patricians.

The rest of the people—the ones who were not patricians—were called plebeians. The plebeians were the poorer people. In the early years of the republic, they had very little power.

The Roman republic lasted for more than five hundred years. Many Romans loved the republic. They thought it was the best kind of government a country could have. They were, however, not the only ones who thought so.

The Founding Fathers of the United States also believed a republic was the best kind of government. When the colonies declared their independence from Great Britain in 1776, they broke away from a king (King George III) and set up a republic. They created a Senate that was modeled on the Roman Senate. They created a president who was a lot like the Roman consuls. They even built government buildings that looked like ancient Roman buildings. So you can see that Roman ideas about government have had a big influence all around the world.

Dear Family Member,

Please help your child succeed in spelling by taking a few minutes each evening to review the words together. Helpful activities for your child to do include: spelling the words orally, writing sentences using the words, or simply copying the words.

Spelling Words

This week, we will be reviewing four spellings for the sound of /ee/. Your child learned how to read and spell words with these patterns in second grade, so this should be a review. On Friday, your child will be assessed on these words.

Students have been assigned two Challenge Words, again and often. Challenge Words are words used very often. These Challenge Words do not follow spelling patterns and need to be memorized.

The Content Word for this week is Caesar. This word is directly related to the material that we are reading and is a rare spelling which your child is reviewing. The Content Word is an optional spelling word for your child. If your child would like to try it but gets it incorrect, it will not count against him or her on the test. We encourage everyone to stretch themselves a bit and try to spell this word.
The spelling words, including the Challenge Words and the Content Word, are listed below:

1. gladiator
2. grease
3. grief
4. Julius
5. chariot
6. barbarian
7. stadium
8. atrium
9. eager
10. teacher

Student Reader

This week, students will be reading about Julius Caesar; his ability with the pen and sword, his rise to power, and his death. Next, they will read about the ruler, Augustus, important Roman buildings, and the story of Androcles and the Lion.

Students will continue to take home text copies of the chapters in the reader. Encouraging students to read a text directly related to this domain-based unit will provide content and vocabulary reinforcement. Students will also have their glossary for use in reading the text copies to family members. The bolded words on the text copies are the words found in the glossary.
Hannibal Crosses the Alps

The Romans faced many enemies, but the strongest and most determined enemy they ever faced was an African general named Hannibal.

Hannibal came from Carthage, a city on the coast of Africa. Carthage was home to many merchants and traders. Carthage also had an army and a navy. The Carthaginians took over much of North Africa and Spain. They even took over islands off the coast of Italy.

The Romans saw Carthage as a rival. They fought three wars against Carthage. These wars are known as the Punic Wars and are thought to have been fought during the years 264–146 BC.

Hannibal’s father fought against Rome in the First Punic War, 264–241 BC. He made his son swear he would carry on the fight against Rome. Hannibal swore he would and kept his promise. It was Hannibal who led the fight against Rome in the Second Punic War, 218–201 BC.

Hannibal gathered an army in Spain. He had tens of thousands of foot soldiers. He had thousands more who fought on horseback. Best of all, he had his special forces: a squad of elephants. Hannibal had learned that few men are brave enough to stand and fight when they see a thundering herd of elephants coming their way.

Hannibal wanted to attack Rome. However, to invade Italy, he would have to march his army over a range of mountains called the Alps. The Alps were tall. The peaks were covered with snow and ice. There were no big roads that led across. There were only a few slippery paths.

Most men would not have tried to cross the mountains, but Hannibal was not like most men. He marched his army over the mountains. His men suffered terribly. Some died from rockslides or avalanches. Others froze to death. Many of the elephants did not make it across. In the end, though, Hannibal got his army across the mountains and into Italy.

In Italy, Hannibal went on the attack. He beat the Romans at Trebbia [TREB-bee-ə] in 218 BC. Then, he wiped out an entire Roman army at the Battle of Trasimene [TRAZ-i-meen] in 217 BC. The Romans lost 15,000 men. The Battle of Cannae [CAN-ie] was even worse. The Romans lost at least 50,000 men, including 80 of their 300 senators.

People thought that might be the beginning of the end for Rome. They did not see how the Romans could go on. But the Romans did go on. They raised another army and sent it out to stop Hannibal. This time, the Romans avoided big battles. Instead, they fought a lot of little battles. They attacked Hannibal’s army here and there. They blocked his troops and slowed down his marches. They also launched a counter-attack. A Roman general named Scipio [SKIP-ee-oe] took Roman troops to Africa. The leaders of Carthage wrote to Hannibal. They told him to come home and protect Carthage.

Hannibal did as he was told. He left Italy and returned to Carthage. At the Battle of Zama, he confronted Scipio. This time, the Romans were victorious. Hannibal won most of the battles in the Second Punic War but he lost the war.

After the Battle of Zama in 202 BC, Carthage was never quite the same. They fought another war against Rome—the Third Punic War in the years 149-146 BC—but it was clear that Carthage was sinking and Rome was on the rise.
Julius Caesar: Great Fighter, Great Writer

After the Punic Wars, generals started to play a big part in Roman history. Roman generals went all around the Mediterranean, fighting battles and conquering new lands. Some of these generals became heroes. Some of them got to be so famous and so popular that they threatened to take over the republic. That’s what happened with Julius Caesar.

Julius Caesar came from an old Roman family. He was proud and ambitious, with a high opinion of himself.

When he was a young man, Caesar was captured by pirates. The pirates told him they would kill him unless he could pay a ransom of twenty talents. Caesar laughed at them. He told them they clearly didn’t know what sort of man they had captured. He was Julius Caesar. He was not a man to be ransomed for just twenty talents! Caesar told the pirates he would not allow himself to be ransomed for less than fifty talents!

Caesar told his friends to raise the money. He stayed with the pirates, writing poems. He read some of his poems to the pirates. They shrugged. They didn’t care much for poetry. They were pirates, not poets. They just wanted to collect the ransom money. Caesar got angry at the pirates. He scolded them for not liking his poems. He told them they had no taste. He told them they were barbarians. He told them someday he would come back and punish them for their bad taste. The pirates thought Caesar was joking. Maybe they thought he was crazy. At any rate, as soon as they got the ransom money, they quickly forgot about him. But Caesar did not forget about them. He went back to Rome, got some ships, and hired some good fighters. Then, he tracked down the pirates and killed them.

Caesar quickly established himself as a man who knew what to do with his sword and also with his pen. Once, he was sent to Asia. The people there were in revolt. Caesar led a Roman army there and put down the revolt. Then, he got out his pen to write his report. The normal thing would have been to write a long report, filling several pages, but that was not Caesar’s style.

This is the report Caesar sent back to Rome:

Veni, vidi, vici. [wae-NEE, wee-DEE, wee-KEE]
That’s the whole report. Those three words—written in Latin, the language of ancient Rome—mean, “I came, I saw, I conquered.” What else was there to say? Mission accomplished!

Caesar led an army into the land the Romans called Gaul. Today, we call it France. Gaul was not part of the Roman civilization when Caesar marched in, but it was when he marched out a few years later. Caesar conquered it. Then, he wrote a book about how he did it. The first sentence in his book is famous.

It is written in Latin. In English, the words mean, “The whole of Gaul is divided into three parts.”

If you ever study Latin, you may have a chance to read Caesar’s book on the Gallic Wars. It’s so clear and so well-written that teachers all around the world still use it to teach Latin to students.

Julius Caesar: Crossing the Rubicon

After he conquered Gaul, Caesar started marching back to Rome. By this time, the Roman senators were very nervous about Caesar. They thought he might march into Rome and take over. The senators sent Caesar a message. They told him to stop and send his soldiers home. They ordered him not to cross the Rubicon River. If he did, they said he would not be treated as a hero. Instead, he would be treated as a traitor and an invader.

In the year 49 BC, Caesar crossed the Rubicon. He is said to have remarked in Latin, “The die is cast.” That was his way of saying he knew he was taking a big risk. Crossing the Rubicon meant there was no turning back.

Caesar’s actions led to a civil war—a war in which Romans fought against Romans. Caesar was the leader on one side. Pompey [POM-pee], another famous Roman general, was the leader on the other side. Caesar defeated Pompey and chased him to Egypt, where Pompey was killed.

When Caesar got to Egypt, he found another country tangled up in a civil war. The princess Cleopatra was trying to take power from her brother. Caesar sided with Cleopatra. He helped her become Queen of Egypt.

Caesar had big plans. He didn’t think Rome was run the way it should be. He wanted to change a lot of things. He had the Senate pass new laws. He replaced the old calendar with the one we still use today. (Did you know that the month of July is named for Julius Caesar?)

Caesar wanted to do more, but he felt he needed more power. He got himself appointed dictator. At first, he was appointed dictator for only one year. That was not so unusual. The Romans had chosen dictators in the past. A dictator could be put in power during times of trouble. But the dictator was only supposed to rule for a little while, until the troubles passed. That was not what Caesar had in mind. He had himself appointed dictator for ten years. That upset a lot of people. How do you think those people felt a little later, when Caesar had himself appointed dictator for life? That was really too much for some people. For hundreds of years, Rome had been a republic. Now, Caesar was setting himself up as a dictator.
Perhaps, he even wanted to be a king. That was even more upsetting. The Romans had driven out the kings hundreds of years earlier.

A group of Romans agreed that Caesar was a threat to the republic. They stabbed him to death in the Senate.

Some of the men who stabbed Julius Caesar were men he considered friends. One of them, Brutus, was a man Caesar had treated almost like a son. How could these men kill Caesar? Brutus explained that it was not that he loved Caesar less, but that he loved Rome—and the Roman republic—more. Brutus and the other conspirators killed Caesar to save Rome. At least, that was the plan.

After Caesar: Augustus and the Roman Empire

The men who killed Julius Caesar were trying to save the republic. They did not succeed. After Caesar was killed, another civil war broke out. The man who came out on top at the end of the war was a man known as Augustus Caesar, or just Augustus.

Augustus was an adopted son of Caesar and he agreed with Caesar that Rome needed to change. But he was smart. He knew that the Romans cared about their history. They would not be happy if he came to power and changed everything all at once. What he did instead was very clever. He made himself emperor and he made it clear that he intended to serve until he died. That meant Rome was no longer a republic. But Augustus did not sweep away all of the old traditions. He let the Romans keep the Senate and consuls. Still, everybody knew that it was Augustus who was really in charge.

Augustus brought peace to a country that had been fighting civil wars for many years. He reformed the government and conquered new lands. He set up monuments. He built magnificent new buildings, including temples, theaters, and bath houses. He also repaired old buildings and decorated them with fancy stone, like marble. He once boasted that he “found Rome brick and left it marble.”

One of the most famous buildings built during the reign of Augustus is the Pantheon. The Pantheon was built as a temple to all the Roman gods. (Pan—means all and theo—means gods.) The Pantheon is a beautiful building with a dome roof. While the original building was destroyed in a fire, the Pantheon still standing today was built to replace it. Thousands of tourists visit it every day.

The Pantheon is only one of many examples of great Roman architecture. Another one is the Colosseum. The Colosseum, built not long after the reign of Augustus, is a huge, oval stadium. The Romans went to the Colosseum to see people and animals fight. The Colosseum would hold fifty thousand people. Today the Colosseum is in ruins, but some of it is left to give us a good idea of what it would have looked like.
The Romans also enjoyed watching chariot races. These were held in an even larger stadium, called the Circus Maximus. For the Romans, a chariot race or a fight was good entertainment, the way a football game or a movie is for us today.

The Romans also built roads and aqueducts. The roads brought people from all around the Empire. The aqueducts were used to bring water from the country into the city. Some of the aqueducts are also very beautiful.

Dear Family Member,

Please help your child succeed in spelling by taking a few minutes each evening to review the words together. Helpful activities for your child to do include: spelling the words orally, writing sentences using the words, or simply copying the words.

Spelling Words

This week, we will be reviewing the last three spellings for the sound of /ee/. Your child learned how to read and spell words with these patterns in second grade, so this should be a review. On Friday, your child will be assessed on these words.

Students have been assigned three Challenge Words, been/bin and together. Challenge Words are words used very often. These Challenge Words do not following spelling patterns and need to be memorized.

The Content Word for this week is Pompey. This word is directly related to the material that we are reading and also follows the vowel patterns your child is reviewing. The Content Word is an optional spelling word for your child. If your child would like to try it but gets it incorrect, it will not count against him or her on the assessment. We encourage everyone to stretch themselves a bit and try to spell this word.
The spelling words, including the Challenge Words and the Content Word, are listed below:

1. chimney 12. everybody
2. Chinese 13. city
3. gently 14. centipede
4. crazy 15. athlete
5. money 16. barley
6. extreme 17. enemy
7. busy 18. Challenge Word: been
8. Pete 19. Challenge Word: bin
9. keyboard 20. Challenge Word: together

Student Reader

This week, students will read a reader’s theater selection about Androcles and the lion and a selection about Christianity and how it began and grew. Additional chapters your child may read include information about the Emperor Constantine, the Justinian era, the market town of Pompeii and the eruption of Mount Vesuvius, and Horatius and how he led the Romans to victory over the Etruscans.

Students will continue to take home text copies of the chapters in the reader. Encouraging students to read a text directly related to this domain-based unit will provide content and vocabulary reinforcement. Students will also have their glossary for use in reading the text copies to family members. The bolded words on the text copies are the words found in the glossary.
Androcles and the Lion

The ancient Romans liked to watch gladiator fights. They liked to watch a gladiator fight against other gladiators or against wild animals. As mentioned in the previous chapter, the Romans even built the Colosseum for these fights. The Colosseum was so big it could hold fifty thousand people!

This is a gladiator story and it ends in the Colosseum. You may be surprised by the ending!

Once there was a Roman slave named Androcles [AN-droe-cleez]. Androcles escaped from his master and ran away. One night he hid in a cave. He crept into the cool darkness, lay down, and fell asleep.

In the middle of the night, Androcles was awakened by a loud roaring noise. He got up and squinted in the darkness. What he saw scared him half to death. It was a lion returning to his den!

Androcles shrank back, fearful for his life.

Then, he saw that the lion was suffering. It was roaring in pain. The great beast limped into the cave and flopped down. It lifted its right front paw and licked it.

Androcles took a step toward the lion. The big cat spotted him, but he did not seem angry. Instead, he gave Androcles a sad look, as if asking for help. Androcles crouched next to the lion. He looked and saw a thorn stuck in the lion’s paw. He put out his hand. The lion did not try to bite him. He touched the lion on the paw. The lion sat still. Then, very gently, Androcles took hold of the thorn and pulled it out.

The lion looked Androcles in the eye and purred. That was the beginning of a warm friendship between Androcles and the lion. They lived together in the cave. They slept side by side, keeping each other warm.

Then, one day Roman soldiers discovered Androcles. The law of Rome said that runaway slaves must be punished. So, Androcles was captured and taken to the city of Rome.
For ten days, Androcles sat alone in a jail cell. The jailors fed him nothing but water and crusts of stale bread. Then, one of them told him he was to meet his death in the Colosseum.

Androcles knew what that meant. Runaway slaves were often forced to fight in the Colosseum. Androcles knew he would be forced to fight against gladiators, or perhaps against vicious, hungry wild animals.

Androcles was led out of his cell. As he walked into the Colosseum, he knew that he would soon die. Androcles was brave. He stepped into the arena and prepared himself for the fight, and for death.

The crowd cheered as Androcles stepped into the arena. They cheered even more loudly when a lion appeared on the other side of the arena.

Then, something strange took place. This was not just any lion. It was the lion Androcles had befriended. The lion recognized his friend. Instead of attacking, the beast ran up to Androcles and began licking his face. Androcles stroked the lion and rubbed his belly.

The crowd was amazed. They had never seen anything like this. They cheered loudly.

“Free the slave!” one of the men in the crowd shouted.

“Free the lion!” another shouted.

Soon, the whole crowd was yelling and shouting.

The emperor was the one who made the decision. He held out his hand, with his thumb to the side. Then, he tilted it so that his thumb pointed up. Thumbs up! That was the sign! It meant that Androcles and the lion had pleased the emperor. They would be saved!

So Androcles and the lion were set free. They lived a long life and their friendship never faltered.
Androcles and the Lion: Reader’s Theater

Scene 1—In a cave in the forest

Narrator 1

Thousands of years ago, there was a slave named Androcles who lived in ancient Rome. Every day, Androcles was sent by his master out to the fields with the other slaves. There they spent the entire day in the blistering hot sun, tending the master’s crops. Only when dusk fell at the very end of the day did they return to the slave quarters where they lived. Each night, after a meal of stale bread and water, they fell exhausted on the hard floor and went to sleep.

Narrator 2

One day when it was time to return from the fields, Androcles did not follow the other slaves. As the others went back to their quarters, Androcles hid at the edge of the field. When it was dark, he ran as fast as he could, far into the forest. When he could run no more, he happened upon a small cave. He crept inside into the cool darkness and fell asleep.

Lion (roaring several times, but then whimpering in pain)

Rrrrrroarrrr….. Rrrrrroarrrr….. Rrrrrroarrrr …owowowowowow….

Androcles (voice shaking)

Who’s there? Where are you?

Lion (roars two more times in pain)

Help me! Help me—here!
Androcles (voice still shaking)

Whoa! How can I help you?

Lion (limps towards Androcles and lifts his front paw)

Just help me. My paw, my paw—please help me.

Androcles (crouches carefully next to the lion, lifting its paw)

Well, let me take a look. Aha! I see what the problem is. There is a very large thorn stuck in your paw. Hold very still and I will pull it out.

(Androcles gently pulls the thorn out of the lion's paw.)

Lion

Ooooww... ahhhhhh—that's much better. Thank you.

(Lion rubs up against Androcles and purrs.)

Narrator 1

That was the beginning of a warm friendship between Androcles and the lion. They lived together in the cave. They slept side by side, keeping each other warm.

Narrator 2

Then one day, a group of Roman soldiers on patrol stumbled upon the cave where they discovered Androcles. Roman law said that runaway slaves must be punished. So the soldiers dragged Androcles out of the cave and back to the city of Rome.

Narrator 1

Androcles was taken to jail. He was left alone in a cell for ten days with little to eat or drink. On the tenth day, the jailer came to tell him that he would be taken to the Colosseum that afternoon. Androcles knew that could mean only one thing. He would be forced to fight to death against gladiators or vicious, wild animals.

Scene 2—The Colosseum

(The emperor and crowd stand in a circle as if seated at the Colosseum. Androcles enters the center of the circle from one side.)

Crowd (chanting Androcles’ name as he enters the circle)

Androcles! Androcles! Androcles!

Lion (shakes mane and roars loudly as he enters the circle from the other side)

Rrrrrroarrrrr…… Rrrrrroarrrrr….. Rrrrrroarrrrr

Crowd (turns and looks at the lion and cheers loudly)

Emperor

Let the games begin!

(Androcles and the lion approach each other with heads down, ready to fight. Then, both look up and stare into each other’s eyes.)

Lion (purrs loudly and rubs up against Androcles’ leg)

Purrrrr…rrrrrr….rrrr

Androcles (bends forward to hug the lion)

My friend, my friend—it’s you!

Crowd (cheers loudly)

Man in the crowd

Free Androcles! Free Androcles!
Woman in the crowd

Free the lion! Free the lion!

Crowd (all chanting)

Free Androcles! Free the lion! Free Androcles! Free the lion!

Emperor (waves both arms to quiet the crowd; holds out his right hand with his thumb to the side and then tilts his thumb up)

Crowd (all chanting)

They’re saved! They’re both saved! Hooray!

Narrator 1

So Androcles and the lion were both set free. They lived a long life and their friendship never faltered.

The Rise of Christianity

During the reign of Emperor Augustus, something important happened—but at the time, almost nobody noticed.

Long ago, a man named Jesus of Nazareth was born. Jesus was a Jew who later became an important teacher. He walked among crowds of people teaching about important truths. People said that he worked miracles. They said he changed water into wine and walked on the water. They said he cured the sick, and even brought dead people back to life.

Jesus attracted followers. But he also attracted the attention of the Roman governor, Pontius Pilate [Pon-CHUS PIE-lit]. Pilate had heard that Jesus called himself “the king of the Jews.” He did not like the sound of that. The Jews of Palestine were subjects of the Roman Emperor. There was no room for any “king of the Jews.”

Pilate had Jesus arrested. He put Jesus on trial and sentenced him to death.

Even though Jesus died, a group of his followers believed Jesus was a divine being—the son of God. They believed he had been sent to Earth by God. They believed that after his death, he was taken up to heaven by God.

The followers of Jesus were called Christians. They believed Jesus was sent by God to save people. They began sharing the story of Jesus with anyone who would listen. Lots of people thought they were crazy. But some people listened. The Christian religion began to grow.

One man did more than anyone else to spread the Christian religion. His name was Paul and he was a Roman citizen. He traveled all around, spreading the religion of Jesus. Eventually Paul was put to death, like Jesus, but not before he had set up Christian churches all around the Roman Empire.

At first, the Roman emperors paid no attention to this new religion. Later, they started to pay attention, but only because they did not approve of the Christians.

Remember: the Romans worshipped many gods. Everyone in the Roman Empire was expected to worship gods like Jupiter, Juno, and Mars. The Romans believed that these gods protected the state. They believed people should honor them.

That was a problem for the Christians. They believed that there was only one God. They believed it was wrong to worship the Roman gods.

So, for many years, the Roman emperors treated Christians as enemies of Rome. They did what they could to get rid of the Christians. They threw some of them in jail. They had others put to death. But the Christians did not give up their faith. They kept on believing and they kept on preaching.

The man who ended the long war between Rome and Christianity was the Emperor Constantine. He became Emperor about three hundred years after the birth of Jesus of Nazareth. By that time there were a lot of Christians. In fact, Constantine’s own mother became a Christian. Constantine became a Christian as well.

When Constantine became Christian, everything changed. For hundreds of years, the Roman emperors had punished the Christians. Now with Constantine, Christianity became the official religion of the Roman Empire.

Carthage Must Be Destroyed!

A noble old Roman, eighty-four years of age, had just finished a stirring speech in the Forum. His closing words were, “Carthage must be destroyed!”

Those words were repeated by his hearers. They were carried into the street. They were discussed by excited men in every part of the city.

“Who says this?” asked one citizen. “Who says that Carthage must be destroyed?”

“Cato the censor says so,” was the answer. “He says that two such cities as Rome and Carthage cannot long exist under the same sun. One must submit to the other. If Rome does not destroy Carthage, then Carthage will destroy Rome.”

Cato was serious about the matter. Rome had already fought two long wars against Carthage. As a young man, Cato had fought in one of these wars. In his old age, when the two cities were at peace, he had been sent as an ambassador to Carthage. He was astonished at what he saw there. He had supposed that Rome was the richest and most powerful city in the world. After seeing Carthage, he feared that he was mistaken.
He saw the harbor of Carthage swarming with ships from all parts of the world. The docks were piled with goods from many countries. The shops were filled with rich and rare merchandise. The markets were full of buyers and sellers. The public buildings were beautiful. The city walls were taller and stronger than the walls of Rome.

On the voyage back to Rome, Cato thought about the things he had seen. He felt that Carthage was a threat to Rome. He felt that there was only one way to save Rome. He must make his countrymen aware of the danger. Carthage must be destroyed!

When he had finished his speech in the Forum, Cato wrapped his toga about him and went out into the street. Everyone who saw him knew by the broad, colorful border on his white toga that he was one of Rome’s great men. They knew that this was a man who had held some of the highest offices in the city.

In the street, Cato met many of his friends, and no matter what he spoke with them about, his last words when parting were, “Carthage must be destroyed!”

Cato had been a Roman censor, and for a time had been the most powerful man in Rome. He tried hard to preserve the simple, sturdy habits of his forefathers. There was nothing that he hated more than luxury and self-indulgence. When he saw young men dressed in fashionable clothes idling in the streets, his anger rose up within him. “Carthage must be destroyed!” he cried, while rebuking the young men for their folly. When he saw officers of the state living in fine houses and enjoying their wealth, he sneered at them in contempt and cried out, “Carthage must be destroyed!”

After his speech, Cato did not stay long in the city. He returned to his farm, where he had lived all his life except when serving Rome. His first greeting to his family was, “Carthage must be destroyed!”

Cato’s life on the farm was simple. Everything was just as it had been in the days of his father and grandfather. Cato plowed his fields. He sowed his grain. He helped the reapers. He gathered his hay. He fed his flocks and herds. “To do these necessary things,” he said, “is to be a Roman of the old-fashioned sort.”

Cato’s wife and daughters were Romans of the old-fashioned sort, too. They took care of the home. They ground barley and baked bread. They gathered milk and pressed cheeses. They crushed grapes and bottled wine. They spun and wove clothing for the family.

Had you seen Cato on his farm, you would not have guessed that he was famous. He dressed like a simple farmer. He walked out to see his cattle and crops. He gathered grapes in his vineyard. He picked olives from his olive trees. He met with his country neighbors and talked about crops and harvests. But he always closed his conversations by crying, “Carthage must be destroyed!”

Cato’s last days would have been peaceful enough, if it had not been for the bitter hatred which he bore toward Carthage. Whenever he went to Rome, it was to stir up his fellow citizens. Whenever he made a speech, whether it was about politics or religion or farming, he always ended with a ringing cry, “Carthage must be destroyed!” And when, at length, worn out by old age, he lay down for the last time upon his hard, humble cot, his final words were, “Carthage must be destroyed!”

The Parrot

Once there was a grocer who kept a pet parrot. The parrot was a smart bird. She saw everything the grocer did and understood.

One day the grocer was filling bags with brown sugar. He took out a bag of sand and mixed some sand in with the sugar. This allowed him to fill twelve bags instead of the usual ten.

Later that day, a customer came into the shop. He took a bag of sugar and placed it on the counter.

The parrot called out, “Sand in the sugar! Sand in the sugar!”

“Shhh!” said the grocer.

But the parrot could not keep quiet. She called out again, “Sand in the sugar! Sand in the sugar!”

The customer put the sugar back and left the shop without buying anything.

“You lousy bird!” cried the grocer. “I’ll thank you to keep your mouth shut in the future!”

A few days later, the tricky grocer was filling bags of cocoa powder. He mixed in some brick dust. In this way, he was able to fill twelve bags instead of the usual ten.

A lady came in the shop. She was all set to buy a bag of cocoa powder. Then, the parrot called out, “Brick dust in the cocoa! Brick dust in the cocoa!”

The lady looked at the grocer. She saw a guilty look on his face. She put the cocoa powder back and left the shop.

The grocer was furious. “What are you doing? Are you trying to put me out of business? Listen here! If you know what’s good for you, you will keep your mouth shut!”

A few days later, the grocer made a batch of fake butter. He got a big jar of lard. Then, he mixed in some yellow spice to make the lard look like butter.

A cook came into the shop and grabbed a pound of the fake butter.

“Lard in the butter!” cried the parrot. “Lard in the butter!”

The cook put the butter back and left the shop.
That was too much for the tricky grocer. He took the parrot’s cage outside. Then, he threw open the door. When the parrot flew out, the grocer swatted her with his broom. The poor parrot fell to the ground and lay there without moving.

The grocer thought the parrot was dead. He went back into his shop.

A few minutes later the parrot woke up. She was not dead after all.

The parrot looked around and saw a dead cat lying next to him.

“Perhaps he, too, was killed for telling the truth,” said the parrot. “Clearly this is no country for an honest parrot. I will leave this land and seek some country where truth is honored.”

The parrot flapped her wings and flew away. But whether she found the land she was seeking, nobody can say. Perhaps she is still searching, even today.

Cicero Goes to the Senate

One day, a father and son were walking through a Roman market when an important-looking man hurried by.

“Father,” said the boy, “Who is that man?”

“That is Cicero,” said the father. “Marcus Tullius Cicero.”

“Who is he?”

“He is a senator and a great orator.”

“Is he going to the Senate?”

“Indeed he is.”

“Why?”

“To make a speech, my boy. You can be sure it will be a fine speech, for there is no finer orator in the city!”

“What will he say?”

“I am told that he intends to speak against the consul Mark Antony.”

The boy looked surprised.

“Is he not afraid to speak against Antony? I am sure I would be!”

“Perhaps he should be afraid. But Cicero is not easily frightened. I remember when he was just a young lawyer. He took Roscius as a client. All of the other lawyers had refused to take him as a client. They knew that Sulla hated him and they were afraid of what Sulla might do to them. But Cicero was not afraid. He took the case, brought it to trial, and won!”
“Yes! Yes!” said an old man standing next to them. “I remember it well. Do you remember the year when Cicero was consul?”

“Indeed I do,” said the father. “That was the year of the Catiline conspiracy. But my son here was not born at the time. I fear he has never heard of Catiline.”

“I have heard the name,” said the boy. “But I do not know who he was.”

“Well, then,” said the man. “I had better give you a little history lesson. As I said, Cicero was consul that year. He uncovered a plot to overthrow the republic. Catiline was the mastermind behind it. Cicero made a speech in the Senate. Those who heard it said it was one of his best: very elegant, but none too friendly. Catiline was there, in the Senate, and Cicero called him a traitor to his face. He laid out the whole plot. Catiline had to leave the city. A few weeks later, he and his men were defeated.”

The boy thought for a moment. “You don’t think that Cicero will attack Mark Antony in the Senate in the same way he attacked Catiline, do you?”

“He may,” said the father. “He is a man of great courage and these are wild times. It is impossible to tell what may happen next.”

The Second Rome: From Constantine to Justinian

Constantine was the first Roman Emperor to support Christianity. He issued an order that made it illegal to put Christians to death, or even throw them in jail.

Constantine built churches all over the empire. He built one in Bethlehem, where Jesus was born. He built another in Jerusalem, where Jesus died. He built churches in Rome and in the ancient city of Byzantium, in present-day Turkey. Byzantium was Constantine’s favorite city. He adopted it and renamed it Constantinople. His goal was to turn the city into a “new Rome,” a sort of Rome away from Rome.

Constantine did not want Constantinople to replace Rome. He hoped that Constantinople would take its place beside Rome and that the two cities would survive, side by side, for many years. He wanted Rome and Constantinople to be like two mighty pillars supporting the Roman Empire. But, in the end, one of those pillars collapsed.

One of the emperors who came after Constantine decided his job was just too big. He felt that the Roman Empire was too large to be ruled by any one man. So he split the empire into two parts. He declared that the western half of the Empire would be ruled by one emperor, based in Rome; the eastern half would be ruled by a second emperor, based in Constantinople.

Not long after the empire was divided, invaders from the North began attacking the Western Empire. Things got worse and worse. The invaders even attacked Rome itself. Finally, the western part of the Roman Empire collapsed.

The Eastern Empire, based in Constantinople, had better luck. It lived on, and for a while, even got stronger.

Most historians agree that the Eastern Empire was at its best during the reign of Justinian. Justinian came into power in the year AD 527. That is, he became emperor 527 years after the birth of Jesus and about two hundred years after Constantine decided to support Christianity.
Like Constantine before him, Justinian was a Christian. He spent lots of money building churches. In Constantinople, he built the church of Hagia Sophia [ho-GEE-ə Soe-FEE-yə], with its magnificent, soaring dome.

Justinian also completed an important book project. He had scholars gather up all of the laws that had been passed in the Roman Empire over the years. What the scholars found was a big mess. There were so many laws, nobody could possibly keep track of them all. There were old laws that no longer made sense. There were even laws that seemed to be the opposite of one another. One law might say “it is illegal to do X.” Then another law might say “it’s perfectly fine to do X.” Justinian had his scholars gather up all the laws, sort them out, and organize them. When they were done, they published the laws. The new, organized laws filled several books. The new organized laws were known as Justinian’s Code.

Pompeii

August 24th in the year AD 79 began like any other day. The people of Pompeii [pom-PAE] woke up and went to work. Pompeii was a busy market town. The market was soon filled with people buying and selling things.

In the distance, the people of Pompeii could see the top of Mount Vesuvius. Everyone knew the mountain. It looked down on Pompeii every day. The mountain was like an old friend. But this friend had a terrible secret.

The people of Pompeii did not know that Mount Vesuvius was actually a volcano. It was full of melted rock and hot gas. Inside Mount Vesuvius, the pressure had been building up for hundreds and hundreds of years.

Around midday, the ground began to tremble and shake. Then, there was a tremendous cracking noise. Boom! Flames and smoke burst from the top of Mount Vesuvius. The people looked up and saw a great plume of black smoke rising into the sky. Then, things began to fall from the sky. Flakes of ash and bits of rock called pumice showered down. The people of Pompeii put pillows over their heads to keep the little rocks from hurting them. Many tried to run away.

Ash and pumice fell for a while. Then, a great cloud of hot rock mixed up with hot gas spilled out of the mountain and came sizzling down the mountainside. The rocks and gas that came down the mountain were heated to 400 degrees, traveling at 60 miles an hour. The people of Pompeii could not outrun it. It swept over them and wiped out the city.

The volcano erupted for 19 hours. The city of Pompeii was buried. The buildings were covered with ash. In some places, the ash was more than 80 inches deep!

The city of Pompeii disappeared and most people forgot that it had ever existed. For more than 1,500 years, it lay beneath the ash. Then, some men set out to dig a well. As they dug down, they hit a stone wall. They had discovered the lost city of Pompeii.
Today, much of Pompeii has been excavated, or dug up. You can go to Pompeii and see a Roman town preserved exactly as it looked the day it was destroyed in AD 79.

You can walk down an old stone street and imagine what it looked like 2,000 years ago.

You can peek into houses and courtyards.

You can even see some of the paintings and mosaics the people of Pompeii had on their walls.

The eruption of Mount Vesuvius was a disaster for the people who lived in Pompeii. But it was a marvelous thing for historians who study the past. By visiting Pompeii and studying the city, historians have learned a great deal about life in ancient Rome.
How Horatius Held the Bridge

The events listed below of how Horatius held the bridge are in the wrong order. Use the numbers 1—7 to put them in the right order.

___ The bridge over the Tiber River fell.

___ Sextus helped an Etruscan king raise a huge army and lead it to Rome.

___ Horatius and the other two Romans defeated the Tuscan’s best warriors.

___ The people of Rome gave Horatius a farm and set up a statue of him.

___ Horatius volunteered to stand against the Tuscans, so that the other Romans could tear down the bridge.

___ Horatius swam across the Tiber River back to Rome.

___ The men of Rome met and decided to tear down the bridge over the Tiber River.
Why do you think the people of Rome thought of Horatius as a hero?
How Horatius Held the Bridge

In the early days of the Roman Republic, Rome was in danger. The kings had been driven out, but they wanted to force their way back in. King Tarquin’s son, Sextus, went into an area north of Rome. He helped an Etruscan king raise a huge army. Then, the two of them set off to attack Rome. They led the army all the way to the Tiber River right outside of Rome.

The men of Rome had a meeting. They decided there was only one way to save the city: tear down the bridge over the Tiber River. If the Etruscan army crossed the bridge, Rome would be lost. But if the Romans could tear the bridge down, the Etruscans would not be able to cross the river and enter the city.

The consul spoke to the people. “Which of you,” he asked, “will stand forth against the Etruscans while we tear down the bridge?”

A man named Horatius [hə-RAE-shus] stepped forward. “To every man upon this earth,” Horatius said,

Death cometh soon or late.
And how can man die better
Than facing fearful odds,
For the ashes of his fathers,
And the temples of his gods,
And for the tender mother
Who dandled him to rest,
And for the wife who nurses
His baby at her breast.

Hew down the bridge, Sir Consul,
With all the speed ye may;
I, with two more to help me,
Will hold the foe in play.
In yon strait path a thousand
May well be stopped by three.
Now who will stand on either hand,
And keep the bridge with me?
Two more men came forward to join Horatius. While the other Romans began tearing down the bridge, these three men went forth to face the Etruscan army.

The Etruscans laughed when they saw the three Romans blocking the way. They thought they would defeat them easily. They sent three of their best warriors into battle. The Romans tossed one of the Etruscans off the bridge and killed the other two.

The Etruscans sent three more men into battle. Again, the Romans defeated them.

Finally, the Tuscans sent their bravest fighter into battle. His name was Astur. He swung his sword and wounded Horatius in the thigh. Horatius fell back on one knee, but only for a moment. Then, he charged forward. He pounced on Astur like a wild cat and drove his sword right through the Etruscan’s helmet. Astur fell to the ground with a crash, like a tree struck by one of Jupiter’s thunderbolts!

Just then, the bridge began to totter. The two Romans helping Horatius ran back across it. Horatius tried to cross, but the bridge fell before he could get across. He was left alone to face the entire Etruscan army!

Horatius prayed to the river god, “Oh, Tiber! Father Tiber! A Roman’s life take thou in charge this day!” Then, he jumped into the river. He struggled to stay afloat in his armor. He nearly drowned. But, in the end, he made it across the roaring river, back to Rome, where he was welcomed as a hero.

The people of Rome gave Horatius a farm. They also set up a statue of him:

\[\ldots\text{they made a molten image,}\]
\[\text{And set it up on high,}\]
\[\text{And there it stands unto this day}\]
\[\text{To witness if I lie.}\]
\[\text{It stands in the Comitium,}\]
\[\text{Plain for all folk to see;}\]
\[\text{Horatius in his harness,}\]
\[\text{halting upon one knee:}\]
\[\text{And underneath is written,}\]
\[\text{In letters all of gold,}\]
\[\text{How valiantly he kept the bridge}\]
\[\text{In the brave days of old.}\]

Writing Prompts

Unit 4:
1. Write a paragraph judging whether Julius Caesar was a good leader or not. Use details to support your answer.
2. Write a page of dialogue persuading readers to dig up the lost city of Pompeii.
3. Explain how the Roman government served as a good model for our government.
4. Make a chart showing background facts you knew before reading this Reader and new facts learned.
5. Debate (in written form) whether it was a good idea for Hannibal to cross the mountains with a squad of elephants.
6. Writing as Horatius, persuade others to join you in holding the bridge.

Either fiction or nonfiction:
1. Summarize the story or chapter you read in three to five sentences.
2. After reading this story or chapter, I wonder...
3. Name three things you liked about the story or chapter.
4. Make a timeline of three to five events in your reading today.
5. Pretend you are a TV reporter who has to interview the main character or person in the story or chapter you read, and write down five questions you would ask.
6. Make a prediction about what will happen next in the story or chapter you just read. Explain why you think this will happen.
7. Pretend you are the main character or a person in the story or chapter you read today and write a diary entry for that person.
8. Tell about something in the story or chapter you read today that is similar to something you have already read.
9. Draw a Venn diagram to show what is alike and/or different between two characters or people in the story or chapter you read.
10. How does the title fit the story or chapter? Suggest another title.
11. Write down three new words you learned while reading and tell what they mean. Use each word in a new sentence.

12. Name three questions you would ask the author of the story or chapter.

Fiction:

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

These materials are the result of the work, advice, and encouragement of numerous individuals over many years. Some of those singled out here already know the depth of our gratitude; others may be surprised to find themselves thanked publicly for help they gave quietly and generously for the sake of the enterprise alone. To helpers named and unnamed we are deeply grateful.

CONTRIBUTORS TO EARLIER VERSIONS OF THESE MATERIALS

We would like to extend special recognition to Program Directors Matthew Davis and Souzanne Wright who were instrumental to the early development of this program.

SCHOOLS

We are truly grateful to the teachers, students, and administrators of the following schools for their willingness to field test these materials and for their invaluable advice: Capitol View Elementary, Challenge Foundation Academy (IN), Community Academy Public Charter School, Lake Lure Classical Academy, Lepanto Elementary School, New Holland Core Knowledge Academy, Paramount School of Excellence, Pioneer Challenge Foundation Academy, New York City PS 26R (The Carteret School), PS 30X (Wilton School), PS 50X (Clara Barton School), PS 96Q, PS 102X (Joseph O.
